Two Perish, Eight Hurt As 57 Flee In Four Fires

D. C. Man, Woman in Alexandria Die of Burns.

Mother Suffers Serious Injuries

Quacking Ducks Give Alarm, Save Lives of Four Boys.

Fires in three sections of the city yesterday sent eight persons to hospitals, caused half of one family to leap from a second-story window, and resulted in the death of one man.

Frank Laughran, 55, died early last night in Emergency Hospital, following a flight from flames which gutted the fourth floor of a large rooming house at 1426 K street northwest. Laughran suffered burns over his entire body. In the same fire three men were rescued from the rooftops by firemen who scaled an 85-foot ladder.

Eight Treated at Hospitals.

The injured, in Gallinger Hospital last night, were:

Mary Williams, 50, 3300 Prospect avenue northwest.

Joseph Branzell, 23, same address.

Thelma Branzell, 20, same address.

Philip Morones, 26, 1426 K street northwest.

Treated and released at various hospitals were:

Charles Williams, 50, 3300 Prospect avenue northwest.

Esther Williams, 9, same address.

D. B. Brim, 1426 K street northwest.

Laughran, his hair burned off and his pajamas burned except for the cuffs and collar, walked down four flights of stairs with his apparel still aflame to the living room of his landlady, Mrs. Sarah K. Davis, where he collapsed.

Roberta Hill, 28, colored, was burned to death when fire destroyed a frame house at 327 First street, Alexandria. The woman was in bed when the blaze, believed to have been started by an oil stove, broke out. Firemen arrived to find the house in flames. The owner was Jesse Banks.

In another serious fire at 3300 Prospect street northwest, Charles Williams helped his wife and 9-year-old daughter out the back window after an oil stove exploded, while Donald Pitts, 11, smashed a window in the front part of the house and crawled into a neighbor's bedroom, giving the neighbor, an invalid, a stroke of fright.

Ducks Awake Boys.

Young Donald was asleep with three other boys, including a son of Charles Williams, when they were awakened by the quacking of four pet ducklings the boys were keeping in their bedroom. After firemen rescued the boys, they mounted their ladders and rescued the ducks.

The third fire caused heavy damage at 211-213 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, but no one was hurt. Fire-ion estimated the total loss in all three fires at $10,000.

At least 57 people were driven from their beds by the three blazes, police estimated. Thirty-two were driven out of the K street fire, 13 from the Prospect avenue fire, and a dozen more from the fire on Pennsylvania avenue.

"It was the most horrible thing I ever saw," said Mrs. Davis, in describing the grisly apparition which suddenly walked into her living room. She did not know her house was afire until Laughran walked into the room.

Collapses After Walls.

"All his clothes were burned off, except the cuffs at his wrists and the collar. I screamed and then put out the flames at his neck and

Coast Girl Married To Lieut. Massie, Family Discloses

By the Associated Press.

Chewelah, Wash., March 14.—The marriage of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., a central figure in the 1931 Massie assault case in Hawaii, to Miss Florence Storms was reported here today by the bride's sister.

The wedding, said Miss Marie Storms, occurred a week ago at Seattle. It had not been announced at the time, she said, because "they wanted to be by themselves. She said the couple had gone to Lieut. Massie's home in Kentucky to remain until he sails for duty in China next month.

The bride held a secretarial position in Seattle. Her parents are Postmaster and Mrs. H. S. Storm, of Chewelah.

Honolulu's "Massie case" grew out of a criminal attack on Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie, former wife of the lieutenant. The former Mrs. Massie was from Washington, D. C., where she now resides. She divorced Lieut. Massie in 1934.

Lieut. Massie, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, and E. J. Ford and Albert O. Jones, both Navy enlisted men, were tried for the murder of Joseph Kahahawai, a suspect in the attack on Mrs. Massie. They were found guilty of manslaughter and their sentence commuted to one hour in custody.

C. F. Norment, Bank Leader, Is Dead at 80

Outstanding D. C. Business Executive Held Many Major Positions.

Clarence F. Norment, 80, one of Washington's outstanding business and financial leaders, died yesterday at his home in the Wardman Park Hotel.

Private funeral services will be held Wednesday at his residence. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Norment, the son of Samuel and Mary Ellen Ward Norment, was born in Washington June 10, 1856. He was graduated by Rittenhouse Academy here and Western Maryland College. For 50 years he served on the board of trustees of the latter institution.

Under the guidance of his father who founded the Metropolis Bank in 1874, Mr. Norment started his business career here. He was elected president of the Metropolis Bank in 1895 and later brought about the merger of this institution with the National Bank of Washington. He was elected president of the merged banks.

Business Leader Here.

During his active career Mr. Norment held many high positions in the local business field. At one time he was president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and chairman of the executive board of the American Security & Trust Co. He was president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association in 1906.

At the time of his death Mr. Norment was honorary chairman of the board of the National Bank of Washington; chairman of the board and a director of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co.; chairman of the board and director of the Terminal Refrigerating & Warehouse Corporation; president and a director of the Home Mutual Building Association; vice president and director of the Mutual Protective Fire Insurance Co., and a director of the American Security & Trust Co., the

By the Associated Press.

Begazi, Libya, March 14.—A maddened ox narrowly missed Premier Benito Mussolini with its horns today as it broke loose from its cart during a procession in the village of Luigi Razza.

A crowd of colonists, gathered to welcome Il Duce on his tour of Italy's north African dominions, was thrown into brief panic.

Officers leaped forward to protect the premier as the animal, breaking loose within 6 feet of Mussolini, rushed toward the crowd with lowered horns.

Il Duce stepped back calmly and gave directions for subduing the animal, which finally was thrown.

Mussolini visited both Bengasi and Luigi Razza during the day, receiving a tremendous welcome from the 45,000 inhabitants of Bengasi, where Italians first landed in 1911 at the beginning of the Italo-Turkish war.

As Mussolini traveled across Libya, receiving the deference of thousands of Musselmen, Marshal Italo Balbo, Governor of Libya, proclaimed that Italy had become a Moslem power.

Il Duce himself, after visiting a Mosque in Bengasi, made another gesture toward Islam when he addressed a crowd of thousands of Moslems.

"Your sacrifices toward winning the new empire are solemn proof of your faithfulness to Fascist Italy," he declared.

"Italy is powerful and certainly will not forget this."

Storm on Route, Amelia Earhart Postpones Flight

Oakland, Calif., March 14 (AP).—A storm covering nearly one-third of the 2,400 miles between here and Honolulu today forced postponement of Amelia Earhart's take-off on her projected 27,000-miles world flight.

George Palmer Putnam, Miss Earhart's husband, said "definitely" there would be no take-off today. The famous aviatrix had planned to hop at 5 p. m. (8 p. m. E. S. T.).

Putnam said he had advices indicating flying conditions would be satisfactory tomorrow and that a definite decision on take-off time might be made in the morning.

Deadline Tonight, Tax Bureau Faces Rush of 3,000,000

With less than half of the country's 6,000,000 income tax returns filed thus far, Internal Revenue officials today face the prospect of an unprecedented last-minute rush. Midnight tonight is the deadline. Failure to file by then invites a variety of cash penalties.

Though the number of taxpayers filing returns since January has been larger than usual, many individuals with large incomes customarily await until the last day to save interest on their money, officials said.

To aid revenue collectors, the Internal Revenue Department has ordered 4,300 agents to their assistance.

Autoist Killed As Heavy Snow Slows Traffic

2 Others Injured as Accidents Keep Police Busy During Day.

As thick, blinding snow fell on the District yesterday, one man was killed and two seriously hurt in traffic casualties blamed on the weather, while hundreds of minor accidents kept police busy all day.

George Warren Gibbons, 21, of 501 Twelfth street northeast, was killed when his car skidded off the Marlboro Pike into a telegraph pole, when, blinded by snow, he attempted to avoid an oncoming car. He died on the way to Casualty Hospital.

His companion, Charles Larsen, 22, of Newport News, Va., was in serious condition in Casualty Hospital, suffering a fractured skull and possible internal injuries.

Theodore Armiger, 32, of Berwyn, Md., was struck as he walked on Baltimore Boulevard. He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital, where he was found to have sustained a compound fracture of the right leg and internal injuries.

Queen Marie Is Ill Of Flu, Paralysis; Family at Bedside

Bucharest, Rumania (Monday), March 15 (AP).—Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania was reported early today by a member of the royal household to be in a serious condition and partially paralyzed.

The court official said her illness started with an attack of influenza which had become complicated by intestinal inflammation.

Two physicians were in constant attendance on the dowager Queen, mother of King Carol II, and a Vienna specialist on ailments of the alimentary tract prepared to fly to Bucharest at dawn.

King Carol and Queen Mother Marie of Yugoslavia, daughter of the ill Queen, were at her bedside most of the time, the court official said.

He said her illness was accompanied by a high fever, "somewhat over 100 degrees." Her condition took a turn for the worse early Saturday.

Her daughter, Queen Mother Marie of Yugoslavia, who was nursing an influenza patient of her own, her son, King Peter, immediately came from Belgrade.

Divorcee Held in Shotgun Murder of Wife; Police Find 'Love Nest,' Hint Jealousy Motive

By the Associated Press.

Canton, Ohio, March 14.—While police held a 47-year-old divorcee here, Canton officials uncovered a "love nest" apartment in Akron which they believed to supply a jealousy motive for the murder of Mrs. Rose Cable, prominent in Canton.

The "love nest" had been occupied for nearly three years by a "Mr. and Mrs. John Sherrard."

Prosecutor A. C. L. Barthelmeh said Deuber S. Cable, wealthy contractor husband of the victim, had been released after questioning to permit him to attend the funeral tomorrow.

Barthelmeh said indications pointed to a hired assassin. Mrs. Cable was killed by a shotgun blast fired through the window of her home Thursday night.

Owners of the apartment building identified pictures of a slight middle-aged woman and a "crabby-looking," well-dressed man of average build as the occupants of the "love nest."

Akron is 20 miles north of Canton. They form an almost continuous metropolitan district.

Prosecutor Barthelmeh and Detective Capt. Elmer E. Clark, who went to Akron, found papers and other evidence in the apartment which they said definitely linked the occupants with the case.

Barthelmeh said the man and woman had lived in the apartment since July, 1934. It was a five-room corner suite, well furnished. An expensive cabinet bar was stocked with champagne and fancy liquors.

Barthelmeh said the woman had admitted she lived there as "Mrs. Sherrard." She was taken into custody at Steubenville last night and returned to Canton. She had recently returned from Florida.

The woman held was divorced in Canton in July, 1934.

Other tenants reported that there were other visitors, both men and women, at the apartment. Empty

Europe's Air Fleets to Total 45,000 in '37

Reich, France, Italy, Russia, England to Add 4,000 Each.

Startling Increase in War Craft Shown in Air Survey.

World Discord.

Europe's air armament race is likely to produce the "startling total" of 20,000 new war planes this year, the National Aeronautic Association said yesterday after a survey.

Air Defense Race.

By the Associated Press.

The National Aeronautic Association, tracing details of "huge air armament" abroad, said yesterday that European production this year will send a new swarm of battle planes into the air.

A survey by William R. Enyart, N. A. A. secretary who recently returned from abroad, said a "cross check of a variety of first-hand sources" indicated there are now 25,500 military aircraft in Europe. Production during 1937 Enyart added, "may well reach the startling total of 20,000."

Enyart estimated that Russia has 7,500 fighting planes; Germany, 5,500; Italy, 5,000; France, 4,000, and England, 3,500.

Describing Europe's "tremendous air machine" as the fruit of "all-inclusive, far-reaching" aircraft programs, Enyart added that the "most dramatic example of how these reach out to cover every phase of aeronautic expansion is undoubtedly new Germany's air plan."

Military aircraft development is being carried forward on three fronts in Germany, the survey said, listing these as immediate production, research and development and public aeronautic education.

A similar program is under way in Italy, it was said, and one is being started in France.

Enyart said a "good portion of fighting air fleets abroad" are semi-obsolete, but that German and Italian planes are generally more modern than those of France and England.

The Ethiopian war brought a substantial expansion in Italy's air armada, he said.

The survey said that between 50,000 and 60,000 men now are building aircraft in Germany and that major Italian firms are operating at top speed "to supply the Italian air force in the shortest possible time with aerial equipment which could help Il Duce follow up his latest views on Roman Empire."

Enyart estimated that Germany, Italy, France, England and Rusia will produce at least 4,000 planes each during 1937.

Pope Prostrated, Quickly Recovers

Vatican City, March 14 (AP).—Pope Pius suffered a short period of prostration this morning, but his physicians said it could in no way be called a heart attack.

The 79-year-old holy father, who recently appeared to be recovering partially from serious illness, was stricken at 10:30 o'clock (4:30 a. m. Eastern standard time), it was disclosed. Informed sources said he was compelled to lie down for a few minutes, but quickly recovered.

Late this afternoon the Pope ordered the Canons of St. Peters to prepare the Basilicia for his presence at a pontifical Easter Sunday mass.

NLRB Demands Remington Rand Reinstate 4,000

Murphy Ponders 'Sit-Down' Remedy

Labor and 'Big Steel' Meet Today to Complete Contract.

On the Strike Front.

The National Labor Relations Board ordered Remington Rand, Inc., to reinstate 4,000 workers in jobs they held before last year's strike in plants of the company, and denounced the company's "strike-breaking" activities.

Gov. Frank Murphy called a series of conferences with Michigan leaders to curb the spread of sit-down strikes.

Representatives of organized labor and "Big Steel" meet today to put finishing touches on a history-making contract assuring the men of the mills a new all-time high-wage rate.

Company Condemned.

By William V. Nessly.

Holding that Remington Rand, Inc., office equipment manufacturers, had engaged in "wholesale violations" of the national labor relations act, the Labor Relations Board last night ordered reinstatement of 4,000 employes in jobs they held before the violent strike in plants of the company last year.

"Ruthless" methods, "callous disregard" of rights of employes, a "shocking concept" of the status of modern workers, efforts to "bribe" union leaders and influence public officials, the planning of disorders and the placing of "small value on human life" all were charged to the company in the board's decision, which followed lengthy hearings.

It was one of the most sweeping and most bitterly worded rulings the board has issued.

It came, incidentally, on the eve of a possible Supreme Court decision on constitutionality of the Wagner labor relations act, under which the board operates. Arguments on the act's validity were completed a month ago, and a ruling may be handed down when the court meets today.

Another development of interest in labor-industrial circles was issuance of a statement by H. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler Corporation, that on March 8 "the C. I. O. union * * * seized eight of this corporation's principal plants in the Detroit area" and that "our executives, plant managers and their staffs are being kept out by force."

The statement, directed to distributors and dealers of the corporation, after dealing with issues of the strike adds:

"You will recognize that the capture of our plants in time of peace, and what is going on in the plants today, is a form of revolution which concerns not only Chrysler Corporation but concerns you and everybody."

Bargaining Ordered.

The board's decision ordered the company to pay transportation expenses of those employes required to accept reinstatement in plants of the company in other towns because of the company's moving of some plants or departments operations "as a part of its antistrike campaign." Further, the company was ordered to bargain collectively with the joint protective board of the District Council Office Equipment Workers as the exclusive agent of the production and maintenance employes of six plants in New York, Connecticut and Ohio.

The decision came in the midst of other action here against the Remington Rand Co. John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, revealed Saturday that he had protested against the Social Security Board recently awarding a $57,500 contract for supplies to Remington Rand, and yesterday Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security Board, said reconsideration of the matter had been ordered to determine whether the board is required to give the contract to the company, under fire for its labor policies.

"Ruthless Methods" Charged.

Earlier last week, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, saying her representatives had been unable to locate James H. Rand, jr., president of the company, broadcast a public invitation for him to confer with her here next Thursday on the labor situation. A telegram on Friday said Rand would be present.

The Labor Board's decision said

Dykstra Will Accept Wisconsin U. Post

Chicago, March 14 (AP).—Clarence A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati, said today he would accept the presidency of the University of Wisconsin. John M. Callahan, chairman of the university executive committee, said at the same time Dykstra's appointment would be recommended to the board of regents Thursday.

Callahan said Dykstra agreed to a year-to-year contract at $15,000 annually. Dykstra's salary as city manager is $25,000 a year.

Dykstra would succeed Glenn Frank, who was removed last January 7.

Labor to Back Court Plan as DebateReopens

Senate Hearings to Be Resumed Tomorrow; Vote in July Sought.

Deliberately slowed hearings on President Roosevelt's Court reorganization proposal will be resumed tomorrow by the Senate Judiciary Committee with, probably, the voice of labor and the views of several governors raised on behalf of the plan before the week is over.

A Senate vote on the proposal by the middle of July is the frankly-admitted objective of Chairman Henry F. Ashurst, of the committee, who insists that time is on the side of the plan's proponents.

"If we vote in May, I'm sure we will win," he said last night. "If the vote is in June I'll bet on our winning, and if it is delayed until July we're simply certain of victory."

Opponents of the measure, however, take exactly the opposite view, holding that greater delay means greater opposition throughout the country.

Meanwhile, James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard University, in an open letter to Senators David I. Walsh and Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., of Massachusetts, said that "if the Supreme Court is altered without seeking the opinion of the people, I do not believe the alteration will be 'satisfactory to the conscience of the community.' Unless this national conscience is satisfied, I fear the gravest consequences."

Lawyers Oppose Change.

Another development was announcement by the American Bar Association that analysis of the vote in its recent poll on the court plan showed the majority of the membership in every State, the District of Columbia and the Territories voted against the President's plan.

Senator Ashurst said last night he did not know what witnesses would be called tomorrow. He said he had been unable yesterday to see the docket, which was in possession of a clerk. Holding his position as chairman was similar to that of a judge, he said he would not "go out in the highways and byways to get witnesses," but would call any whom other Senators might want to be heard.

"I may be wrong in seeking delay," he said, "and some of those who are for the measure are irritated by my insisting on delay, but I'm reasonably sure we have two more votes than we had a week ago, and I am convinced we will win more as time passes."

Finds Developments Slow.

He declined to name those Senators he thought had been won over.

"Developments are exasperatingly slow," he added, "but there is some progress, and where there is that

Roving Traffic Officer to Ride Streets in City's Safety Drive

By Howard F. Wentworth.

(Winner of first prize in the Nation-wide C. I. T. Safety Contest with his 1936 series appearing in The Post.)

A safety patrol of city streets, designed to regulate traffic and reduce accidents, will begin at 10:30 a. m. today when a uniformed Traffic Division policeman, accompanied by this reporter, starts a cruising crusade against highway recklessness.

Duties of the new "safety officer" will be to question and warn motorists who violate traffic regulations. He will enforce all safety rules and make arrests in flagrant cases.

Instances encountered during daily cruises throughout the city will be recorded for publication by this writer.

Co-operating with The Post in its current efforts to promote highway safety, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, has given the "safety officer" a roving assignment. During each day for an unlimited period, he will appear at key traffic spots in the city without warning.

Although the policeman will be in full uniform and in clear view of motorists, he will not ride in a police car. There will be no established route over which the officer will travel. He may suddenly appear on Bladensburg road northeast and just as suddenly switch his operations to Connecticut avenue northwest.

Constant observance of traffic regulations will be necessary if motorists are to avoid a meeting with the "safety officer," authorities warned. His tactics, however, will not be "hardboiled." On the contrary, Maj. Brown has stressed courtesy in all dealings with the motoring public.

But at the same time the cruising officer has been instructed to show no leniency in cases of recklessness.

He will concentrate on regulations dealing specifically with traffic safety. The speeder will be his target one day, the reckless driver another, and the right-of-way violator next. Every day, however, a careful watch will be kept on all phases of proper traffic control.

Through efforts of this new safety campaign, traffic authorities hope

4 Powers Send Ships to Guard Spanish Coast

60 Craft Will Join Sea Patrol; Rebels Routed Near Guadalajara.

By the Associated Press.

London, March 14.—Warships of four great naval powers steamed about the Spanish coast today as first concrete evidence of joint international efforts to isolate the Iberian peninsula's civil war.

The sea patrol, officially started last midnight, was composed of men of war from France, Great Britain, Germany and Italy.

With this phase of "hands off" activity actually under way, the full nonintervention committee was expected to meet this week to consider a Valencia government protest against alleged participation of Italian troops in the Spanish insurgent thrust at Guadalajara, scene of heavy fighting for several days.

The committee also faces the solution of many details involved in both the land and sea patrols of Spain. The land patrol plan calls for neutral observers on the Franco-Spanish and the Portuguese-Spanish borders.

The three supervisors of the 27-nation nonintervention scheme were to meet here tomorrow to settle details of their respective duties. Admiral M. H. Van Dulm, former Dutch East Indies fleet commander, is director of the program.

60 Ships to Join.

Various countries still must formulate orders for their merchant shipping to comply with regulations designed to stem the flow of men, arms and supplies to both sides.

The committee, it was said today, hopes to have 60 ships in the sea patrol within a few weeks.

The French border patrol at Perpignan today arrested two Spaniards and seized a quantity of explosives and fuses allegedly destined for government forces. The material was being transported by truck.

Faulty boilers forced the cargo ship Andra to put in last night at Dunkirk, where it was discovered she was carrying 2½ tons of munitions, tanks, automobiles and trucks. An air of mystery surrounded the ship because her bow was marked Andra Panama and her lifesavers Andra Hamburg. She was bound to Bayonne from Gdynia, Poland.

More Italians Captured.

Madrid, March 14 (AP).—Spanish government accounts of a loyalist victory at Trijueque on the Guadalajara front said tonight 90 additional Italian officers and soldiers had been captured in what was described as almost a rout of insurgents.

An official account said the Italian prisoners, when questioned, said six Italian divisions, or approximately 50,000 men, were concentrated on the Guadalajara front. One of those divisions was reported to have participated in the recent battle of Malaga, captured by the insurgent forces of Gen. Francisco Franco.

Loyalists Turn Tide.

Gen. Jose Miaja, government commander in Central Spain, reported the Madrid Front was quiet this morning. The government forces under Gen. Miaja recovering from the first shock of the enemy offensive and reinforced by crack units from the Madrid front, turned the tide of battle decisively.

The town at which this latest major assault on Madrid's defenses was checked is 16 miles northeast of Guadalajara and 44 miles northeast of the capital.

Government soldiers swept into Trijueque behind lines of tanks and armored cars, with a wave of dynamite throwers close behind these.

The enemy, which Madrid reports asserted were mostly Italians, fled so precipitately they were unable to move much of their artillery and other supplies, and large quantities of these were captured.

The government's fast, stubby pursuit planes followed up the retreat, machine gunning the insurgents on the roads and bombing their truck trains. Hundreds were reported killed.

La Guardia Predicts 10-Year Relief Need

Philadelphia, March 14 (AP).—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, of New York, told a regional conference of 30 mayors yesterday that the Nation faces a problem of Federal aid for ten years to come.

LaGuardia, president of the United States Conference of Mayors, said "we must seek uniformity of administration in the various States and cities.

"Industry and business are improving. We are not far away from normal but with improved methods of production we cannot possibly absorb all the men available in industry and agriculture."

WPA Airport Program 60 Per Cent Completed

By the Associated Press.

Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins reported yesterday the $80,000,000 airport development of the WPA is about 60 per cent complete.

Hopkins spoke of the activity, which employs about 45,000 workers, as conservative and justified by the rising curve of air traffic.

He set July 1 for completion of projects now under way and estimated that by that time approximately half the Nation's requirements for airports will be filled.

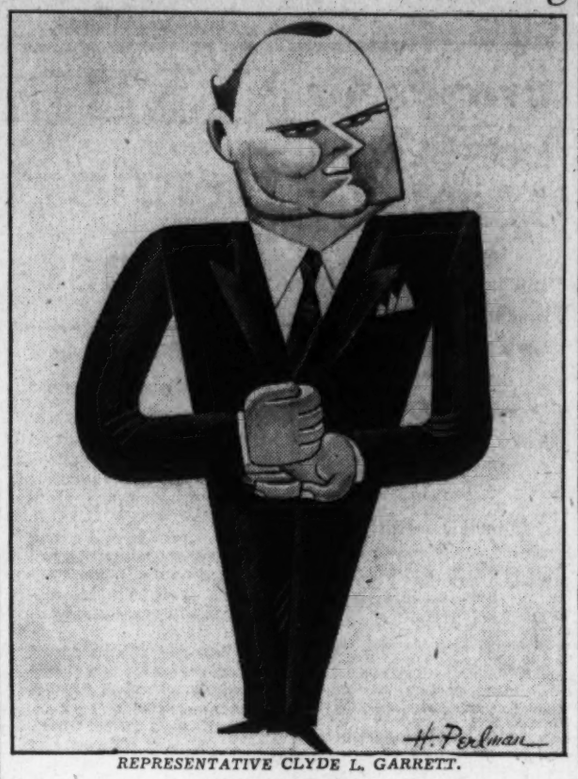
New Faces in Congress

Garrett, Nemesis of Blanton, Terms New Work Fascinating



REPRESENTATIVE CLYDE L. GARRETT.

Successor to Stormy Texan Is Mild-Mannered and Soft-Spoken; Has No Hobbies and Likes to Mingle.

By Liam Lenihan.

Stocky, ruddy faced Clyde L. Garrett is the 215-pound nemesis of Tom Blanton.

The blue-eyed, square-headed former farmer, who accomplished the impossible last summer by capturing the Texan stronghold of the Red Rider advocate, is the polar opposite of the man who made the District squirm.

At least he is so far as personality is concerned. For whereas the Texas stormy petrel was loud-voiced and vehement, Garrett is quiet-spoken and mild of manner; where Blanton was aloof, his successor likes to mingle.

Born in a one-room log house near Gorman to parents who had moved via the ox wagon trail from Mississippi in the early 70's, Garrett, now 51, was reared and worked on his father's farm, but left home to carve his own future at an early age.

Paying his way through Hankins' Normal College by driving railroad spikes and laying steel, Garrett taught school for a short period and in 1908 was serving as deputy in the office of the tax collector.

The future Congressman now was in politics to stay; he became county clerk, Eastland city manager consecutively and in 1928 was elected county judge. He served eight years on the bench, or four terms, before he entered the Congressional lists to soundly trounce self-appointed knight-errant Tom Blanton by a staggering vote of more than 2 to 1.

Representing a "diversified farming" district, Garrett is interested in agriculture. He will back legislation that will help tenant farmers become home owners.

He has no hobbies outside his work and home . . . has no time for them, he explains; does not smoke, drink or chew tobacco and calls his duties "fascinating" . . .

As for the District . . . he likes it a lot . . . he is happy over the cordial reception it gave him and he thinks it's a city beautiful.

Roosevelt Skips His Swim, Works On Tax Return

Warm Springs, Ga., March 14 (AP). President Roosevelt spent the third day of his vacation today working out his income tax return.

Foregoing his usual swim, he remained in his Pine Mountain cottage, answering the scores of tax questions he usually leaves to John Sanderson, White House disbursing officer.

The return must be in the mails by midnight tomorrow night.

Liberties Union Sues Magazine for $50,000

New York, March 14 (AP).—The American Civil Liberties Union, its counsel, Arthur Garfield Hays, said today, has instituted suit for $50,000 damages against the American Mercury and Harold Lord Varney, associate editor.

The action was based on an article by Varney in the December issue, entitled "The Civil Liberties Union" and subtitled "Liberalism a la Mascow." The Union charges its "unsullied reputation for disinterested public service, uninfluenced by ulterior motives" has been injured by the article.

Reserve Officials Will Elect Today

By the Associated Press.

Federal Reserve officials reported yesterday the reserve system's open market committee will meet today for its annual election of an executive committee.

They said the meeting was called before heavy selling developed last Friday in the Government bond market, and forecast that no action looking to the support of Government bonds would be taken.

It was indicated, however, that the committee would survey bond market conditions.

The open market group has charge of the Reserve Board activities in the purchase and sale of Government obligations. Informed authorities have predicted it would buy Federal obligations to check any sharp break in the market.

Reserve officials have described Friday's liquidation movement as a temporary flurry brought on by psychological factors rather than any fundamental weakness in the market.

Farley to Tour South.

Postmaster General Farley will leave March 21 for speaking engagements in Texas and Louisiana.

Postoffice officials said yesterday Farley plans to speak March 23 at Hillsboro, Dallas and Waco, Tex. on March 24 he will speak at Austin and San Antonio, going the next day to New Orleans to dedicate some new Federal buildings.

Vandals Paint Swastika Signs On N.Y. Temple

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 14.—Six 3-foot orange swastikas, neatly done with a stencil, were found early today painted on the front of a West Eighty-third street synagogue, directly across Central Park from the German section of the city.

A general police order was issued immediately directing police in all precincts to keep close watch on synagogues to guard against vandalism.

Today's hoodlumism was the tenth directed against the Eighty-third street house of worship in the last three years, according to Herbert Werner, superintendent of the building. Chalk, instead of paint, had been used previously.

The incident came on the eve of an anti-Nazi mass meeting to be held by the American Jewish Congress and the Jewish labor committee in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Lewis to Speak.

John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA Administrator, headed a long list of speakers who will give their views on Hitlerism.

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, whose recent attack on Adolf Hitler was the initial incident leading to serious exchanges last week between the German and American governments and various repercussions in this city, is expected by some organizers of the meeting to make an unannounced appearance.

No formal invitation to speak was extended him because of his position in the controversy and no mention of his name is made in advance publicity on the meeting.

Dr. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community Church here, will present a resolution for adoption described in the advance publicity as "reflecting the views of American public opinion on how the virus of Hitlerism can be isolated."

Dr. Wise to Presiue.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, will preside. Other listed speakers are Dr. Henry N. MacCracken, president of Vassar College; Erika Mann, daughter of Thomas Mann, German Nobel prize winner; Dr. Frank Bohn, economist and son-in-law of Secretary of Commerce Roper, and B. Charney Vladeck, chairman of the Jewish Labor Committee.

Listed among sponsors are Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago attorney; Sydney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; President Frank Kingdon of the University of Newark, and Prof. Arthur O. Lovejoy of Johns Hopkins.

Fritz Kuhn, head of the Amerika-Deutscher Volksbund, popularly known as "The American Nazis," who denied charges by Representative Dickstein of New York that his organization is un-American, is expected to arrive here tomorrow or Tuesday from his Detroit headquarters.

Demonstration Planned.

On Tuesday night the German-American League for Culture, a rival German-American organization, plans a demonstration in front of the New York quarters of the Volksbund. Eugene F. Grigot, officer of the league, said this question would be posed to Kuhn's followers:

"How can any American of German origin live up to his oath of allegiance to Uncle Sam and raise his arm in Hitler fashion at the same time without being a perjurer of the worst sort?"

U. S. to Ignore Virgin Islands' Rum Festival

Natives Plan Celebration for First Shipment Since Prohibition.

By the Associated Press.

The United States Government has adopted an attitude of paternal aloofness toward the Virgin Islands' "prohibition emancipation festival," set for around April 1.

Gov. Lawrence Cramer said the celebration, which will bid bon voyage to the first shipload of Government-made rum to leave for the United States, will be informal and unofficial.

This policy is in line with careful phraseology on the bottle label. The sticker says "Government House Rum" in big letters, but the name of the United States Government is not apparent.

When the United States paid Denmark $25,000,000 for the Virgin Islands back in 1917 the natives had been making a brand—Cruzian rum—for some 200 years. It was a European favorite and was esteemed in the West Indies, where the residents fancy themselves as expert rum distillers.

With the coming of national prohibition the islanders were told to stop making rum.

It took some patience and some jailing, but the islanders did quit. Jungle grew over the cane fields. Rust ate into the distilleries. Machinery stood idle—so did the natives.

Years passed and prohibition was repealed. Private capital, harried by depression, could not get interested. The Government stepped in again and set up a Virgin Islands Government Corporation, intended to rehabilitate the people by putting them to making rum. Secretary Ickes is chairman and Boyd Brown, a former vice governor, is president.

"Make rum? No sir," they answered. "You'll put us in jail."

Patience, however, prevailed. Now there are some 1,500 at work in making rum for the Government. Gov. Cramer declares business has revived and adds that there is today no unemployment among the 15,000 people on St. Croix.

A half million gallons are on hand there and a shipment of 50,000 cases is due in New York around April 4. A New York firm has distribution rights and has said it expects to sell 150,000 cases annually.

Ruth Selwyn Asks Divorce.

Los Angeles, March 14 (AP).—Ruth Selwyn, former actress, filed suit for divorce from Edgar Selwyn film producer and writer, yesterday. Known on the stage as Ruth Wilcox, Mrs. Selwyn charged cruelty and desertion. They were married in New York in 1926 and separated March 3, 1936.

Gigantic Study Of War Written In 152 Tomes

Completion Announced by Dr. Shotwell; 35 War Leaders Aided Work.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 14.—The completion of a work of epic proportions—a 152-volume "Social and Economic History of the World War"—was announced today by Dr. James T. Shotwell in behalf of his many collaborators.

The almost incredibly vast project, said Dr. Shotwell, director of the Division of Economics and History of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, was begun in 1914 and among its authors and editors were 35 war-time Cabinet members.

Within the covers of the great book, he said, were data which, if read and understood would be a preventive of war, adding the "final lesson" of the last great conflict was that "no nation is safe as long as this technique of war is practiced by great nations * * * that modern war is as contagious as the plage."

In Many Languages.

More than 200,000 individual volumes of the series have been printed in the original languages in which they were written—English Italian, French, German, Norwegian, Swedish, Danish, Czech and Hungarian. A series on Russia published in English was declared to have been written by persons formerly in high place in the Czarist government.

The history was suggested by the late Elihu Root and the work was laid aside temporarily when it became apparent the war would be prolonged. After the Versailles Treaty Dr. Shotwell, who had been chairman of the division of history of the American Delegation to the Peace Conference, remained in Europe some six years to appoint editors and set up editorial boards in 12 countries.

Among those planning the work, said Dr. Shotwell, were Gustav Bauer, former chancellor of Germany; President Masaryk of Czechoslovakia; Prof. Max Sering, head of the technical economic commission of the German war office; M. Charles Rist, formerly vice governor of the Bank of France; Baron Sakatani, former minister of finance of Japan, and Sir William Beveridge, director of the London School of Economics.

Based on Documents.

The history was written on the basis of war-time documents, and the number of these produced by the war, he said, would reach 200 miles if packed side by side.

Emphasis is laid upon the national problems of the countries involved, and the war-time social and economic life of the neutrals is pictured as substantially resembling that of the belligerents.

Crew Sailing Flaming Ship For Honolulu

Blaze Nearing Oil Cargo; U. S. Coast Guard Stands by Periled Vessel.

By the United Press.

Honolulu, March 14.—Standing on decks under which flames were approaching a cargo of oil, the crew of the British ship Silverlarch steered her for Pearl Harbor today, gambling that they could control the fire and save the vessel.

Passengers of the Silverlarch were safe aboard the United States cruiser Louisville, which raced 350 miles in less than 12 hours to come alongside and take aboard the occupants of lifeboats.

The United States Coast Guard cutter Roger B. Taney bobbed along beside the Silverlarch and will escort her all the way to Pearl Harbor. The Louisville is due here tonight; the Silverlarch and Taney, making slower time, are not expected before tomorrow or Tuesday.

Aboard the Louisville are the following passengers who were placed in lifeboats as soon as the Silverlarch fire broke out:

Dr. A. T. Wilson, Cincinnati; Mrs. Katherine Grenfell, Washington, D. C.; Miss Helen Weller and Mrs. Michael Weller, Stroudsburg, Pa.; I. C. Lewis, Barrington, R. I.; Harry Dobert, Miss Gladys Norris and G. N. Camp, all of New York City.

Capt. F. H. Henderson of the Silverlarch believed the fire was under control, but the freighter made slow progress and the Taney hovered near, ready for intsant action.

Dead Fish Get Revenge.

Columbia, Mo., March 14 (U.P.).—Research of Dr. M. M. Ellis, University of Missouri physiologist, today showed fish killed by sportsmen along Montana streams have been avenging themselves. The fish eat insects which have fed on vegetation bearing deposits of arsenic from smelting operations of the region. Soprtsmen who sat their catches have suffered from arsenical poisoning.

Third Year Is Called Worst for Marriage

Seattle, March 14 (AP).—The first ten years of married life are the most difficult—and the third year is the worst of all—Divorce Proctor Evangeline Starr stated in her annual report to Prosecutor B. Gray Warner today.

She said her statistics indicated husbands' fondness for liquor is the principal cause of divorce.

British Court Gives Edward's Smart Friends Cold Shoulder

By the Associated Press.

London, March 14.—Three months of a new reign have made it clear to Great Britain that what its critics termed the smart international set—the fashionable group denounced by the Archbishop of Canterbury—is no longer welcomed by the British court.

George VI has turned the clock back, at least socially, to the days of his father.

The smart set that surrounded Edward VIII during his brief reign, called by the archbishop "alien to the best instincts and traditions" of Britain, is becoming reconciled to the fact it no longer has entree to the British court.

Instead of the internationalists, the same small circle that moved around the King and Queen when, as Duke and Duchess of York, they lived at 145 Piccadilly are now intimates of the empire's rulers. Most of the favored friends are members of English and Scottish noble families.

The new King has received and talked with countless subjects since his accession, but the business of kingship makes difficult the formation of personal friendships. In his youth, George VI was handicapped, by stuttering and shyness, from making the many friends his elder brother gathered about him.

Probably his closest friend now is Wing Commander Sir Louis Greig, gentleman usher at the court, at whose home his majesty stayed as an undergraduate at Cambridge University.

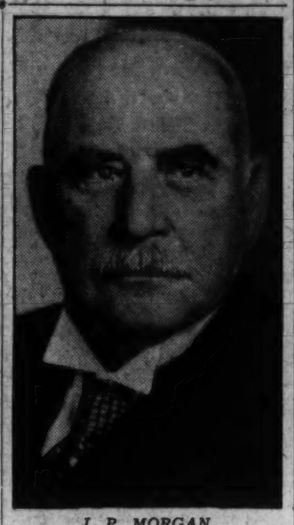
With Sir Louis, the King once entered the All-England tennis championships at Wimbledon in pursuit of his favorite sport. Now the Buckingham Palace hard courts are being prepared for use of His Majesty and his friend.

Another friend, who also has known the King since his youth, is Rear Admiral Sir Basil Brooke, one of the four grooms-in-waiting and scheduled to be appointed treasurer to the Queen. Sir Basil instructed both Edward VIII and George VI in the arts of seamanship when they were cadets at the Royal Naval College at Osborne on the Isle of Wight.



J. P. MORGAN, sure of a welcome.

Several of the King's close friends are men of his father's generation, and court circles say that Baron Clive Wigram, who advised George V throughout his reign, is the most powerful figure at court today. Baron Wigram was recalled from retirement to act as permanent Lord-in-Waiting and principal adviser to the King.

The portly, jovial Earl of Derby, who has enjoyed the friendship of both Georges, will be host to their Majesties when they visit the Grand National at Aintree March 19.

Few Americans are numbered in court circles, but it is expected J. Pierpont Morgan, who frequently entertained the former Duke and Duchess of York in Scotland, will be sure of a welcome when he next visits London.

One of Edward's innovations, however, has been maintained by his brother, who also likes to slip away from the formalities of Buckingham Palace for quiet week-ends. Their Majesties often go to the royal lodge in Windsor Park to entertain their closest friends, as Edward entertained informally at Fort Belvedere.

Paris Charges Hitler Attempt To Sink League

By the Associated Press.

Paris, March 14.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, in his security pact note to London, proposed a scheme whereby Britain and Italy would be substituted for the council of the League of Nations in designating an aggressor, French officials charged tonight.

The note also called for new promises by France and Germany not to go to war against each other, the officials said.

They said "France is willing, but this is insufficient to meet the needs." They declared they interpreted the purported proposal as a virtual scuttling of the League of Nations.

In Locarno Treaty.

Such mutual promises were embodied in the old Locarno Treaty which was nullified when German troops marched back into the Rhineland last year.

The officials said the German note, which they declared was almost identical with that of Italy, would paralyze the French mutual assistance system and leave Premier Mussolini of Italy the final word since, according to Hitler's purported plan, both Britain and Italy would have to agree on an aggressor in case of conflict.

Thus, officials pointed out, France's hands could be tied in the case of German-Polish, German-Czechoslovakian, or German-Russian conflict, because under present treaties France can legally aid her friends only when they are attacked.

New Plan Milder.

The reported plan carries no guarantee for Britain's security but asks that Britain guarantee security to Belgium, France and Germany. It was said to be milder regarding the Franco-Russian pact than the previous German viewpoint, which regarded European peace agreements as impossible unless that pact were canceled.

Officials predicted a five-power conference in London after the coronation in May of King George VI, possibly with a preliminary one before then to act on Belgium's demands that she be relieved of military obligations now binding her to France and Britain. The powers participating in the conference, it was said, would be Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Belgium.

(Germany's answer to Great Britain's proposal for a new western Europe security pact was handed Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in London yesterday. An Italian note, replying to the British suggestion, also was received.)

'Lovely Time' Reported in De Luxe Strike

Radio, Music and Dancing Entertain 'Sit-Downers' in Baltimore.

Baltimore, March 14 (AP).—The de luxe sit-down strikers at the Roberts Dress Co. here are "having a wonderful time," their chairman, Miss Ruth Murray, reported today.

"Everything is lovely," said Miss Murray—"Radio, plenty of music and dancing. Then, we have these comfortable beach chairs and cushions to sleep on. The union sent us them."

"We'll stick it out all right, until we get what we want," she continued. "You can count on that."

The chairman announced she would go to New York tomorrow for a conference between representatives of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union and an association representing the dress company in an effort to end the strike.

The union claims the Roberts Company is operating two non-union shops and called the strike in protest. Approximately 75 workers are employed at the shop here.

Frank G. Shattuck Dies.

New York, March 14 (AP).—Frank G. Shattuck, 76, co-founder of a chain of restaurant and confectionery stores, died today. Shattuck was chairman of the board of Frank G. Shattuck Co., which operates 43 "Schrafft's" stores in New York and other Eastern cities.

Educator Says Smart Youngster Now Is Nation's Problem Child

Middlesex Headmaster Suggests Classes That Do Not Teach Single Fact; Urges Revision of Civics Study.

Today's problem child is not the dull boy who can't learn his lessons, but the smart youngster who shines in all his recitations.

And Headmaster Frederick Winsor, of Middlesex "Prep" School, Concord, Mass., proposed at a visit here yesterday that there be classes "that don't teach the pupils a single fact."

"What we need is courses in just thinking—where boys who have more facts than they know what to do with can look a little bit at the "whys" of those facts," he declared.

Middlesex School, which specializes in preparing junior and senior high school youths for college (principally Harvard) "just has to do something for its boys who get along fast," said its administrator, explaining that what was good for the quick pupils might also be good for the slow.

The man who, incidentally, founded Baltimore's Gilman School, the first country day school in the United States, said he would start out by revising the study of civics.

Outlines Theories.

"I don't see why we should spend so much time teaching youngsters how to work a balloting machine. They can learn that in a few minutes from any ward worker," he said.

"I think it would be better to discuss with them the subject of the ethics of office holding. Wouldn't it be well for them to develop some ideas about the morality of accepting 'favors'? The honest mayor of a great city once said that in his first year of office opportunities of gain were offered to him which amounted to a total of $50,000. Nothing illegal was involved. No bribery; only corruption."

Winsor said he thought pupils ought to consider whether it was "ridiculous sensitivity which made the mayor turn down the offers, or whether it was "simply a necessary and proper standard of ethics."

Wants Thinkers.

"No; I wouldn't advance any conclusions, if I were a teacher," the headmaster added. "In the District, you have a 'red' rider. Don't forget that in Massachusetts teachers must take oaths of allegiance. No; I wouldn't take any chances. But a teacher certainly can allow her pupils to discuss both sides of a question.

"Now, take the Supreme Court issue. It's a most opportune time for discussing our famous system of checks and balances in which we have all, until very recently, taken so much pride. But I wouldn't want to offer any opinions myself."

Part of his plans for developing better thinking in school is the setting up of prize scholarships designed to draw to Middlesex the Nation's best school thinkers. Winsor has just been on an Eastern speaking tour to stimulate interest in the school's second competition in April. Middlesex, he insisted, wants good scholars and good all-around boys—but it wants most of all "good thinkers."

Mexico Votes $277,500 To Aid 2,500 Farmers

Mexico City, March 14 (AP).—A propaganda department bulletin today announced the National Bank of Communal Farm Credit had appropriated a million pesos (approximately $277,500) to finance collective farming near Mexicali, in Lower California.

The program calls for 2,500 peasants to obtain land, individual farmers receiving a minimum of 50 acres, and communal groups according to their needs.

NLRB Orders Rand to Rehire 4,000 Strikers

Drastic Ruling Denounces Company's Policy on Labor.

the case provides a "deeper insight into the mechanics of strikebreaking" and described what it termed the "ruthless methods" to break the strike of some 6,000 workers, a strike that was marked by extreme bitterness and violence.

Strong language marked the board's 100-page decision throughout. It said:

"From the thousands of pages of testimony in this proceeding, there may be distilled two very plain facts: The unwavering refusal of the respondent (Remington-Rand) to bargain collectively with its employes and the cold, deliberate ruthlessness with which it fought the strike which its refusal to bargain had precipitated."

The board said that if the provisions of the Wagner national labor relations act "ever required justification, one need go no further than the facts in this case." It added:

"Over 6,000 employes, with their families and dependents, are subjected to the miseries of a prolonged strike, the people of six communities experience the economic hardships that inevitably result when an accustomed source of income is suddenly withdrawn, these same communities are turned into warring camps and unreasoning hatreds are created that lead to abuses alien to a sane civilization—all because the respondent refused to recognize the rights of 6,000 employes. * * *

Say "Spies" Were Used.

"In the language of the average person, the respondent, through Rand, its president, has exhibited a callous, imperturbable disregard of the rights of its employes that is medieval in its assumption of power over the lives of men and shocking in its concept of the status of the modern industrial worker."

"Spies were planted in the various towns. The company attempted to bribe union leaders and to influence public officials. Scenes of disorder and violence, to be described to the public as riots, were staged so that they could serve as the basis for injunctions, requests for police protection and 'law and order' tirades in the press.

"In the planning of these disorders, the respondent exhibited the small value it placed on human life, for with evenhandedness it stood willing to sacrifice the lives of the men whom it hired to break the strike as well as those of the strikers."

The board also said the efforts of Government mediators were "predestined to failure," because of that "unyielding resolve to fight the strike rather than to compromise ever so little through the concession of a conference."

Back Pay Ordered.

The board described employment by the company of Pearl Borgoff, "King of Strikebreakers;" the Burns Detective Agency, Foster's Industrial and Detective Bureau, and "Crying Nat" Shaw, "Prince of Provocateurs," and said the company, "with their assistance and the aid of a skillful publicity expert, organized and carried out a campaign to break the strike."

In addition to re-employment of the strikers and their transportation, with their families, to new jobs, the board ordered the company to withdraw recognition from the Ilion (N. Y.) Remington-Rand Employes Association and the Middletown Remington-Rand Employes Association, so-called "company unions." The District Council, Office Equipment Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, is to have sole bargaining rights for production and maintenance employes in the plants at Ilion, Tonawanda, Syracuse and Elmira, N. Y., and Middleton, Conn., and Marietta, Ohio. Employes discharged because of union activity were ordered restored to duty with back pay.

The company is expected to resist the board's orders in the courts. It maintains the strike is over, and, in advising Secretary Perkins that Rand would be here Thursday for her conference, wired:

"You will be interested in knowing in advance that the company's plants are operating at 100 per cent capacity, under collective bargaining with provisions for arbitration of differences over wages and hours."

Contract to Be Reconsidered.

Regarding the protest over granting Remington Rand the Social Security Board contract, Altmeyer told The Associated Press that Frey was "correct in his understanding that it is the policy of the Social Security Board to avoid making purchases from the Remington Rand Co. so long as it engages in practices" charged by the labor board.

"As regards the contract for photographic records," he said, "the Social Security Board was advised by its technicians and its lawyers that under Federal regulations governing purchases it had no other choice in the matter.

"However, the Social Security Board has directed that the entire question be reconsidered for purposes of determining whether any other course is now open to the board."

Meanwhile, the Senate Civil Liberties Committee announced it would resume hearings Wednesday with an inquiry into labor disputes in Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. plants. Investigators who have conducted a long study of strikebreaking and labor espionage, said they would call witnesses from Goodyear plants in Akron, Ohio, and Gadsden, Ala.

Girl Strikers Entertain Beaux In Doorways of 5-and-10 Stores

By the United Press.

New York, March 14.—Love came into the lives of sit-down strikers today. Handicaps were severe because the lovemaking had to be done in the doorways of 5-and-10-cent stores under the eyes of policemen, who fanned off the more persistent sweeties with their nightsticks.

The place was not exactly private, since scores of citizens collected in each doorway and listened to all that went on. And the tetes-a-tete were further complicated by the presence of a glass door between the participants.

But fair weather or foul, it was love, and the $12-a-week shop girls who have been sitting on their rights since Saturday said it helped tide over the long Sunday afternoon.

It also fortified them to continue their sit-down strike to have their wages upped to $20 a week, with time and a half for overtime and a 40-hour week.

The path of true love was made rougher by the unexpected failure of telephone service. This was due to too many nickels being dropped in the boxes as the girls rushed to explain to their boy friends why they failed to keep dates.

A man from the telephone company arrived to fix them, but the police figured he was just another boy friend trying to keep a date, or trying to make one, and hazed him off.

The girls have a cheer leader who leads them in songs, makes speeches and every now and then enforces setting-up exercises by calling for "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Finances Discussed By Windsor, Ex-Aide

Vienna, March 14 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor's financial future and marriage plans were understood authoritatively to have been under discussion at Enzesfeld Castle today.

The former King Edward VII received Sir Godfrey Thomas, formerly his private secretary and now serving King George VI in the same capacity. Sir Godfrey was believed to have submitted to the Duke new financial provisions for the royal family. He also was understood to have heard from the former King his plans for early marriage to Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

Three Die in Vermont Apartment House Fire

Brattleboro, Vt., March 14 (AP).—Fire swept a four-story frame apartment building today, taking lives of three men. Fire Chief Henry E. Whitney, jr., said he believed a lodger, smoking in one of the apartments, caused the blaze.

Victims were Ernest Cloutier, 20, hotel janitor, and two men tentatively identified as Charles Frost, fireman, who lived in the building, and Dan Bement. Cloutier died in a hospital of severe burns. Charred bodies of the other two victims were found in the ruins.

Boy, 11, Kills Another Trying to 'Scare' Him

Redlands, Calif., March 14 (AP).—Police Chief W. H. Morrison said yesterday he had a confession from James Simmons, 11, that he killed Robert Lopez, 8, during an attempt to "scare" him.

The Lopez boy was shot in the back as he rode his bicycle past the Simmons home yesterday. Morrison said the Simmons boy told him he stepped to the back door, aimed his older brother's .22 caliber rifle ahead of Lopez and fired. Neither boy knew the other.

Drunken Motorist Glad Police Got Him

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chambersburg, Pa., March 14. Telling District Attorney J. Glenn Benedict he was "awfully glad the officer got me before I killed myself or somebody else," Thomas Philips, of Frederick, Md., was returned to the Franklin County Jail Saturday after pleading guilty before Judge Watson Davison to a charge of drunken driving. Sentence was deferred.

Philips was arrested by the highway patrol after his car had crowded several others, including the officer's, on the Middleburg road, near here.

Children's Festival Scheduled for May 8

The Community Center's third Children's Festival Circus will be staged the afternoon of May 8 in Central High School stadium, Mrs. E. K. Peoples, director announced yesterday.

Plans already are underway for the participating of 2,000 school boys and girls. More than 10,000 adults and children are expected to be on hand for the show.

Son of Slain Archduke Is Loser in Vienna Suit

Vienna, March 14 (AP).—Archduke Maximilian von Hohenberg, son of the assassinated Franz Ferdinand, was ordered by a court yesterday to pay 320 schillings (about $50) a month to Franz Ferdinand Hahn, who says he is an illegitimate son of the slain archduke.

Franz Ferdinand's assassination at Sarajevo on June 28, 1914, was the spark which set off the World War.

Autoist Killed As Heavy Snow Slows Traffic

wheels were reported as cars skidded into curbstones. Fenders were knicked, and hunningboards and headlights cracked in minor collisions.

The United States Weather Bureau reported 2¼ inches of snow fell. Heavy slush formed in downtown streets as the temperature hung at 32 degrees, the freezing mark.

A drop to 28 degrees was predicted for this morning. Today will be cloudy, with fair weather and rising temperature forecast for tomorrow.

Three persons received minor cuts and bruises in a collision at Eleventh and H streets northeast. At Casualty Hospital they were identified as Nellie Beyers, 67, 4621 Connecticut avenue northwest; Maude Callahan, 37, of 2709 Twelfth street northeast, and Milton E. Davis, 29, of 803 North Capitol street.

Police said one of the cars was operated by Davis while William H. Callahan, 37, of the Twelfth street address, was operating the second machine. No arrests were made.

Knocked down by an automobile in the 1300 block H street northwest, Francis Hall, 16, Bethesda, Md., received brush burns and cuts. He was taken to Emergency Hospital by Berthald N. Colle, 18, of 3200 Rittenhouse street northwest, driver of the car.

Pearl Carter, colored, 26, of 225 Fourth street southwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital for lacerations and bruises after she was struck by an automobile near her home. Police said A. D. Brodovsky, of Waco, Tex., was driving the automobile. He was not held.

Preston E. Collins, 26, of 3224 Wisconsin avenue northwest, was charged with driving while intoxicated early yesterday after he knocked down George W. St. John, 54, of 810 Fifth street northwest, at Ninth street and Mount Vernon place northwest.

Police reports said Collins was making a left turn into Ninth street when he struck the pedestrian. St. John was taken to George Washington University Hospital and treated for cuts of the face.

Student Is Injured.

An automobile skidding into a street car on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard near Beltsville, Md., brought severe face cuts to Robert L. Nezbed, 19, of Baltimore, a student at the University of Maryland. Nezbed, police said, was riding with Rudolph L. May, 233 Douglas street northeast, who escaped injury. Nezbed was taken to a physician by the Bladensburg Fire Rescue Squad and later removed to the university infirmary.

Snow and sleet that blanketed highways and covered windshields brought traffic virtually to a standstill in upper Montgomery County and kept automobiles moving at a snail's pace in suburban towns.

Snow plows were pressed into service on all arterial highways but were handicapped by films of freezing sleet. State police made hourly radio broadcasts warning motorists to stay indoors if possible.

Murphy Calls Strike Parley; 90,000 Idle

Will Meet 4 Michigan Prosecutors; 130,000 Out in Nation.

By the Associated Press.

Michigan's Gov. Frank Murphy strove through the week-end to find a way out of labor difficulties which kept 90,000 wage earners idle in that State—about two-thirds of the strike idle in the Nation.

The Governor called prosecutors in four industrial counties to meet with him today at the capital, Lansing, to discuss problems growing out of strikes. He planned to meet Wednesday with his newly formed committee of 20 to study a comprehensive program for dealing with the whole subject of labor disputes.

There were more than 130,000 persons out of work in some 80 strikes in a score of States. Most of the disputes were minor.

The Chrysler strike, keeping about 55,000 idle in Detroit and an additional 7,000 in Indiana and California, was the giant among labor disputes.

Behind it ranked the Firestone strike at Akron, Ohio, with 11,500 idle; the Hudson strike in Detroit, with 10,000 out of work, and the Berks County (Pa.) hosiery mills deadlock, keeping about 8,500 from their jobs.

A crisis neared in the Chrysler stalemate. Circuit Judge Allan Campbell was to give his decision today at Detroit in the corporation's plea for an injunction to oust about 5,000 "sit-down" strikers from eight plants. Negotiations between corporation and union officials also were to be resumed.

Store Strike Ended.

The General Motors strike, which at its height kept about 125,000 idle, was ended formally yesterday with the signing of the final agreement. An agreement by which production had been resumed was reached February 11, but the details of settlement had been left to a negotiating group that met for nearly a month.

Gov. Murphy announced at Detroit the end of a strike which had closed one of Detroit's largest department stores for several days.

The Governor conferred informally yesterday on his plans for "a program of action acceptable to all elements in labor disputes."

A conference was to resume at Pittsburgh today to further the agreement between the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation and the steel workers organizing committee, union group affiliated with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Consideration of additional demands from the union and adjustment of "inequalities" in pay schedules will occupy the conferees.

Wage boosts aggregating more than $100,000,000 annually have been granted about 450,000 steel workers in the last two weeks.

C. I. O. Enters Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, March 14 (AP).—The Committee for Industrial Organization carried its fight with the American Federation of Labor into Wisconsin today and absorbed the federation's industrial union at the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co.

The union, claiming a membership of 5,000 of the company's 7,000 employes, voted unanimously to dissolve the federation charter and affiliate with the United Automobile Workers of America, a C. I. O. unit that seceded from the federation.

Ed Hall, international vice president of the auto workers, said at the meeting of Allis-Chalmers unionists "the reactionary bosses are trying to sabotage industrial unionism." He urged all craft unionists in mass production industry to enter industrial unions.

Jerusalem, March 14 (AP)—North Palestine's rising tide of terrorism claimed more victims today when three Jewish colonists were shot and killed as they walked between Nazareth and the Sea of Galilee.

Striking Bakery Salesmen Plan To Picket Plant

Will Throw Line Around Alexandria Factory; Firm Fights Union.

Attempting to force the Alexandria Baking Co. to recognize Baking Salesmen's Union, No. 33, 25 striking truck driver-salesmen, at 4 a. m. today, will throw a picket line around the company's plant at 1400 Prince street, Alexandria.

In a statement to The Post, yesterday, Robert C. Lester, of 409 Shepard street, Chevy Chase, Md., business manager for the union, said a conference on the strike had been held with Alexandria city officials.

"We will proceed cautiously and circumspectly," said Lester, "in law-abiding picketing. Nothing outside the law will be tolerated."

Broke Bottles in Driveway.

On Friday, when the walkout occurred, strikers, trying to prevent trucks from going out on delivery, smashed milk bottles in the company's driveway. Since then two policemen have been assigned to guard the plant against further outbreak.

Upon being told yesterday that a picket line would form, the factory management declared itself absolutely opposed to a union contract.

"We conduct our business in Virginia," said a company official, "we pay our taxes in Virginia, and we sell nothing in Washington. We refuse to be dictated to in the matter of business policy. Those workers who want to return to work on the former basis may do so."

The baking company's operations, it was learned yesterday, are continuing on a somewhat curtailed basis. Five bakers also are on strike.

While labor discontent in Alexandria was rapidly nearing a climax, negotiations here between the Hotel Men's Association and the Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance seemed on the way to peaceful settlement.

Though neither side would comment on the progress made to date, it was learned that the employes alliance has drawn up an agreement to be presented to the hotel men at the joint meeting tomorrow. No opposition to its terms is anticipated.

The two National Pants Co. pickets who were charged Saturday with assault after they tried to prevent two other workers from entering the factory at 408 First street southeast were released on $25 collateral. Booked at the Fifth Precinct police station as Vera Baluk and Virginia Mauch, both of 146 C street southeast, they will appear in Police Court today.

Fire Chief to Speak.

Chambersburg, Pa.—Fire Chief Ellis Wagner, of York, and officers of the Pennsylvania Firemen's Association, have been scheduled for addresses here Wednesday at a meeting of the Franklin County Firemen's Association.

Wolman to Speak On River Pollution

Abel Wolman, chairman of the Maryland State planning board, will deliver one of the principal talks and lead a section of the discussion at the conference on Potomac River pollution to be held Friday in the Chamber of Commerce Building, Connecticut avenue and H street northwest.

The conference, which has been called by the Washington Board of Trade, will also be addressed by Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the Maryland State department of health, and by Morton Wallerstein, chairman of the Virginia State planning commission.

John Remon, chairman of the Board of Trade's river and harbor improvement committee, is making all arrangements.

Unknown Species to Be Sought By Smithsonian in Caribbean

The Smithsonian Institution today announces it will conduct a shallow-sea expedition in the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean to obtain hitherto unknown species of animal and plant life. It will start from Clearwater, Fla., April 1.

Dr. Paul Bartsch, noted biologist of the institution's National Museum, will be in charge of the party. The project is being financed by Donald Roebling, of Clearwater, who will sail with the expedition in his specially equipped yacht, the Iorano.

It is planned to spend four months dredging off the southern coast of Cuba, around the Isle of Pines, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, the Cayman Islands, Jamaica and the Yucatan Banks.

The primary object will be to obtain as complete a collection as possible of the animal and plant life of the shallow waters of the area in question, which is a little-explored field, and it is likely that scores of hitherto unknown species will be brought to light.

In addition, however, Dr. Bartsch plans to conduct careful ecological studies, noting the habitat and associations of the various kinds of shallow-water animals and plants and the characters which adjustment to habitats may have produced.

Four years ago Dr. Bartsch was in charge of the scientific work of the Johnson-Smithsonian Deep-Sea Expedition which made large collections from great depths in the Puerto Rican Deep.

Sugar Tax Plan To Help Labor, Wallace Claims

By the United Press.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace yesterday defended the Administration's proposal for a three-quarters cent per pound excise tax on manufacture of sugar as a necessary social-labor measure as well as for revenue raising purposes.

In a prepared statement the Secretary said: "In addition to its advantages as a revenue producing measure, an excise tax on sugar is also advantageous as a means of assuring domestic producers an equitable income, of preventing child labor, of protecting the right of adult laborers to reasonable wages, and of facilitating the Administration of the quota system."

Hearings to Begin.

Meanwhile, members of the House sugar bloc prepared to begin hearings this week on a bill embodying the Administration's proposals, introduced in the House by Representative Marvin Jones (Democrat), of Texas, and in the Senate by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Democrat), Wyoming.

Secretary Wallace estimated the proposed excise tax would yield $100,000,000 annually without causing an increase in prices to consumers.

"It is estimated," the Secretary said, "that the excess of the total income from the proposed tax, over the total conditional payments to be made to domestic sugar producers, would be approximately $45,000,000 per annum.

"This would constitute an appreciable item of relief of the burden borne by taxpayers at the present time."

Growers' Loss Cited.

Wallace said that effect of the Supreme Court decision invalidating the sugar processing tax of 1934 and production adjustment payments resulted in losses to growers, laborers and taxpayers and a corresponding gain to domestic sugar processors and foreign producers.

"The loss of revenue to the Federal Government that would have been obtained from the former tax (which was a half-cent per pound) on foreign sugars now finds its way to foreign countries in an unanticipated increase in the price paid for imported sugars," the Secretary said. "The deficit that this represents in the income of the Treasury of the United States must be borne as an additional burden by American taxpayers."

Wallace concluded, saying, "the experience in administering the former sugar program has shown that the tax of half a cent per pound was too low a rate either to constitute an adequate source of revenue or to bring about the full social and economic advantages of such a tax."

Sextuplets Born at D. C. Hospital— To Mascot Kitty

'Help Wanted' Radio Program Will Continue

WJSV Will Co-operate With Community Chest in Aiding Needy.

Washington men and women who are in distress will continue to tell their story over the air this week. Encouraged by results in the first two weeks of broadcasting the "Help Wanted" Program, which depicts the plight of 3,000 employable persons who are without jobs, Station WJSV, co-operating with the Community Chest and the Board of Public Welfare, will continue the programs this week.

The purpose of the broadcasts is to bring home to Washington a problem affecting thousands of men and women and children who are without food, lack proper clothing and are facing eviction. Since the adults in these families are adjudged able to work, they are not eligible for aid from the public assistance division of the Board of Public Welfare.

The Community Chest, through its family agencies, is already helping more people than its budgeted funds should permit, and cannot do anything to help these needy persons directly. Officials of the Chest, however, have sought out the men and women who are telling their pitiful stories over the air.

Since the programs started some jobs have been obtained, but the number is small, compared to the number of "employables" out of work. First chance at available jobs is given to the person making the appeal on the program. Others are filled from the District of Columbia Employment Center, where thousands of men and women are registered, and where the name of each person who appears on these broadcasts is on file. The supply of jobs, however, is much too small to meet the demand.

The Employment Center carefully investigates the ability of every man and woman registered there, making sure that each can do the type of job that may be available.

The Jewish Social Service Agency has selected the men who will appear on the program tonight at 7:15.

Youth Admits 3 Murders.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Concert by the National Symphony Orchestra (Hans Kindler, coductor; Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, duo-piano soloists) in Constitution Hall Sunday afternoon. Program: Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor (Bach), Concerto in E flat for two pianos (K. P. E. Bach), Concerto in D minor for two pianos (Poulenc), "Le Repos de la Sainte Famille" from" L'Enfance du Christ" (Berlioz), "Mephisto" Waltz (Liszt).

Faithful patrons of the National Symphony Orchestra who braved sleet, snow and slush yesterday afternoon were repaid by a concert unusually interesting in at least two particulars: the presence of the popular and proficient duo-pianists, Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, and the sharp contrast between the types of music presented. The first half of the program was enjoyably spent in the company of two members of the Bach family, and the latter half with three musical eccentrics: Francis Poulenc, Hector Berlioz, and Ferenz Liszt.

Dr. Kindler has given us several times before the splendid Passacaglia and Fugue of Johann Sebastian Bach, but this is a work so magisterial in manner and so impressive in structure that no repetition can make it sound stale. That often-quoted and dubious statement that architecture is frozen music must have had its origin in Schelling's mind as an association of ideas stimulated by just such a composition as this. The performance, excellently proportioned in cumulative grandeur, aroused the auditors to an enthusiasm that did not wear itself out until Dr. Kindler and his men had made three standing acknowledgments.

Johann Sebastian's third son, Karl Philipp Emanuel Bach, illustrious at the court of Frederick the Great and later in the bourgeois society of Hamburg, was more of an urbane man of the world than his father. The difference in temperament was at once apparent in the E flat double concerto, played for the first time in Washington. This is music informed by a wholly secular spirit.

Considering its age, nearly 200 years, this concerto sounds remarkably modern, perhaps because the composer was an experimenter in his day. The ornamentation is, of course, somewhat baroque for our taste, but the ideas are fresh, spontaneous and even provocative. It has the classic precision, the formalities of balance and the polished contours that go with the late eighteenth century modes, but the motivation bespeaks a questing intelligence curious about untried combinations. And in the slow movement, gracious and serene, is manifest a poesy that proves that romanticism is a state of mind and not a chronological category.

Francis Poulenc's double concerto in D minor is as far removed from the courtliness of the Hamburg Bach as the distance in time. Impudent, saucy and impertinent, it is unflaggingly humorous and satiric. Of the half dozen composers foisted into publicity by a Franch newspaper critic as the "Group of Six," Poulenc has always shown the most definite trend toward what one may call a music-hall type of melodic invention. While sharing the harmonic acidity of his colleagues, he has kept his themes on the popular plane.

The excerpt for Berlioz' oratorio, "The Childhood of Christ," represents that usually turbulent composer in a nostalgic mood of tenderness and sentiment. For all its sweetness and religiosity, one cannot confirm the opinion of W. J. Turner, quoted by Edward N. Waters in the program note, that it is "One of the most exquisite pieces of music in existence." From its dulcet tranquility, the orchestra went on to close the concert with an impetuous and exciting performance of Liszt's "Mephisto" waltz, which is not as Satanic as its composer intended.

So far this year there have been 35 people killed in traffic accidents. This is almost twice the number that were killed during the same period last year. Most of these fatalities could be avoided if both the motorist and the pedestrian were careful to observe the existing traffic regulations.

BE SURE YOUR EYES ARE NOT AT FAULT

Sometimes a motorist fails to see a person step off the curb, or someone crossing the street fails to see an oncoming auto. To lessen the danger of constantly increasing accidents be sure that your vision is keen and accurate. Have Dr. George E. Dodson, the Registered Optometrist, thoroughly examine your eyes to make sure that your vision is accurate. Good vision is important whether you are driving a car or walking.

Col. Curtis, 64, Dies in Hospital Of Long Illness

Retired Army Officer Was Service Club Manager; Rites Tomorrow.

Col. Frank R. Curtis, U. S. A., retired, of 1661 Crescent place northwest, manager of the Army and Navy Club here, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital after an illness of several months. He was 64.

A native of Mount Vernon, N. Y., Col. Curtis volunteered for the War with Spain, joining the Forty-fourth Infantry in New York as a first lieutenant. The end of hostilities found his outfit at Chickamauga. Thereafter he obtained a commission in the Regular Army and went to the Philippines, where he saw considerable action in the insurrection.

Just prior to America's entry into the World War, Col. Curtis was detailed to the National Guard Bureau in the War Department. Here he performed valuable service. Once this country got in the war, Col. Curtis was detailed to the office of the chief signal officer. For his services in this office throughout the war he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

Col. Curtis was retired in 1920, but was kep on duty in the War Department for two more years, retiring definitely in 1922. Thereafter he became manager of the Army and Navy Club.

Col. Curtis is survived by his wife, the former Corinne Van Kirk, of McKeesport, Pa., and by his sister, Mrs. Eugene Delmer, of Los Angeles.

The body will rest today at Tabler's funeral establishment. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Fort Myer Chapel, and burial will be in Arlington Cemetery. Pallbearers will be Army and Navy friends of Col. Curtis.

Cupid Stages Raid On Airline Hostesses

Newark, N. J., March 14 (AP).—Cupid's arrows flew thick and fast into the ranks of airline stewardesses during the last week and proved so effective that six maids of one company alone decided to give up the skyways for love.

Officials of the line, working overtime to adjust flight assignment schedules at various stations between Newark and Los Angeles, were unable to explain Dan Cupid's sudden attack. Never before has he been so successful, they said, pointing out their record loss for a whole year previously was four.

Recluse Heiress, Disfigured From Blast, Dies at 71

New York, March 14 (AP).—Miss Amalia Pertinax Morosini died today. She was the last of the children of Giovanni Pertinax Morosini, who hitched his wagon to the fabulous star of Jay Gould and became a legendary Wall street figure, himself, in the last century.

Seventy-one years old, Miss Morosini seldom appeared in public, and because of her preference for retirement—her face was badly disfigured by a lamp explosion when she was a child—incurable romantics, fully informed about the gossipy escapades of her spirited sisters and brother Giovanni, jr., made her a legendary figure, too.

When her sister, Guilia, married a policeman named Werner and her other sister, Victoria, eloped with Schilling, the family coachman, persons wondered about the daughter who lived mostly alone in the mansion that Father Morosini's reputed fortune of $50,000,000 built at Riverdale, the Bronx, overlooking the Hudson.

But she was merely sensitive about her childhood misfortune and naturally shy, her niece and only survivor, Mrs. Mary Morosini Crabbe, said today.

Jail for Refusing Job.

Vienna, March 14 (U.P.).—The Tagblatt today published the story of a Budapest man threatened with jail for turning down a job. Prof. Emmerich Kemery-Nagy did not want to accept a lecturer's chair because it would hamper him in teaching his own theories privately to Rightist students. The authorities threatened to put him in a reformatory if he did not accept.

Nation's Greatest Airliner, to Carry 40, Nearly Ready

Los Angeles, March 14 (AP).—A 40-passenger super-airliner, larger than the giant clipper ships spanning the Pacific, is nearing completion at the Douglas plant in Santa Monica. It will carry nearly twice as many passengers as the largest transport now operating in America, 21.

Others, built to the same specifications, will enter regular service on five major transport lines next fall.

"It cost $1,000,000 to built this first super-airliner," President Donald Douglas said today. "On a production basis the new air giant will cost approximately $250,000."

The mammoth skyliner, the DC-R, is powered with four 1,250 horsepower motors, is capable of 237 miles an hour, weighs 30 tons, carries a maximum load of 10 tons, including 6,500 pounds of mail and express, has a wing spread of 148 feet, 3 inches, and is 97 feet long.

FOR GREATER FREEDOM FROM COLDS

Just do these 2 things:

To help PREVENT many colds
At the first sneeze or sniffle or irritation in the nose—quick!—put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. This specialized medication is expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in their early stages.
VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

To RELIEVE a cold sooner
Massage Vicks VapoRub briskly on the back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer over the chest. VapoRub's famous poultice-and-vapor action continues hour after hour. It loosens phlegm, eases your cough, relieves irritation, helps to break up local congestion.
VICKS VAPORUB

Sickness from Colds Cut In Half!

The two simple steps outlined above, together with a few sensible health rules, are the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. In the biggest colds-clinic ever held—with 17,353 people as subjects—Vicks Plan resulted in fewer colds and shorter colds. It cut sickness from colds more than half!

IT'S SWELL TO FEEL SWELL!

For Wholesome Smoking, Demand FRESH Cigarettes!

Less "crotchety" . . . They dubbed me "bad news" in the store; I was always so jittery. The change from a strong cigarette to bland and fresh Old Golds helped me a lot.
Ida Mae Cone (salesgirl), Kansas City, Mo.

I'm hot for a cool smoke . . . I stoke a blast furnace seven hours a day and I like to cool off with a cool smoke. The freshness of Old Golds makes 'em cool. That weather-proof package is the berries.
Raymond J. Stock (mill-worker), Pittsburgh, Pa.

YOU CAN'T BUY A STALE OLD GOLD

WHEN they're stale, the finest tobaccos in the world neither taste good . . . nor are good for you.

But that's nothing to worry about! For the cigarettes that contain the world's prize crop tobaccos are Double-Mellow Old Golds. And you can't buy a stale Old Gold!

That's because there's an EXTRA jacket of Cellophane on every package of Old Golds. Two jackets of finest moisture-proof Cellophane, instead of one, protect Old Golds from dampness, dryness, dust, and every other foe of cigarette enjoyment.

Thus, Old Gold's prize crop tobaccos are always in perfect smoking condition. Fresh and sweet-burning, they never develop those harsh, irritating qualities which characterize even slightly stale cigarettes.

After a long smoking day, Double-Mellow Old Golds leave your tongue free from bite, your throat free from scratch, and yourself free from "nerves."

You'll never go stale on fresh Old Golds!

P. LORILLARD COMPANY, Inc.
(Established 1760)

IT'S THE EXTRA JACKET!

Every pack of Double-Mellow OLD GOLDS is wrapped in TWO jackets—double Cellophane. That extra jacket keeps OLD GOLD in prime condition in any climate. You can't buy a stale OLD GOLD.

Eases high tension . . . A newspaper woman often smokes a lot to ease the nervous tension. But it doesn't always work, if the tobacco isn't fresh. That's where your double Cellophane package helps; it keeps O. Gs. fresh as today's headlines; gentle to the nerves.

● The letter reproduced here was sent today to the distributors and dealers of Chrysler Corporation.

TO THE DISTRIBUTORS AND DEALERS OF THE CHRYSLER CORPORATION:

DURING the afternoon of Monday, March 8, the C. I. O. Union, directed by persons who were not in our employ, with employes belonging to the Union, seized eight of this Corporation's principal plants in the Detroit area, including its general offices, and are still holding them. Our executives, plant managers and their staffs are being kept out by force.

The agents of the Union took over the plant gates and barricaded them.

They refused to let either the factory employes or office employes leave or enter the plant without their permission. In many cases, they took the company badges of the employes away from them. They did not permit employes to leave the plant unless they signed Union cards.

A military organization manned by this Union's agents was set up in the plants, and the company's plant protection men were ordered out of some buildings, leaving the Corporation's property wholly in possession of these Union agents.

Our mail trucks, carrying company mail from the post office to its offices, were stopped by this union's agents and delivery of mail obstructed.

The company consequently has been unable to carry on its business in its own offices. The company has set up offices elsewhere in Detroit. Its files and office records in the plants are in the possession of this Union.

As is well-known, there was no dispute over wages and working conditions of our 60,000 employes. Our rates of wages are substantially in excess of ninety cents an hour, and the weekly, monthly and annual earnings of our employes have been not only the highest in the history of the company but among the highest of all American industry.

This company has conducted its industrial relations by and in accordance with general acknowledged standards of fairness and equity, with the purpose of giving our employes the highest possible earnings and the best working conditions the prosperity of the business can afford. We have constantly negotiated with these people over a period of more than three years and at their request enterd into further negotiations with them on Wednesday, March 3. While these negotiations were going on, the agents of this Union seized the plants.

This Union is demanding a closed shop. They have stated that their demands mean one of three things: either an employe signs up with the Union; or he will be ostracized and subjected to intolerable intimidation and coercion, both in the shop and at home; or Union men will refuse to work with him. Under these conditions, however designated, it is impossible for us to make products of Chrysler quality and Chrysler price.

As citizens of your communities, as well as representatives of the Chrysler Corporation, it is important that you understand these plain facts. In our close relations with you, we believe that we should tell you frankly what our situation is, and we ask you for your understanding and cooperation. We are advising you of it so that you may conduct your affairs accordingly. We ask you to be patient with us in our attempt to do our office work in temporary offices without the records and files necessary for carrying on business in the normal way.

You will recognize that the capture of our plants in time of peace, and what is going on in the plants today, is a form of revolution which concerns not only Chrysler Corporation but concerns you and everybody.

New Films Are Given Advance Coast Reviews

Latest Releases Appraised Briefly Prior to Their Capital Showings.

By Henry Sutherland.

Hollywood, March 14 (U.P.).—Picketing the preview parade:

"HISTORY IS MADE AT NIGHT." (Walter Wanger). Well tailored melodrama, with Charles Boyer and Jean Arthur shooting the works to prevent Leo Carrillo's stealing another show. They barely succeed.

Surprisingly, the intriguing title fails to fit. A tale of international diplomacy or a romance of high finance might have been expected, but instead up pops a psychological triangle.

Psychopath No. 1 is Colin Clive as a shipping magnate whose insane jealousy drives his wife into the arms of Boyer, a Parisian head waiter, after which his maneuvers to win her back lead to murder, shipwreck and suicide.

Carrillo's part, as a self-nominated "greatest chef in the world," and ally of Boyer, gives him opportunity to put over his garbled English speciality in grand style.

Less skillfully handled, this might have been a sullen, morbid, and thoroughly nasty yarn. Much credit is due writers Graham Baker and Gene Towne, as well as to Director Frank Borzage.

"SING HIGH, SWING LOW." (Paramount.) Carole Lombard carols lamely, Fred MacMurray toots a sad trumpet, but both retain the nimble touch at wisecrack rallies in this latest reunion of the team.

The story, laid in Panama and New York, has Lombard making a night-club hero out of a ne'er-do-well soldier, then boosting him topside again from depths he tumbled when she pulled out the props.

MacMurray, who tootles the saxophone and squeezes the accordion passing well, had to learn trumpeting for this one. Lombard makes no pretense at being a singer, even in the story, and it's just as well. She wasn't cut out for a Gladys Swarthout.

Charles Butterworth has a solid comedy part, and Dorothy Lamour figures as a feminine menace. Best character role is that of Cecil Cunningham, who plays a tough old battle ax running a Panama dive.

"PRIVATE PROPERTY." (Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer). Film idol Robert Taylor and Jean Harlow, blonder than at last seen, do their specialties in a screen version of the flip H. M. Harwood comedy, "Man in Possession."

Taylor is the "man"—ne'er-do-well younger son of an English family—who moves in on Harlow, as a young American heiress, in the guise of a sheriff's officer to make sure she doesn't powder out with the furniture on a chattel claim. Meanwhile, Harlow and Reginald Owen, as Taylor's elder brother, are about to marry for the money neither actually has. It's pepped with bright dialogue.

MRS. ELY CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Short-sighted Bidding.

It is to be regretted that Bridge table conversation has become even more standardized than the bidding or the play. How often have we all heard the following inanity? "But partner" (this is said very plaintively) "I bid twice and I thought you'd go on." Usually, this very lame alibi is supposed to cover up the sort of bidding in which North indulged on the following hand.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ 10 ♡ J ◇ K J 9 6 3 ♣ A 10 8 7 3 2
♠ K J 5 4 ♡ A K Q 10 9 ◇ Q ♣ Q J 6	North West East South	♠ 9 6 3 2 ♡ 8 5 4 3 ◇ 10 7 ♣ K 5 4
	♠ A Q 8 7 ♡ 7 6 2 ◇ A 8 5 4 2 ♣ 9

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♡
3 ♣	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

It should be noted that South's opening bid of one spade on a four-card suit, rather than one diamond on his longer suit, was quite correct under the Principle of Preparedness. By this choice, South left the way clear to a two-diamond rebid over the two-club response that North might make.

North evidently felt that he was bidding his hand very strongly by overcalling West's two hearts with three clubs and later raising the diamond suit. In point of fact, however, North's second bid was ridiculously inadequate. In the light of South's two bids, a diamond game should have appeared as a certainty, with slam possibilities lurking under cover. This latter possibility made even a five-diamond bid by North inadequate. South with such a hand as the one actually held, which could produce twelve tricks without difficulty, would be unable to realize the distributional value of North's hand and would, therefore, promptly pass. Since neither four nor five diamonds would reflect his true potentialities, North should have grasped the only alternative of a bid in the opponents' suit to indicate that he was after a slam. Since he had failed to do this directly over the two-heart overcall, choosing to bid clubs instead, South should realize that his optimism, as expressed by the cue bid, developed only after North had heard about the diamonds. Thus the heart-bid at this stage would guarantee a splendid diamond fit. Since North had passed originally, the cue bid could not mislead South as to the honor-trick value of the North hand.

Had North bid three hearts in response to three diamonds, South, of course, could have bid only four diamonds. But then when North confirmed his intentions with a raise to five diamonds, South on the strength of his distribution alone, including his singleton club, could have contracted for the small slam.

On North's actual bidding, South was not to be censured for resting short of game. He simply could not see how he could collect eleven

Natural Color Photography Promises to Increase Its Hold on the Screen During the Year of 1937

Arthur W. Eddy, Writing in the Film Daily Year Book, Published Today, Points Out Growth in Favor of Chromatic Form of Celluloid Treatment; Local Film Magnates Flip All Over the Map; Miss Cansino Arrives in Town; Complete Musical Score Comes to Hand in Record Form—and Time.

THE year 1937 will see Hollywood still further color conscious, it is forecast by Arthur W. Eddy, associate editor of the Film Daily, writing in that valued publication's Year Book of the Motion Pictures, out today.

BELL.

"A minimum of 20 features, done entirely with this production element, is set for distribution," Mr. Eddy will say. "A substantial majority of them will be made in Technicolor, which continues as the process dominating the field from the standpoint of practical application.

"United Artists will be up in front with five productions. Grand National's program also provides for five, and Republic has four scheduled. Paramount is down on the list for two, 'Safari' and one other; Warner Brothers are planning to make two and Twentieth Century-Fox is distributing 'Ramona' and 'Wings of the Morning,' the last named from the production facilities of Robert T. Kane in England.

"Color-minded members of the industry now are anticipating the introduction of the Keller-Dorian process, which Paramount has developed in association with Eastman Kodak. After long experimentation, sponsors of this system are ready to apply it commercially."

This is all very heartening to one who has been a constant and unremitting advocate of natural color on the screen as another step forward in the cinema's effort to achieve a complete and convincing realism.

It has been our consistent view, and still is, that color should be as much an integral part of the motion picture's approach to the task of reproducing the world in which we live as camera angles, effective lighting and all of the other technical factors which enter into the fabrication of celluloid entertainment.

As has been remarked here so many times before, we do not live in a world of whites, blacks and grays, but in a kaleidoscopic universe in which are to be found all of the enchanting colors of the spectrum. The sooner color wholly supplants the present drab tones of the majority of films the better is what we always say.

A few days ago there came to hand a brief note from Joe Weil, director of exploitation for Universal Pictures, which bore these generous tidings: "Dear Nels: It is my pleasure to send you under separate cover an album of records of the hit tunes from 'Top of the Town.' The full beauty of the music is best appreciated when played on an electric phonograph. Sincerely yours (Signed), JOE WEIL."

The silver-wrapped parcel arrived yesterday and is so nicely done up that is has not as yet been opened. However, it may be remarked that the numbers recorded probably will turn out to be "Where Are You?" "That Foolish Feeling," "Top of the Town," "Jamboree," "Blame It on the Rhumba," "There Are No Two Ways About It," "Fireman Save My Child" and one other, the name of which escapes me at the moment. The music for these songs was written by Jimmy McHugh; lyrics by Harold Adamson.

From a profusely illustrated pamphlet setting forth the probable superiorities of this production, I judge that it will prove to be one of the smash musicals of the year. With Doris Nolan, George Murphy, Hugh Herbert, Gregory Ratoff, Gertrude Niesen, Ella Logan, Henry Armetta, Ray Mayer, Mischa Auer, The Three Sailors, Samuel S. Hinds, Richard Carle, Claude Gillingwater, Ernest Cossart, Joyce Compton, Gerald Oliver Smith, The Four Esquires and the original California Collegians in the cast, one wonders how the thing could be made to miss.

It is remarkable the way the motion-picture people move. A card from Sidney Lust, independent theater owner and film distributor, brings word that he and Mrs. Lust are in Miami, where they will attend the annual convention of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America. Bound on the same mission are Mr. and Mrs. Carter Barron and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur De Titta. In case you have forgotten—although I don't see how you could have—Mr. Barron is eastern division manager for Loew's, Inc., and Mr. De Titta, Washington manager for Fox Movietone News.

Others attending the convention from Washington include A. Julian Brylawski, "Doc" Herbst, veteran owner of the Circle Theater; Lou Bernheimer and Allen Backrach.

Last Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Morgan—he was former general manager of the Crandall interests—and Mr. and Mrs. Abe Lichtman arrived home from a trip to Honolulu. On Tuesday, "Rudy" Berger, local manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and Mrs. Berger returned from a cruise of the West Indies and the Panama Canal.

It's wonderful how wealthy these rich people are!

• • • •

I suspect that my erudite and esteemed—and apparently slightly nervous—confrere, Mr. Jay Carmody, is indulging a slight yen for hyperbole when he professes to have died a thousand deaths in the making of that newsreel shot for the opening of the Trans-Lux Theater. Mr. Carmody insists that there is murder in a microphone and that the camera's lenses are leering emblems of lethal destruction. I do not quite comprehend this point of view or the panic which it seems to induce in my colleague's sensitive nature. The thing seems to me to be no more ominous or complicated than making a telephone call. So what? So Mr. Carmody's "clip" turned out to be better than mine. Evidently you have to have "nerves" and temperament to be a successful screen actor.

Rita Cansino, one of the younger generation of that famous family of Spanish dancers, The Cansinos, arrived in Washington from Hollywood yesterday morning to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Hayworth, 4312 Fourteenth street. Miss Cansino, a former Washingtonian, is the niece of Jack Arnold, remembered with Myrt and Marge in their radio and stage appearances. He is now in Hollywood making pictures.

Miss Cansino was discovered by the film scouts, dancing in a Mexican night club several years ago, and since has appeared successfully in a long list of feature pictures. She has just been signed to a long-term contract by Columbia. So now you know.

Paul Whiteman, dean of the American school of modern music, who, with others, will share the podium with Hans Kindler at the impending concert of the National Symphony Orchestra, arrived in the Capital yesterday. He is tossing a cocktail party for the press and other kindred spirits at the Raleigh Hotel this afternoon at 5:30. Mr. Whiteman today also will hold a conference with Representative Dickstein on the matter of the Dickstein bill to bar aliens from the American theater.

"MONTE CARLO GIRLS." Independent Burlesque Association production in two acts and 27 scenes, featuring "Reds" Marshall and Edna Dee, supported by Tom Bundy, Hap Hiatt, Murray Leonard, Glenn Mason, Maurice & Maria, Dolores Dawn, Claire Stone, Boo LaVon and the Dancing Ensemble. Staged by James J. Lake. Reviewed Sunday Matinee by W. A. Whitney.

It is not in the least a gamble at the Gayety this week, with these "Monte Carlo Girls." Here is everything that could be desired, plus a number of novelties to add welcome zest to modern burlesque.

While that toddlingest toddler of them all, Edna (Ha-Cha) Dee, sizzles through her exhibition of intimate pulchritude in top form, and Reds Marshall, one of the wheel's hardest working, most enthusiastic and facile comics, works in fine fettle, adding his own inimitable touches of novel variation to the sketches, it is Maurice and Maria who, offering a strictly class act, steal the show.

Offering a unique adagio routine, with Maria doing an amazing number of acrobatic and contortionist feats while held aloft, the team at this one fell swoop established itself quite in a class of its own. A tap number, only fairly executed, is offered, and for a third there is a ballroom dance which is the personification of grace.

No less a hit is Glenn Mason, who presents on a "whitewashed" xylophone, a variety of songs, scoring particularly in a medley of best sellers of 1910-1923 vintages. He works hard and fast in turning out those loud and titillating melodies.

Dolores Dawn and Boo LaVan contribute their charms on the more revelatory portions of the program and Claire Stone warbles sweetly.

Rotund Hap Hiatt is the second comic, working effectively not only in association with Marshall, but also with Straightmen Murray Leonard and Tom Bundy. The dancing ensemble is commendable, too.

Post Ad-Writers will be glad to assist you in preparing a good, result-producing ad when you call National 4200.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, March 15.

Mutterings: How can Janet Gaynor leave a path strewn with broken hearts, and still maintain that sweet-girl stare? Wondering muse: When Ronald Colman's hair turns white, he will be a perfect replacement for Lewis Stone. Frantic urge: To wire Mary Astor, "The pen IS mightier than the sword." Imaginable hilarious evening: Refereeing a game of "Truth" between Mae West and Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Wonder if a star suffers humiliation, surprise or defeat when the $5,000-a-week option is not lifted?

JANET GAYNOR.

Diabolic thought: To whisper to Marion Davies, "The dress is cute, but don't you think you're a trifle old for ingenue parts?" Ambition: To be a child again, and carry Shirley Temple's books to school. Ode to mayhem: "But Miss MacDonald, do you think your voice is big enough for grand opera?" Growl: Why do producers continue to give Jane Withers the worst of it in casts, stories, direction? What a relief if Jean Parker were not quite so sweet all the time.

Maybe the weight Joan Crawford lost is the lipstick she no longer piles on. Height of something: Lee Tracy, after three brief months "on the wagon," wrote a national magazine article on the evil of liquor. Nervous itch: To rise in the theater during a Marlene Dietrich picture and shout: "Yes, you are beautiful; now ACT for a change!" Was there ever a star with an inferiority complex? Sigh: Now that Katharine Hepburn's new play has clicked, I can no longer tell her to go jump in "The Lake."

This is a town of gadget lovers. I mean, people here like knick-knacks around their homes. Dick Powell's secret room-behind-the-bookcase, for instance. Warren William's ship's cabin-above-the-bed, and that secret panel den where director John Ford hides away.

The most interesting rooms are those in the home of Dolores Del Rio. They are neither tricky nor secret; their novelty lies in arrangement. They are bedrooms set one above the other, and the sole means of intercommunication is by way of a trapdoor and ladder. Sort of a Romeo-Juliet hook-up, it looks like, and indeed that's what it is, because Dolores told me:

"Marriage sometimes becomes humdrum over the years. My husband and I have sought ways to maintain romance and thrill—and these two rooms are one of the ways."

I hope you will pardon me for one moment, while I call her aside and point out that she has a swell chance to go Mae West one better by inviting her husband to "come down and see me sometime."

When I visited Harpo Marx last week he was enjoying a good laugh. "We offered Jimmie Gleason $500 for the loan of his race horse for our picture," he explained, "and Jimmie said we could use it without charge if we'd just let it win. He thinks it'll be worth 500 to see his horse come in first, even in a movie." As I said, this conversation took place last week.

Today I met Harpo again. He was as down-in-the-mouth as his tonsils, and all because of the horse. "We saved $500 rent," he groaned, "but that hay burner is so accustomed to coming in last, it cost us $5,000 trying to get a shot of him winning."

Work Follows Deputy Even When Motoring

Delafield, Wis., March 14 (AP).—Wherever Deputy Sheriff Graham Garner goes work is sure to follow. Motoring to keep a social engagement recently, he arrested three men accused of stripping copper cables from an electric railway right of way.

Today he took another drive, just for fun. His suspicions aroused by a truck ahead of him, he arrested the driver. It was then he said he learned that much of the contents of the truck had been stolen from his own back yard.

Old Palestinian Palace Yields Egyptian Hoard

Chicago, March 14 (AP).—Dr. James A. Wilson, director of the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago, announced today a magnificent hoard of Egyptian gold had been discovered in a Palestinian palace of about 1400 B. C.

The discovery was reported by Gordon Loud, director of the Megiddo expedition of the institute in a cable received here Friday. Dr. Wilson said full details are still awaited, but that the cable told of Egyptian cosmetic jars and jewelry.

Songs Bring Raid.

Columbus, Ohio, March 14 (U.P.).—It wasn't that the chorus of a night club sang ribald songs. It was the subject of the songs that caused sheriff's deputies to arrest Esther Jacobs, the proprietor, and employes. The officers said the songs were built around the sheriff, the county prosecutor, and State officers who raided the place last week.

Trinity College Group to Head Patroness List

Mrs. McGovern and Others Included in Sponsors for Lectures.

Mrs. Peter John McGovern, president of the auxiliary board of Trinity College; Mrs. Joseph Leiter, Mme. Aranha and other members of the board are among the patronesses for the course of lectures on parliamentary procedure by Mrs. Agnes Newman which will be held at the college beginning today at 5 p. m. Mrs. Julian N. Friant is chairman of the committee in charge.

A dinner will be held by the District of Columbia Home Economics Association in connection with the fourth general program meeting at the Y. W. C. A. tonight at 6:15. Miss Ruth O'Brien, of the Bureau of Home Economics, will preside. The theme of the program will be "What Washington Consumers Are Doing and Might Do."

Dr. Jessie V. Coles, professor at the University of Missouri and author of "The Standardization of Consumers' Goods," will review the work of the principal consumer agencies—governmental and private.

Mr. Reign Hadsell, of the consumers' council of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, will tell of his work in teaching a course in consumer education for high school students in Hiram, Ohio.

Mrs. W. Putnam, of the Washington Consumers' Club, will tell of the co-operative buying program of that organization which has led to the recent formation of two consume. co-operatives in the District.

A representative of the homemakers' section of the association will report on the section's study of cotton fabrics with the assistance of the Bureau of Home Economics.

Mrs. Mary Ritter Beard, who will be the guest speaker at the Business and Professional Women's Club of the District of Columbia this evening to be held at the Washington Hotel, speaking recently of what is to be accomplished by the National Federation, said that women must think more clearly and objectively. They must study the "conditioning resources" of our country and the history of business enterprise in America.

A bazaar of nations is to be held in the Parish Hall of St. John's Church, Bethesda, on April 3. All organizations of the church are participating, and, in addition to the sale inside, there will be a Wild West show on the lawn.

The program for the meeting of the Roosevelt Chapter, Delphian Society, tomorrow will be led by Mrs. Finis Garrett. Topics for discussion will include:

"Chaucer's Literary Apprenticeship," Mrs. Lawson Moyer; "Canterbury Tales," Mrs. J. Ward Mankin; "Piers, the Plowman," Mrs. William T. Gill, jr.; "Petrarch, the First of the Humanists," Mrs. Edwin A. Halsey; "The Ascent," Mrs. Sam Hill; "To Posterity," Mrs. William S. Hammers; "Laura and the Sonnets," Miss Kathrine Heslip.

Current problems of government, recognized as important factors in "making democracy work effectively" are slated for emphasis in the meeting of the general council of the National League of Women Voters, to be held May 3-6 in Washington. Miss Marguerite M. Wells, president, will conduct the sessions at the Hotel Washington.

Program plans, which tentatively include a dinner, visits to the Supreme Court and to Congress, and talks by several Government officials, are being made by a committee headed by Mrs. Robert W. Taft of Cincinnati. Other members are Mrs. LaRue Brown, Boston; Mrs. George Gellhorn, St. Louis, and Miss Anna Lord Strauss, New York City.

Mrs. William Smedberg, president of the District of Columbia Chapter of the Army Relief Society, will hold the annual meeting of this branch at her residence, 1810 Wyoming avenue, tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock. The meeting is open to all who are interested.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, March 14.

WILLIE HOWARD—At the opera Wednesday night, Enzio Pinza did a take-off on your "Rigoletto" trick during a scene with Lily Pons in "Le Coq d'Or." His peeking and facial contortions convulsed the Met. audience . . . Charlie Chaplin—Jackie Coogan is holding up that broadcasting deal, because of a difference of $150. Coogan, the poor kid, only has a million bucks . . . Douglas Fairbanks—When Mary Pickford marries Buddy Rogers she'll probably accede to his request that they live on a ranch. Buddy likes the outdoor life—and they've agreed, for that purpose, to submit an offer to buy your ranch in California.

• • • •

BARBARA STANWYCK—If you're still wondering why Robert Taylor wasn't in his usual spot, watching you screen "This Is My Affair," you'll find him with the band making the recordings. Taylor, who once was a 'cello player, can't forget the urge . . . Theater Guild—Three Broadway agents, seeking to hire new talent, heard about your new play, "Storm Over Patsy," and sent telegrams of inquiry to the "Patsy" who has the title role. They received wires: "Come and see me—Patsy." When they arrived they learned that Patsy is a canine . . . John Nance Garner—Your niece, Peggy Anne Garner, has been signed by Warner Brothers.

• • • •

BOXING COMMISSION—For the first time in Broadway history, bouts will be staged in a night club. On Tuesday, formal application will be made for a license to hold fights at the Terrace Room of the New Yorker. The bouts will be conducted as part of Leon Belasco's Sunday nights there . . . S. S. Bremen—One of your officers is worrying about the mysterious disappearance of his naval cap. It was swiped by Dick Nesbit, and now adorns the study of his home . . . National Cash Register Co.—Your manager, Whimple, broke two dishes in his leap at the Stork Club last night—when he got the new hot seat there.

• • • •

WALTER HUSTON—Jay Faggen, who owns the Harlem Uproar House, yesterday concocted the idea of putting on a scene from "Othello" as part of the floor show at his sepia cafe. The Harlemite entertainers refused to go through with a stunt unless a white person was brought in to play the role of Othello, the Moor! . . . Marlene Dietrich—Whenever a reporter writes that your picture, "Garden of Allah," was a flop, the Selznick publicity offices immediately send him 500 clippings showing the gross receipts . . . B. F. Moss—A deal now pending calls for a permanent Ripley Odditorium stationed in your Criterion Theater.

• • • •

A. S. C. A. P.—The 250-lb. Mack Gordon and his partner, Harry Revel, now bill themselves in the trade papers as "Those Three Smart Boys" . . . Incidentally, during the trial of their "Without Word of Warning" plagiarism suit, they played a medley of their hit-tnues for the judge. When the courtroom onlookers applauded, Gordon & Revel arose and took a bow! . . . Mayor LaGuardia—Regarding the Nazi statement that Benjamin Franklin was anti-Semitic, Harry Hershfield points to Franklin's signature in the Declaration of Independence, and to the phrase therein "all men are created equal." "I didn't know till now," Hershfield said, "that Benjamin Franklin signed a paper without reading it."

• • • •

GEORGE WASHINGTON HILL—Did you know that a printed instruction sheet to the conductor of your "Hit Parade" program directs: "Be sure and pick hot numbers full of rhythm, full of shoulder shake, full of dance?" . . . Jean Harlow—If you still want to know why John Trent, of Paramount, was so interested in the Harry Campbell file—when both of you and Robert Taylor visited the Department of Justice—here's the reason: Trent's real name is Laverne Brown. He was a transport pilot until last year, when Schulberg signed him. His last flying job was to transport the captured Campbell from St Paul to the jail in Toledo.

• • • •

WILL HAYS—Al Boasberg is readying a Hollywood proclamation for July 3: "Tomorrow being a holiday, Republic Films will not make a picture all day" . . . Marc Connelly—Frank Sullivan is very much worried. When all of you began singing his old tunes last night, Sullivan shouted: "Ohmigod, I've gone into Floradora!" . . . Emily Post—Here's the '37 note in entertaining. This week's dinner party at the home of George S. Kaufman—who is one of Manhattan's most entertaining hosts—wound up in a crap game . . . Nat Holman—When you were hired to broadcast for the Shell program you were hired as an athlete. The program conductors received two shocks—first, when you spoke with a British accent, and the second when Rickenbacker, the war hero, got mike-fright!

YeggmenCrack Safe in Store, Get $600 Loot

Gang Believed to Be Amateurs; Sledge, Chisels Used on Strong Box.

Yeggmen entered Nunnally's candy shop at 1208 F street northwest, smashed open a safe which was carried from the first floor to the basement and escaped with about $600 early yesterday.

Hugh Moses, 330 Fifth street southeast, a soda clerk, discovered the robbery when he reported for work about 8:30 a. m. A rear window was broken in a third-floor room, he told police.

Detectives who investigated said that scrape marks were discernable on the floor of the shop and on the cellar stairs, where the burglars apparently dragged the heavy safe into the basement, where it was demolished. A sledge hammer and several chisels were found nearby.

Police said the culprits must have worked on the safe for several hours before it was opened. The door, which was broken off, showed evidence of heavy blows. Police said the job looked like the work of amateurs.

Another "match" burglar has begun to operate here, police reports showed yesterday.

Two houses were broken into and in each of the places many burnt red match sticks were found on the floor.

The first report was made by Charles D. Coulter, 3424 Thirteenth street northwest, who said his house was ransacked and a gold wrist watch and a small amount of money taken.

Thomas C. Leak, 1434 Harvard streeet northwest, a short distance from the Coulter home, frightened away a heavy-set colored man who had entered the house through a rear window. Several match stems were found near the open window, Leak said.

Last year a colored burglar terrorized the Northwest section with more than 50 housebreakings. While committing the thefts, this man stuffed matches into locks so that anyone attempting to come in could not work the locks. He also dropped match stems on the floors.

Police last night were holding for investigation Raymond C. Myers, 32, 4622 Wisconsin avenue northwest, after he was captured in a garage in the 4500 block, Wisconsin avenue.

Tools valued at $10 were reported missinng from the garage by David Watkins, manager of the shop. Police reported the property was recovered after Myers' arrest.

Patent Medicine valued at $66 was stolen from his automobile parked at Fifth and L streets northwest, John McCambridge, 12 L street northeast, told police.

Two youths were being held at the Second Precinct station in connection with a series of Sanitary Grocery robberies. Detectives said they answer the descriptions of the bandits who held up more than ten of the stores in the past two months. Both will appear in a line-up at Police Headquarters this week.

Moses Reichgut, Merchant, Dies

Moses Reichgut, retired merchant of 1300 Spring road northwest, died here Saturday after a long illness. He was active in many philanthropies and was one of the founders of the Hebrew Home for the Aged, of which he was treasurer for 17 years.

Mr. Reichgut had been financial secretary of the Tifereth Israel Congregation for many years. Recently he was executive secretary of the Hebrew Free Loan Association, a Community Chest agency. He had been active in many Chest campaigns.

Funeral services were held yesterday from the Danzansky chapel, followed by burial in Tifereth Israel Congregation Cemetery. Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Leah Reichgut; three sons, Sylvan, Daniel and Joseph; a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Kronman, two grandchildren, and two sisters, Mrs. Bernard Danzansky and Mrs. Rebecca Sodden.

Mrs. Beale Dies; Kin of General

Mrs. Katherine Carroll Beale, widow of John Wheeler Beale, of Washington, died at her home yesterday after a short illness.

Mrs. Beale was the daughter of the late Maj. Gen. Samuel Sprigg Carroll and the late Helen Bennett Carroll.

Mrs. Beale spent the large part of her life in Georgetown.

On her mother's side she was descended from the first Charles Carroll, who settled in Maryland, and from Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. On her father's side she was directly descended from Gov. Sprigg of Maryland.

She is survived by a son, Carroll Beale, and two daughters, Mrs. Mahlon Ashford, of New York, and Mrs. Carl Knox Gartner, of Washington.

One Dead, Eight Are Injured, 57 Escape in Three Fires Here

wrists. He never said a word. He just sat down on my sofa. His eyes were open, but they were like black holes. His body was all black and burned and his hair was all gone. The firemen put him on a stretcher after he collapsed on the sofa and took him to Emergency Hospital."

While Laughran was downstairs, Morones, Pisano and D. B. Brim were perched, shivering in the cold snow, on the coping of the roof of the large red brick roming house. Pisano, badly burned around the arms and throat, was semi-conscious, and was only saved from falling to the ground by Morones, who held him.

The other roomers escaped to the rear down a back fire escape. Those in the front part of the house on the top floor were trapped by flames at the head of the stairs which prevented their getting out any place except on the roof, where only a small ledge offered safety.

Firemen thrust up ladders 85 feet to the fugitives. Private John Wissman, of No. 3 Truck Company, mounted the ladder and aided the three across to an adjoining house, where they descended through a skylight and were rushed to Emergency Hospital, later being transferred to Gallinger.

Thirteen people in all were rescued from the Prospect street blaze. Mary Williams, thrown from a window by her husband, was in serious condition at Gallinger last night, suffering with third degree burns of the shoulders and arms, fractured ribs and possible fracture of the ankle. The husband and child were not seriously hurt in their drop to the ground.

Branzell, who with his wife, Thelma, 20 years old, occupied a room opposite where the oil stove exploded, was badly burned about the face and chest. He was in Gallinger last night. His wife was slightly burned.

William Pitts, 13; Quentin Trotter, 5; Charles Williams jr., 15, and Donald Pitts, 11, were all awakened from sleep by their ducks. The first three were removed from a window by firemen.

Donald Pitts, who broke through the neighboring window of Mrs. Rodman L. Miller, causing Mrs. Millers' invalid sister, abed with two broken legs, to faint, had numerous adventures after he thought he had reached safety.

He told police that Mrs. Miller believed there was a family row going on next door and did not understand the apartment was afire. She refused to allow him to stay in the house, he said, so he had to run out into the snowy street barefooted, in his nightclothes, to find refuge elsewhere.

Others rescued from the fire were Mrs. Jean Pitts, 43; Emilie McEntee, 34; George Branzell, 55, and Francis Branzell, 20.

The four ducklings which sounded the alarm to the five youths in the front room were rescued by firemen on pleas of the boys. Firemen carefully took the ducks down a ladder and found not a pin-feather singed.

Cause of the K street fire was undetermined, though it was believed by fire wardens to have originated from a cigarette smoked by Laughran, the chief victim. John Hite, one of the 32 roomers in the house, said he awoke at 6 a. m. to go to work, smelled smoke, and found Laughran sitting in a center recreation room on the floor above, smoking a cigarette.

Hite said he noticed a corner of the sofa mattress smoldering and put it out, advising Laughran to go to bed. An hour later, when David Free awoke to go to work, he found the upstairs ablaze. He sounded a fire alarm in the building which aroused other occupants.

Woman Dies of Burns

Agnes Raymond, colored, 62, died in Gallinger Hospital yesterday from burns suffered February 16, when her clothing caught fire in her home, 346 K street southwest. According to police reports, the woman was sitting near a stove in the living room when the heat ignited her clothing.

Merrimac Sailor In Historic Clash Dead at Age of 92

Newport News, Va., March 14 (AP). Arthur Colonna, 92, native of Northampton County, Eastern Shore of Virginia, and believed by relatives to be the last surviving member of the crew of the Confederate ironclad Merrimac at the time that vessel engaged the Monitor in historic conflict in Hampton Roads, March 9, 1862, died today at his home in Warwick County, near Menchville, Va. He was born August 15, 1845.

Living with his parents in Norfolk at the outbreak of the war, he volunteered for service aboard the Merrimac. Although only 17 he remained with the crew until discharged, having taken part in the famous battle of the ironclads. Later he joined troops at City Point and served there until the end of the war.

He married the former Miss Alice B. Edwards, York County, who survives him. They were married in 1880.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Yorktown, where interment will take place.

Jealousy Clew In Murder of Wife Is Found

'Love Nest' Located as Divorcee Is Questioned in Ohio.

On the table were copies of books entitled "married love" and "the story of Theodora Hicks."

Car Near Murder Scene.

With these developments police renewed investigation of reports by a neighbor of the Cable family that a "dark coupe" was seen circling about the large house several times the night before the slaying.

Barthelmeh and Police Chief Ira A. Menderbaugh questioned the divorcee for several hours today, but declined to say what, if any, information she gave them.

The prosecutor and Menderbaugh spent most of the night going over all phases of the investigation with Cable and questioning neighbors and acquaintances.

Neighbors recalled today, police said, that an automobile had been seen near the Cable home both Wednesday night and Thursday nights, a short time before Mrs. Cable was killed. Nobody, however, obtained the license number of the car.

Plaster casts were made of a footprint found in the mud below the window through which the shotgun was fired, but detectives had made little progress in their efforts to trace the slayer through his footprint. The shotgun has not been found.

Rites Tomorrow For W. F. Moack

Funeral services for William Frederick Moack, 72, who died at his home, 12 Garfield street, Hyattsville, Md., early yesterday, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Pinkney Episcopal Memorial Church in Hyattsville, with burial following at the Aquia Church near Stafford, Va.

Born in Washington, Moack moved to Hyattsville, where he resided for 38 years until his death. He was employed at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing for 47 years until his retirement in 1931.

Surviving Moack besides his wife, Mrs. Catherine Jane Moack, are two daughters, Mrs. Catherine McClay, of Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. Evelyn Bellman, of Chevy Chase, D. C., and two sons, William A. Moack and Elgin M. Moack, of Cottage City, Md., and a brother, Howard A. Moack, of Wheaton, Va.

Red Decree Gives Many Citizenship

Moscow, March 14 (AP).—The Central Executive Committee by a brief decree today restored citizenship rights to thousands of persons previously deprived of their rights because of social position of ownership of property.

The act brings the laws into conformity with the new constitution whereby, under Article 136, all citizens are guaranteed the right to vote. The decree is one of the numerous ones regarded as necessary to put Russia's new constitution into full effect prior to the fall elections.

Mexican Tombs May Unfold Life Of Ancient Tribe

Alfonso Caso, archeological director in the region, said he believed information yielded by the tombs would help scientists greatly in reconstructing the civilization of the Zapotecs.

The cruciform-shaped tomb contained paintings depicting in vivid blue, red, yellow, black and white allegories relating to the Zapotec dieties.

One skeleton intact, objects of jade and small idols were found. Two skeletons were found in another tomb.

Doctor Fails to Rouse 'Will-to-Die' Slayer From Coma; Only Heart, Lungs Functioning

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, March 14.—The "will to die" of Helen Wills Love, convicted slayer of her husband, tonight started her toward the fourth day of a deep coma which physicians believe was self-induced to thwart a prison sentence.

Lying motionless on a jail hospital cot, the 31-year-old woman showed no indication of rousing from the deep sleep into which she drifted Thursday night.

All organic functions of her body, breathing and blood circulation excepted, have ceased. Dr. Benjamin Blank, jail physician, administers intravenous solutions of gluecose and normal saline in continuous forcible feeding.

"She is not simulating this condition," said Dr. Blank. "She cannot be taken into court tomorrow to be sentenced. It is impossible to say just what the outcome of her coma may be."

Shortly after she was convicted of fatally shooting Harry A. Love, 43, she told jail inmates "I can make myself die whenever I want to." She was in a coma last Friday when she was scheduled to go to court. She may be sentenced to seven years to life imprisonment for second-degree murder.

Harry Wills, her brother, told authorities she had experienced a similar coma once before and recovered without any apparent ill effect. He suggested that radio music be brought to her cell, but the experiment has not been tried. Ammonia fumes from a vial placed under her nose failed to rouse her, the only reaction being moisture in her eyes. Pin pricks bring no physical reaction.

Mrs. Grove Rites Scheduled Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Florence Vanpuyl Grove, 57, who died at her home, 9 Sycamore avenue, Takoma Park, Md., Friday, after an illness of several weeks, will be held at Wright's funeral parlor, 1337 Tenth street northwest, at 2:30 p. m. today. Interment will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mrs. Grove, whose husband, Selbie D. Grove, an employe of the Patent Office, died last June, came to this city in 1907, from Detroit, and has since then taken an active interest in community affairs. She was a member of the Takoma Park Women's Club, the Sixteenth Street Club, the Gray Ladies of Walter Reed, and an active worker for the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church.

She is survived by a daughter, Miss Virginia Grove; an aunt, Mrs. E. M. Stoll, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Bond, of Detroit.

Christening Is Held For New U. S. S. Somers

Kearney, N. J., March 14 (AP).—The new U. S. S. Somers, a 1,850-ton destroyer leader, slid down the ways into the Hackensack River yesterday at the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. plant.

More than 1,500 persons, including Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison and the Somers' christeners, two 12-year-old girls, collateral descendants of Lieut. Richard Somers, nineteenth century American Naval hero, cheered as the slender grey ship slipped into the river.

Automobiles, 35; Syphilis, 36.

Two series of special articles considering problems of the District of Columbia are now appearing in The Post. One deals with automobile accidents; the other with venereal disease. The first commands principal attention because it touches directly on the daily life of almost every resident and worker here. Any one, whether pedestrian or driver, may be the city's next traffic victim. Statistically, however, the toll of syphilis since the first of the year is greater than that of traffic casualties, as the above caption indicates.

To make this record more inexcusable, syphilis is preventable and generally curable. It is to the objective of impressing this fact on the public mind that our reporter, Mr. Gross, is dedicating his efforts. Wisely, he has begun by attacking what he aptly terms the "hush-hush" attitude toward syphilis and the more prevalent if slightly less insidious gonorrhea. Until venereal disease can be brought into the open, it can scarcely be fought effectively.

It is not commonly understood that the Nation's Capital has six cases of syphilis and gonorrhea to every one of tuberculosis; and that those twin diseases claim more new victims annually than measles, infantile paralysis, diphtheria, meningitis, pneumonia, scarlet fever, spotted fever, typhoid fever and whooping cough combined. But until facts of this sort can be everywhere appreciated, little enthusiasm will be forthcoming for a drive against venereal infection.

Once this enthusiasm is aroused, the best strategy seems to call for assaults along three lines—treatment, regulation and education. For the first, the Health Department is planning at least one health center which will include a "V. D." clinic. Provision for it is made in the pending District supply bill. As for the regulation of venereal disease—9,100 cases were reported last year as compared with 3,300 in 1929—the consensus of expert opinion indorses a clearing house for records of clinical patients as essential to any integrated attack.

Education is perhaps even more important. Both layman and physician, particularly the private practitioner, need authoritative information on these diseases. This is the responsibility, and a heavy one, of the Health Department. Its officers, however, may count on the eager co-operation of the city in this work. For Washington, thanks largely to the efforts of the United States Public Health Service, is fast approaching the point where it will no longer submit supinely to the ravages of diseases that medical science knows full well how to control.

No Race Track Wanted.

Opponents of the bill to permit construction of a race track within the District limits are maneuvering to block its passage with the argument that it was "railroaded" through the House committee. Protesting that it was given approval in the absence of three members, they are asking for its recall. The presumption is that the bill would not have been recommended if the full committee had been present at the voting.

It is to be hoped that this is correct and that the bill will receive reconsideration. The District wants no race track. Many years ago horse racing was a principal diversion here. Since then, however, the city has grown vastly until today it virtually fills its confines. In the meantime, too, the sport has moved to nearby Maryland and not too distant West Virginia. Special trains and buses run regularly to these tracks when they are in use. Thus local fans are accommodated while Washington is left to fulfill its proper role as an exclusively residential and administrative center. There is small need for a race track here and less space for one in the city's cramped backyard.

A track becomes still less desirable when considered in connection with the District's gambling problem. Local authorities work constantly to bring professional betting under closer control. Recently they have made appreciable progress. All these achievements, however, would probably be more than offset if a track were set up here. For race tracks, it is well known, are veritable magnets for gamblers of all sorts.

A Constructive Labor Policy.

Throughout Michigan's labor crises Gov. Murphy has properly held to the role of impartial mediator. His chief concern appears to have been the peaceful adjustment of differences between employers and employes. To that end he played a personal part in the negotiations which brought the General Motors strike to a close. Now he is attempting to formulate a policy that will encourage collective bargaining while minimizing the dangers of violence that would jeopardize the public interest.

Apparently the Governor has decided that mere negotiation of settlements in new sit-down strikes as they arise will solve no basic problem. He is represented by well informed correspondents in Detroit as being convinced that sit-down strikes are illegal and that the flouting of court orders must stop. That is a realistic position which no conscientious executive could long avoid. In taking that attitude, however, Gov. Murphy is making a commendable effort to avoid the use of force and prevent any outburst of hostilities that might lead to bloodshed.

In the interests of labor as well as employers it is highly desirable that some public policy concerning sit-down tactics be formulated. So long as use of this weapon is tolerated, employes throughout the country will be encouraged to seize the property of their employers in an effort to enforce their demands. And since the sit-down strike is essentially illegal, its spread carries a threat of disastrous industrial warfare instead of responsible collective bargaining.

Fortunately, however, Gov. Murphy recognizes the delicate nature of the task he has undertaken. It is not merely a legal question that must be decided but a matter of far-reaching public policy. In some respects the sit-down strike is an outgrowth of illegal and unreasonable practices on the part of employers. That background as well as the seizure of company plants and the crude picketing of the Detroit court where the Chrysler Corporation's petition for an injunction against the sit-downers was being heard, is a very real part of the dilemma by which Michigan is confronted.

Counsel for the United Automobile Workers did not attempt to argue that the sit-down strike is legal. Rather, he charged that the company had set itself above the law by employing spies, discharging men for joining the union, setting up a company union, and refusing to recognize the U. A. W. A. as the sole bargaining agency for its employes in accord with the Wagner labor act. On these grounds it is contended that the company did not go into court with clean hands, and is not, therefore, entitled to the relief sought.

To this counsel for the company replies: "Whether we have been guilty of unfair labor practices is not the issue." Perhaps it is not the issue before the court. But it is very definitely a part of the general problem with which Gov. Murphy and the general public are concerned. Two wrongs never make a right. At the same time, it would be unthinkable to apply the rigid process of the law to the second wrong—in this case the sit-down strike—without taking every reasonable step to correct the first wrong—the unfair labor practices in which so many employers have indulged.

In naming his committee of 20 to consider Michigan's present labor situation Gov. Murphy is trying to find a constructive solution that will undercut the mere legal aspects of this problem. No doubt he expects to mobilize public opinion against unfair and illegal tactics on both sides. Labor must be made to realize that it cannot flout the law with impunity. Employers must be convinced that a nineteenth-century attitude toward organized labor is no longer admissible.

While this effort to rationalize the dispute is being made, however, the Governor insists that "public order must be preserved and public authority must be respected." It is not to be supposed, therefore, that his conference of citizens will be used as an excuse to delay indefinitely any order that the court may issue in the Chrysler strike. If the disputants are wise, they will comply with the law without forcing the Governor's hand. The U. A. W. A., especially, would have everything to lose and nothing to gain by forcing a showdown on the illegal possession of plants where it claims the support of 90 per cent of the employes.

Down With Deckle!

To the book trade, deckle edge is "rough, untrimmed paper left by the deckle." But to literary editors and book lovers in general it is simply a chewed-up effect on the right-hand side of the page. For years readers have been growling about publishers who persist in this particular form of elegance. Now these complaints have been given support by no less an authority than the Book Clinic of the American Institute of Graphic Arts.

Each month a member of this informal organization, which interests itself in the manufacture and design of books, gives honorable mention to that volume which meets certain specifications as to format and workmanship. Beatrice Warde, last month's judge, failed to find a single one worthy of the award and took this barren occasion to air her pet grievances against book designers. Not only book editors, but all bookworms, will be glad to note that the name of "deckle edge" leads all the rest.

Miss Warde's chief complaint is that the fuzzy edge makes it hard to thumb through a book. Compared to other justifiable charges, this seems mere carping. It is impossible to read a deckle-edged book without a clothes brush as well as a paper cutter at hand. No Sherlock Holmes would be necessary to trace such a volume through the house, for the carpet is certain to resemble Broadway after a hero's homecoming.

It is to be hoped that the Book Clinic will not give up the deckle edge as an incurable evil. Now that it has been diagnosed, the next step is a preventative. And while the clinic may not succeed in wiping it out entirely, at least its hygienic effort should forward control.

No Locarno Pact In Sight.

The latest German and Italian notes to Great Britain make it plain that a wide gulf still exists between the Fascist states and the other signatories of the now defunct Locarno pact regarding the organization of peace in western Europe.

The British government would like to see the Locarno arrangement revived in one form or other. For it is recognized at London that only if there is peace on the Rhine can Great Britain remain at peace. But British statesmen are realistic enough to see that a new Rhineland pact would be useful only if it were fitted into a framework of peace covering the whole continent. This, however, is precisely what the Third Reich is unwilling to admit.

The German note, supported on all major points it is believed by the Italian note, chooses to regard a new Rhineland agreement as something capable of standing by itself. Apparently the Third Reich is ready to sign a local nonaggression pact with France and Belgium, with Great Britain and Italy as guarantors. But such agreement must be kept outside the jurisdiction of the League of Nations, Berlin insists, and must be accompanied by assurances from France respecting that nation's alliances with Russia and Czechoslovakia.

In effect, therefore, Hitler wants the French, as the price of German friendship, to abandon their allies in central and eastern Europe. He is supported in this demand by Mussolini who now, as in 1933, sees concrete advantages for Italy in a four-power pact.

It is not surprising that these notes from Rome and Berlin are being viewed with undisguised suspicion in Paris and with distinct disappointment in London. Neither Great Britain nor France have any desire to permit Hitler a free hand in eastern and central Europe. For with France unable to go to the aid of its allies Germany could do as it pleased with its weaker neighbors.

When Germany marched into the Rhineland a little over a year ago Great Britain, France and Belgium, still considering themselves bound by the Locarno agreement, formed something akin to an alliance. Since then Belgium has indicated a desire to return to its prewar neutral status. But the links binding Great Britain and France have been tightened.

No doubt Great Britain would prefer a more generalized arrangement, such as that made at the instance of Dr. Stresemann in 1925. But in view of the German attitude, there is nothing left for the London government to do but continue its de facto alliance with France and build up its armaments. And as for France, the latest German and Italian notes will increase the determination to keep in force its alliances with Russia and Czechoslovakia.

Maugham And Mashers.

When Somerset Maugham wrote "Of Human Bondage" it probably never occurred to him that he was setting a bad example for waitresses. For in his book, a customer not only dated up the girl who waited on him but he spent practically the rest of his life waiting on her. And that, according to Mrs. Martha Sellers, is quite enough to give any girl ideas. So to offset Maugham and outwit mashers, Mrs. Sellers has opened a school in Atlantic City for waitresses.

In it, a girl not only learns her peas and carrots but also her p's and q's. Fresh vegetables come in lesson No. 1; fresh guys in lesson No. 2. The pupils are admonished to leave off make-up on the theory that in an argument with a masher, a girl always wins by a nose provided the nose is shiny. On the other hand, chronic grouches are to be put in their place by a rule of "sweet reasonableness" and a smile.

Undoubtedly Mrs. Sellers' school will fill a long-felt need. But how much simpler it would be if the girls would just remember Dorothy Parker's comment that "men never make passes at girls who wear glasses." Perhaps it's not schools that are needed but spectacles.

California has a law against working for nothing. It is doubtful if a conviction would be possible under this law. It would seem that a plea of guilty would constitute, per se, prima facie evidence of insanity.

"Without exception, gambling is essentially a means of getting something for nothing," asserts a minister. You've been extremely lucky, parson; a lot of us often get nothing for something.

A Chicagoan who bet he could drink a half gallon of whisky won $5, but lost his life. This gave him a net profit of about $4.70 on the transaction.

Dr. Townsend's Sentence.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Poor, old, aged Dr. Townsend is going to jail. The great Congress of these United States of America has been affronted because this zealous champion of America's great army of senescent patriarchs walked from one of its bulldozing committee hearings. As a life-long Democrat, and fully conversant with the impossibilities of the philosophies preached by the antiquarian doctor, I feel ashamed to be affiliated with an Administration that has stooped to the pettiness practiced on this old-age pension advocate.

I feel more ashamed to belong to the party whose members of Congress browbeat and baited this old fellow for the edification of themselves, and then when he had the guts to flaunt them by staging a "walkout," "peanut politicians" as they are, they resorted to bringing him before the bar of justice and humiliating Americans with a punishment that, except for politics, the courts would never have imposed.

I hope that those fostering the Townsend movement will make the Townsend jailing an issue in the coming election of those members of Congress who put him in jail, and if they do there will be thousands of persons not affiliated with the Townsend pension scheme who will assist the Townsend supporters in driving such Congressmen from office. 'Thank God For Carolina.'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In charting States by rank in various socialized attainments, Carolina has often found itself near the end of the list—but we could usually say, Thank God for—some State nearer the bottom.

But now, when national leaders are backing and filling, with one eye over their shoulder and one hand in their pocket, and evasion of the court issue is the order of the day, at last we can say, "Thank God for Carolina."

In Raleigh, March 12, the "Clear the Record' dinner was a spontaneous demonstration of loyalty to the Chief that only few political leaders, or States, have made—and whose example may well be followed.

America's Policy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, minister of the Japanese Navy, recently declared that after the completion of Japan's present armament program, Japan will no longer need to fear the United States.

In that brief statement lies a complete story of a man and his entire existence. It is very evident that the worthy admiral's mind was designed by a naval architect. From boyhood and toy ships, unto manhood and warships. He put away the things of a child and took up the things of a man. Scanning the vast horizon from the bridge of his serious toy, he visualizes an enemy approaching from the West. He imagines the United States bearing down upon his great empire for what reason? Is is because we wish to engage and test the admiral's seaworthiness? Or is it because this imaginary enemy desires to dominate a nation and its people for which it has shown nothing but its good will?

What a pitiful delusion, good admiral! When you have exhausted your people's wealth and strength in acquiring your much desired men-of-war, you will not have to fear this nation more than heretofore but, and you cannot deny this, you will have brought upon yourself a greater suspicion of entertaining other motives than defensive and which motives shall ultimately be checked by your actual enemies and not the imaginary. Thus your gain will still be a greater loss.

Infuse into your mind and the minds of those who are of your opinion that the Americans have but one policy both home and abroad—peace and prosperity, by intelligent mental bargaining rather than physical and crude bargaining with weapons of destruction. Knowing and believing that fact, you may put away your fears and profit much by adopting a similar policy. JOHN L. BALON.
Buffalo, N. Y., March 12.

Modern Penology.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Gale's letter cites two outstanding penologists and their uphill work. He did not mention, however, Thomas Mott Osborne, who was really the pioneer in successful prison administration. He reorganized Sing Sing and later was asked by Secretary Daniels to undertake the reorganization of the naval prison at Portsmouth. Here he accomplished such immense success that no less than 4,000 men were salvaged, as being eligible to resume naval duty. The majority of these men made good. Incidentally President Roosevelt wrote a preface, highly commending his work, in a book written about his work. When Osborne resigned politics entered in and a nasty scandal ensued. Today the Osborne Association in New York is carrying on Osborne's ideas and is making surveys of State prisons. Federal prisons are slowly advancing with more progressive systems.

Judging by letters I have received relating to my letter, the public is becoming interested in prison life. I suggest some books on the subject—Lawes' "20,000 Years in Sing Sing," "There Is No Truce" by Chamberlain, "Life of Thomas Mott Osborne" by Tannenbaum and "10,000 Public Enemies" by Riley Cooper. This latter book describes the why and wherefore of crime, its foundation and its treatment. He also gives a vivid picture of the life of the notorious public enemies. All these books are attainable at the public library.

Social Hygiene In Schools.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post's interesting and informative articles on syphilis by Gerald Gross are decidedly helpful to the public and private agencies in the social hygiene field. Clinic directors tell me that a growing number of new patients are coming to their clinics directly because of The Post's articles. The society's office likewise has received visits and telephone calls attributable to your series. It is safe to assume that private physicians also are seeing new faces in their offices—and old ones returning for further treatment or check-ups—as a result of this publicity.

While conferring with a notable scientist yesterday, he remarked, "My children are reading those syphilis articles and asking questions about them. I think they are fine." This comment brought to mind the great gap which still exists in our public school programs of health education. Some teaching concerning the prevention of blindness, tuberculosis, and accidents is conducted. One finds special attention given to the dangers of alcohol and narcotics. But virtually no heed is paid to the most menacing racial poisons, syphilis and gonococal infections, despite the fact that youth furnishes the largest group of victims to these diseases. Home and school should aid in protecting youth by giving young people the facts regarding all major health hazards. RAY H. EVERETT.

Dr. Tansill's Expulsion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a former student, I read with deep interest the account of the expulsion of Dr. Tansill for Nazi sympathies by American University.

Firing men for freedom of speech is hardly American; it is aping the Hitlerism the university would renounce by expelling its professor, formerly its dean.

The Problem of Washington Traffic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A letter published in The Post of March 13 and signed by Ernest J. Kendrick, of Takoma Park, is very much to the point and I wish to commend it most heartily.

The toll of human lives that is being taken in traffic in these motor vehicle days is simply appalling. In the United States in 1937 there are nearly sure to be sacrificed on this altar as many as 36,000 lives. And in this city alone perhaps considerably in excess of 100 lives. Something must be done to reduce this slaughter. Any sacrifice the people might be called upon to make in this behalf would not be too much—even to the complete doing away with motor traffic altogether, if that be the only way to accomplish the desired end.

But this is not necessary. As Mr. Kendick suggests, the restrictions of the possible speed attainable by automobiles to not more than 30 miles per hour (possibly even less than that) would accomplish much. There is no question at all that the mania for speed is the chief thing that is responsible for such heavy toll of human lives in traffic. Not so much the great speed that our modern automobiles are capable of and do attain on the open highways, but the reckless manner in which so many drivers traverse the streets of our cities and towns.

Our so-called traffic experts seem not to have an idea that is worthwhile. Their principal stress always is upon the uncontrollable actions of the "jay-walker." And chief among their indictments against this hapless individual is his proneness to cross streets between (not at) intersections. I submit that the careful pedestrian, who looks before he steps out, and exercises common sense and judgment is much surer of negotiating a safe crossing in the middle of a block than is the one who waits for the "Go" light at the intersection.

Most drivers are very careful and considerate. But a considerable minority are not. Some accidents and deaths would occur no matter how carefully all drivers observed traffic regulations and recognized the rights of pedestrians. But a motor car is a potential killer, and the spirit of recklessness manifested by so many drivers is the thing that is responsible for the awful toll of death and maimed that is being taken in our modern traffic.

F. C. C.
Washington, March 13.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Pedestrians and sane drivers have, I suppose, abandoned all hope of solving the traffic situation in Washington. A recent action—by no means isolated—certainly gives an excellent illustration of how never to improve it, at any rate.

If a drinking driver runs down a victim, then takes on a cargo of coffee, garlic and tomato juice in proof of his sobriety and driving competence and then gets cleared by the beneficent jury—what does one have to do to receive punishment for traffic killings?

Your reporter did not state whether the jury apologized to the "driver" for subjecting him to the inconvenience of appearing before it to hear and credit his "explanations."

A wolf pack does it better. It exterminates its dangerous members as a menace not to be borne by the rest; but "advanced civilization" operates in accordance with the brotherhood of man—it does not even take away the killer's right to operate a vehicle.

Peripatetic Ambassador

Translated by the Living Age from Marianne, Paris liberal weekly.

THE famous Nord Express, which speeds between Paris and Berlin, sees a lot of the French Ambassador to Germany. Wherever relations between France and Germany become strained and the comments of the Volkischer Beobachter grow menacing, the corpulent and entirely placid little diplomat emerges from his compartment in the crack train at the Gare du Nord.

Andre Francois-Poncet has come home "to straighten things out." He will explain the "imponderables" of the German mentality to the French Radical ministers. Then he will hurry back to Berlin to reveal the psychological mysteries of his Latin people to the metaphysicians of the Third Reich.

A bourgeois, a typical French bourgeois, who has been caught in the whirlwind. But, unlike others of the type, he is a bourgeois who has learned to listen, to observe and to reflect. A clear-headed bourgeois who does not become panic-stricken when things go wrong, when events take an unexpected and threatening turn. An old member of the conservative Democratic Alliance who has become Leon Blum's Ambassador to Adolf Hitler.

What of the career of Francois-Poncet? He has had at least two careers. The first was that of a brilliant young scholar who showed promise of achieving great things in his chosen field. He was born on June 12, 1887, at Provins, in the Department of Seine-et-Marne, which is neither quite Parisian nor yet quite provincial. His father was a judge on the Paris Court of Appeals. Andre was a brilliant student. He won a fellowship in German at the Ecole Normale and was appointed professor of German.

From about 1910 Francois-Poncet devoted himself more attentively than other students of Germany to the restlessness of the German spirit. He was one of those scholars who did not permit a profound knowledge of the past to blind him to contemporary realities. In 1911, when he was only twenty-four, he published both a very erudite treatise on Goethe and a penetrating essay on "What German Youth Is Thinking." He also wrote articles in which he showed remarkable clairvoyance about the course of events in Germany.

When the war broke out Francois-Poncet's knowledge of the German language and of German policy was of great value to the French Foreign Office, which entrusted him with an important and delicate mission to Switzerland.

* * * *

It was during the war that this scholarly professor of literature developed an appetite for statistics, and before long he was metamorphosed into an economist. He accompanied the International Economic Mission to the United States in 1919 as an economic adviser. The following year he founded the Center for Economic Studies and Information in Paris. At the Genoa Conference in 1922 he was a member of the French delegation, and he participated, one might say, in the occupation of the Ruhr, since he served as economic adviser on the staff of Gen. Degoutte.

Francois-Poncet's parliamentary career began in 1924, when he was elected to the Chamber of Deputies from the Department of the Seine. Four years later he was re-elected and in the same year, 1928, he became a member of Poincare's fifth and last cabinet as minister of beaux-arts. Under Tardieu and then Laval, in 1930 and 1931, he was undersecretary for national economy.

What might be called Francois-Poncet's "second career" began in August, 1931, when he was appointed Ambassador to Germany. Since being installed at the embassy on the Pariserplatz his early training has been a tremendous asset. He is undoubtedly the only French statesman who can speak German without a trace of accent.

* * * *

A succession of French foreign ministers have followed on each other's heels since he went to his post at Berlin. There was Briand, Laval, Tardieu, Herriot, Paul-Boncour, Daladier, Laval again, Flandin and now Yvon Delbos. Meanwhile the republican Germany of Bruning became the military Germany of Von Schleicher and the latter, in turn, gave way to the Fascist Germany of Adolf Hitler.

But Ambassador Francois-Poncet has survived all these changes and persists in his task.

And that task?

"C'est la paix."

If one knows that he has eight children one understands that he has personal as well as patriotic reasons for serving peace with all his strength.

Radio A Barometer.

"Well, there's one thing to be said in radio's favor," began Morton.

"Really! What is it?"

"If you live in an apartment house you can tell what kind of neighbors you have by their sets."

"How come?"

"Easy. If they go for jazz, they are a peppy outfit; if they're fond of symphonies they're dead from the neck up; if they listen to political speeches they're nutty. But if they seldom turn the danged thing on, they're swell folks."

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Dumbest Trick.

IT SEEMS unnecessary to wait any longer to award the palm for the dumbest trick of the year, because nobody is likely to match the stupidity of Little Joe Goebbels, the Nazi minister of propaganda, in the LaGuardia rumpus.

Very likely he is catching the devil from Hitler right now, because Little Joe, speaking for the Nazi government and thus, under his general power of attorney in such matters, for Hitler himself, lost his head and insulted the whole American people and everything American.

Of course, this country will consider the source and laugh it off, but the outbreak has entirely undone all the expenditure of diplomatic salve and butter lavished on our badge-wearing, sedentary officials in connection with the Olympic games and all the synthetic good will shown the American tourists who went to Germany to see what they could see and came away beguiled.

"A people who put their feet on the table, keep their hats on indoors and spit chewing gum against the walls" is what Little Joe had to say of the American Nation, and he passed for publication a mysterious threat of the Nazi government to take an unpleasant interest in American affairs.

This unpleasant interest probably refers to the future activities of the Nazi organizations in this country, which are imitating the process of the old pro-German groups in the days leading up to 1917. They hold meetings to deride the country, abuse its hospitality and divide the allegiance of their members who take American citizenship, because, the Nazi system being in violent opposition to American democracy, it is obvious that they can't be American and Nazi at the same time.

THERE IS profit in the episode, because it will demonstrate to anyone who was in danger of accepting the superman estimate of the Nazi leaders that they do have their dolts even in the highest positions. Little Joe Goebbels is 'way up in the party, and the Nazis have put him over, largely in his own newspaper, as one who shares Adolf's god-like infallibility.

But under pressure he gets excited, and instead of building up prestige in a country which must be a great factor in the war which the Nazis are plotting Little Joe simply donates to the British and French a feat of propaganda which would have cost them millions of dollars and no end of shrewd conniving. It was the same way from 1914 on, when the British and French used music and mayonnaise and the Germans tried to achieve the same end with firebrands, bombs and burglar tools.

The murders and beatings, the confiscations and concentration camps, had been more or less forgotten in this country or condoned as unavoidable acts in a revolution, but if the Nazis here revive the question now, the evidence will be examined through the eyes of people who have had a slight foretaste of Hitlerism through Little Joe's threat.

• • • •

PERHAPS they will boycott the New York World's Fair, but, all things considered, that would be more a boon than a hardship, because they wear their heart on their sleeves and someone is always bruising it in crowds. Our hell-raising Communists, always alert to kick up trouble, would be sure to start fights in the Nazi exhibits, and some of our demagogues would not fail to make an issue and provoke Little Joe to wider and always more obscene abuse of the American people as a whole. And if they don't come that will be neatly interpreted as an admission that they can't get along in the company of civilized nations.

Something has got to give somewhere in the situation of the Nazis, who have now come to the point of insisting that Hitler is a sacred cow not only on his home grounds but wherever his name is mentioned in all the world. They get away with that in some of the small countries which sit under their guns, but the people "who put their feet on the table, keep their hats on indoors and spit chewing gum against the wall" can't be expected to give up free speech even to escape "an unpleasant interest" in their affairs.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

Millennium.

Scene: Any large factory. The workmen are toiling intently at their machines. Suddenly there are sounds of disorder without. The workers cast angry glances from the windows and mutter resentfully at the interruption. Finally, violent battering on the doors is heard and the workmen follow their leader, who goes into a small balcony overlooking the factory yard.

Leader (to his men)—They're back again.

A workman—Who?

Leader—Those exasperating bosses!

Factory owner, who is apparently spokesman for the group of employers below—You've got to listen to us! You've gotta listen.

Leader—What do you want this time?

Factory owner—We demand that you take another raise.

(The workmen mutter angrily.)

Leader—Don't use that word "demand" to us; "request" is a better word.

Factory owner—The directors met this morning and instructed us to increase your wages again. We appeal to you to be reasonable and take it.

A worker—Nuthin' doin.' We've had enough raises. As fast as we gvie in and accept one increase you guys give us another.

Another worker—It's rubbin' it in, that's what.

Chairman of the board—I appeal to you men to accept more money. We are reluctant to give it, but the whole spirit of the day demands a more equitable share of profits.

Workres' leader—How do we know if we accept this time you won't be coming around asking us to take another wage increase?

Factory owner—I give you my word this will be the last this year.

A worker—That's what he said last time. They can't be trusted.

Second worker—It's a conspiracy. They want to shove all their profits off onto the workingman so HE will have to pay all them heavy taxes.

Chairman of the board—It is no more than fair that the working man should have as much money to worry him as anybody else. Be square, boys, be square!

Workers' leader—Suppose we give in and take this wage increase, will you go away and let us alone?

Chairman of the board—Absolutely. We have no desire to annoy you about money any more than is made necesary by the mood of the new America.

A worker (very suspiciously)—Does that go for bonuses, too?

Second worker—Yeah. How do we know you ain't gonna pull another bonus on us . . . the sixth this winter?

Factory owner—It may be necessary to ask you to take one or two more bonuses before the end of the year, but we sincerely hope not.

Workers' leader—I thought so! If we give in an inch they take a mile. Nuthin' doin.'

(The workers murmer their approval of their leader's words and move away from the window. The leader turns away, too, but after a few seconds looks down into the yard again.)

Leader—Good heavens!

Workers—What is it? What is it?

Leader (as the employers all squat in the factory yard)—It's a sit-down strike!

4th Class Postoffice For Detour

By Louis M. Jiggitts.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

R. F. D., Detour.
Petunia, Jan. 17, 1937.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

People are beginning to wonder why you haven't got a postoffice for Detour. You promised during the last campaign to have a postoffice established for us as soon as you returned to Washington and we are getting tired of having our mail delivered out of Petunia as if we are just a suburb. Here it is near spring 1937 and we are still only R. F. D.

As the new president of the Detour Greater Progress and Advancement Club, I would like to know why.

Yours, very truly,
HEZEKIAH HAWKS.

Washington, D. C.
Jan. 23, 1937.

Mr. Hezekiah Hawks,
R. F. D., Detour, Petunia.

My dear Mr. Hawks:

You want to know why you are still on the R. F. D. In the absence of the Congressman, I immediately called the Postoffice Department and was informed that the reason you are on the R. F. D. is because you don't have a postoffice.

Assuring you that it has been a great pleasure to answer your inquiry, I am,

Yours sincerely,
WILLA DOOLITTLE,
Secretary.

R. F. D., Detour,
Petunia, Jan. 25, 1937.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

We know very well that we haven't got a postoffice, but since your promise we can't undertsand why. In my official capacity as president of the Detour Greater Progress and Advancement Club, I want to know what has caused this long delay.

Yours, very truly.
HEZEKIAH HAWKS.

Mr. Hezekiah Hawks,
R. F D., Detour,
Petunia.

Dear Mr. Hawks:

Please permit me to offer my felicitations upon your election as president of your splendid club, and to congratulate the club on securing your able services.

I reiterate the statement I have often made that "When Fulpan makes a promise, it is a promise." You may rest assured that I am giving the matter my closest consideration, but therg are certan technicalities to be ironed out.

With best regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

We know that a promise is a promise, but what we want is action.

Yours very truly,
HEZEKIAH HAWKS.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 5, 1937.

Mr. Hezekiah Hawks,
R. F. D., Detour,
Petunia.

My dear Mr. Hawks:

The Congressman has again been called into an important conference and I am sure that you will be glad to know that your Representative is always consulted before any important step is taken in Washington.

You want action, and if you will let this office know on what matter you want action, you may expect immediate attention. It is always our pleasure to serve the Congressman's constituents.

Yours very truly,
WILLA DOOLITTLE,
Secretary.

HEZEKIAH HAWKS DETOUR

Washington, D. C.
Feb. 7, 1937.

Mr. Hezekiah Hawks,
R. F. D., Detour,
Petunia.

My dear Mr. Hawks:

You want to know what red tape is and what you can do about it. Red tape is a nuisance and there is nothing anybody can do about it. It's just one of those things.

Trusting that this is the information you desire, and assuring you that it has been a pleasure to give you prompt action on the matter, I am,

Yours very truly,
WILLA DOOLITTLE,
Secretary.

R. F. D., Detour,
Petunia, Feb. 10, 1937.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

We are interested in a postoffice, not in red tape. It seems strange that a man with your influence in Washington can't get a fourth-class postoffice for Detour, and some people are already commenting on your failure, and they can't understand why you spend time in conferences while Detour is suffering for a postoffice. But I suppose it's easier to hold conferences when you can ride around under the ground in a private car from your office to the Capitol, as I read about some time ago.

Yours very truly,
HEZEKIAH HAWKS.

WHEN DO WE GET LONG DELAYED POSTOFFICE
HEZEKIAH HAWKS DETOUR

Washington, D. C.,
Feb. 17, 1937.

Mr. Hezekiah Hawks,
R. F. D., Detour,
Petunia.

Dear Mr. Hawks:

I have been making every effort to rush the establishment of a postoffice in your splendid city, and I am glad to inform you that the Postoffice Department will send someone to inspect Detour within the next few days. Due to the present desire to effect economies, such as consolidating rural routes, it has required more than the usual perfunctory request on my part to compel the department to take action, but I feel sure that my efforts in your behalf will be crowned with success.

Yours sincerely,
CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

R. F. D., Detour.
Petunia, Feb. 21, 1937.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

The official from the P. O. D. arrived and we gave him the full history of our little city, as well as the information he desired. You will recall that Detour began as a filling station on a detour of State Highway 413A when they were working on the route. They were so long building the main road that we grew into quite a city before the work was completed.

We also showed him the amount of mail sent as well as delivered. The mail from here has increased so much lately that hardly a day passes without at least 10 letters being sent. To tell you the truth, we have seen to it that the mail has been increased by requesting that everybody here write at least twice a week to you or to some mail order house. This has been the main effort of the Detour Greater Progress and Advancement Club, and our slogan, suggested by Miss Fannie Blotz, has been "Daily increase of the mail is the way, to get Detour a postoffice some day."

Hoping that my next letter to you will be postmarked "Detour," I am, Yours very truly,
HEZEKIAH HAWKS.

It is a pleasure to inform you that the Postoffice Department has decided to establish a fourth class postoffice at Detour upon my request.

Yours sincerely,

Petunia, Feb. 27, 1937.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Congressman Fulpan:

I am glad to let you know that your good work was highly praised at a meeting of the club today. The Doubting Thomases no longer doubt that you are powerful in Washington. Everyone is very happy over what you have done to the Postoffice Department, and at the meeting today we decided that our next move would be for a postoffice building. As a member remarked, if Petunia can have a swimming pool for fishes, why can't the PWA or the WPA or the POD build a postoffice in Detour for citizens who vote.

This fine work on your part will be rewarded in the next election.

Fulpan Names Zeegler For Postmaster, However.

As far as Detour is concerned, we hope you stay in Washington forever, and you will be interested to know that we have changed our slogan to "A third class postoffice by 1940."

And now that we will soon be having our letters postmarked "Detour," I will be glad to be appointed acting postmaster until I can pass the civil service examination.

March 9, 1937.

Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

I was shocked today to learn when the postoffice was opened that you had appointed Zeke Zeegler as acting postmaster. I can't understand how you could pass over me, the President of the Detour Greater Progress and Advancement Club, for a man who wouldn't even pay $2.25 to join. You have made a serious mistake, and I am convinced that it would have been better not to have put a postoffice in Detour in the first place.

I just learned that 13 others wanted the job too. Nobody had said anything to anybody else until your mistake was made. And now all of them feel just like I do. None of us are going to mail letters from here after today which will cut the postmaster's pay and probably close the postoffice.

As far as I am concerned if you stay in Washington after the next election you will stay at your own expense. Miss Fannie Blotz, a former friend of yours, who also wanted the job, has already suggested changing the slogan of our club from "A third-class postoffice by 1940" to "A new Congressman by 1939."

Asian Emigrants Became Eskimos, Dr. Collins Finds

By the Associated Press.

A Smithsonian Institution archeologist has decided that the first meeting between races of men who migrated out of Central Asia probably occurred in Greenland more than 500 years ago.

Dr. Henry B. Collins said today that Leif Ericson and the Vikings who followed him, representing the Europeans, apparently found in Greenland tribes of Eskimos whose ancesetors had crossed from Asia to Alaska and then migrated the entire width of Arctic Canada.

The cradle of man has been tentatively placed by some scientists as somewhere in what is now China or India.

Evidence that the Eskimos and Vikings met in Greenland has been found in the western part of the island, Dr. Collins said.

Rumania Seeks To Dissolve Masons

Bucharest, March 14 (AP).—Rumanian soldiers with fixed bayonets were posted in front of numerous Masonic lodges in Bucharest today while the government and the Rumanian Orthodox Church joined forces to suppress Masonry.

The Orthodox Synod, in an announcement which charged the Masonic order with "anti-Christian and anti-government activities" denied Christian burial and other church services to active Masons.

The government, which previously decreed dissolution of Masonic organizations, stationed troops in front of the lodges, which, however, indicated a determination to continue functioning.

Japan Evacuating 2 Chinese Areas

Kalgan, Chahar Province, China, March 14 (AP).—Evidence that the Japanese military is liquidating one chapter of its military adventures on Chinese territory was seen by Chinese authorities and foreign residents here today.

They believed proof was accumulating that the Japanese are withdrawing from the northern and western portions of Chahar Province, which have been under their domination the last two years.

A large party of Japanese army men was known to have passed through Kalgan en route to Peiping.

Japan's Airbase Plans Thwarted by Britain

Shanghai, March 14 (AP).—British financial circles asserted today that British intervention had blocked efforts of Japan to obtain an airbase at Macao, Portuguese colony off the southeastern coast of China.

Macao lies only 40 miles southwest of the British crown colony of Hongkong, and British authorities there disliked the prospect of Japan obtaining her long-desired aviation foothold in southeastern Asia.

Railroads, Rates, Rearmament.

London.

ONE OF THE REASONS behind much of the criticism made in England of living conditions, general amenities, and social services of all kinds is that we have pioneered so much in the past. The penalty for past innovation is that our lives are now cluttered up with anachronisms.

Most prominent symbols of this conditions for the Londoner are the great railway terminals. Kings Cross, St. Pancras, Euston, Marylebone, and Paddington were in their day the admiration of the populace; today they are a disgrace to the capital of the country which invented railroads. They were supposed to be joined up by a wide, straight avenue: London's street of railways. Instead they are isolated in confusion.

Kings Cross is blocked in front by small shops; Euston road is narrow in front of St. Pancras, widens in front of Euston, which is the only station to have ample ground for its rebuilding which is soon to be started, then twists, widens, and narrows under different names and through different local authorities until it reaches Paddington. It would take a Mussolini and a revolution to put order in this chaos.

Our railways are an outstanding example of enterprise strangled by an inherited deadweight of inertia. In their day they destroyed the canals; but they are now the powerful party in the struggle between rails and road and air transport.

British Airways receives a subsidy from the government; but principal booking agencies will not book tickets by British Airways because the railways have threatened to take away their business of they do. In a recent hearing the courts ruled that the mere existence of a railway was not sufficient evidence that it was satisfactory to possible customers, and refused to accept the railroad case that certain existing road transport franchises should not be renewed. They refused to perpetuate a railroad monopoly. This is a new attitude by the franchise authorities, and may mean a better development of road and of rail transport.

• • • •

AN EVEN HEAVIER hand from the past is the organization of our local government and its method of financing expenditure. The units are admittedly far too small. We would be much more efficiently governed if England were divided into, say, six provinces. Such provincial governments would be able to control their own regions more efficiently than the multitude of mutually jealous local councils now in existence, and they would relieve the central government of much detail which now loads its timetable.

The method of local finance is as much in need of reform as the size of local units. Local authorities receive their revenue from rates levied on occupied property. This is inadequate for their expenditure, and they receive a supplement from the central government in the form of block grants.

Local rates are one of the most regressive types of taxation. They are collected on property, irrespective of the income of the occupier. And since a much larger proportion of smaller incomes is spent on rent than of large incomes, a tax on value of property occupied bears most heavily in proportion to income on the poor. The trouble is aggravated by the highly localized nature of our unemployment. This means that distressed areas, which have the greatest call for expenditure have the least capacity to carry the burden, and the richer areas have the greater capacity to pay while they have a smaller burden.

• • • •

THE WHOLE SYSTEM of apportioning revenue to the local governments has frequently been criticized and one of the most widely supported systems of reform is that taxation on property should be reduced, taxes should be levied on increment in land values created by social development, and that the main revenue of local authorities should be a surcharge on income tax. This would distribute the burden most equitably. But Parliament is far too busy to undertake major reforms of this kind.

Relief for the most depressed areas has just been provided, to come into force from April, by a change in the formula by which the central government calculates the amount of its block grants in aid. This rearrangement will mean a slightly higher burden in rich areas, and a reduction in the poorer. Greatest benefit will go to Methrr Tydvil, mining town in South Wales, which gets an increased grant equivalent to 5 shillings in pound.

By this alteration in block grants, and by its rearmament program the government is flattering itself it has solved the unemployment problem.

A White Paper on the depressed areas has just been published to disclose at long last the government's plans. Remember that Edward VIII got into trouble for saying something would be done about these regions of concentrated unemployment. What has been decided bears the stamp of Neville Chamberlain.

He does not believe anything can be done for these regions other than mild palliatives. Public works in the past he condemned while they meant new roads, better drains, social services, greater attractiveness for new industries. But now that public works means rearmament he accepts them, claims that they break the back of the problem. Rearmament, he says, has already reduced unemployment even in the worst areas; and in addition to its continuance he offers special trading estates, and a possible two million pounds for loans to new light industries which will be helped during infancy by reductions in taxation.

These proposals will be swallowed without any great opposition in Parliament from left-wing Conservative members, which is the only opposition which the government has to fear. Liberals and Labor oppose, and the depressed areas criticize, both on the ground of inadequacy, and on the further ground that once again the depressed areas are being built up to depend upon one industry: rearmament. And rearmament is a highly unstable industry, whose collapse must once again plunge the depressed areas into unemployment. But why quibble, says the government? Let's rearm.

McGuffey Reader

By William Lyon Phelps

School Days.

Owing largely to the influence and devotion of Henry Ford, the McGuffey Readers, which played an enormously important part in the education of boys and girls of the United States, are, one hundred years after their original publication, once more available for general reading. I congratulate the publisher, the American Book Co., New York, for their commendable enterprise in issuing two books—a biography, called "William Holmes McGuffey and His Readers," written by Dr. Harvey C. Minnich, curator of the McGuffey Museum, and a second volume called "Old Favorites from the McGuffey Readers," in which selections appear from the First Reader clear through the succeeding volumes, ending with the Sixth.

• • • • •

This is a charming book, and I think everyone will find much in it to delight the mind both with reminiscences of school days and of early reading of famous classics.

The volume opens with "Mary had a little lamb" and closes with Bryant's "Lines to a Water-fowl."

The old favorites of childish declamation are here—"The Inchcape Rock," "The Cataract of Lodore," "We Are Seven," "The Raven," "The Spider and the Fly," "Casabianca," "The Old Oaken Bucket," "The Soldier on the Rhine," etc.

When I was a small boy in New England, we went through Hillard's Readers and then clear through Monroe's Sixth Reader. The selections were made with diabolical ingenuity; passages stopped at a particularly interesting point, so that I was forced to look up the complete work to find out what happened. It is certain that the School Readers enlarged my knowledge of English literature.

• • • • •

It is possible that we had McGuffey, though I do not remember his name. For in this very volume of selections from him appears the scene from "Hamlet" that absolutely forced me to read the complete play. It ended (as it does here, and in a way I never forgot) with Hamlet's telling Horatio he is coming this very night to the platform "Twixt eleven and twelve" to see if the Ghost will appear. I remember perfectly the thrill I got out of that in my childhood and my disappointment when I turned the next page, and found the beginning of another piece. I had no rest until I got hold of the complete play, for I had to find out if the Ghost really came.

Average 'Salary' Of Dictator In Europe $426 Per Month

Copyright, 1937, by United Press.

London, March 14.—The average "salary" of European dictators is about $426 a month. Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany is the only ruler who receives no regular pay. Benito Mussolini of Italy and Joseph Stalin of Soviet Russia average about $343 a month, but the general average is higher because of the lesser known dictators of smaller countries receive higher pay.

Hitler refuses to accept his annual "salary" of $24,000. "Salary" is placed in quotation marks, because a pay check is the least worry of any dictator. Most of them do not need money, because everything is furnished free. Hitler and Mussolini enjoy large private incomes.

All dictators, especially Mussolini and Hitler, personally control large, secret state funds from which they draw—accounting to no one. Il Duce doubtless is the wealthiest dictator in his own right and also possesses the largest secret fund.

Mussolini, about $5,250; Stalin, $3,000; Marshal Edward Rydz-Smigly, of Poland, $14,400; Kurt Schuschnigg, of Austria, $5,700; Gen. Francisco Franco, newest (and poorest) dictator, of the Spanish rebel provisional government, $2,360.

Although Musolini holds four portfolios in his cabinet, he is paid only $5,250 for the premiership. Since 1924 he has renounced the salaries attached to other positions he holds.

As minister of interior, Mussolini is entitled to a special, secret fund from which he pays his secretaries, chauffeurs and numerous bodyguards. When the fund runs low, a decree appears in the Official Gazette, signed by the minister of finance, authorizing the Bank of Italy to pay into the account of the minister of interior so many million lire.

Owns Valuable Newspaper.

In addition, Mussolini owns the important newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, which he founded with his brother, Arnaldo, in 1914. Its circulation is large, since many of its editorials are Mussolini's own. Fascists clubs and federations buy thousands of copies of it. Although the newspaper's advertising rates are high, it never lacks for clients. Mussolini also is one of the world's highest paid writers, and his speeches are published in book form and sold at high prices.

Despite his wealth, the Italian dictator does not plan to leave a will. Writing his brother's biography, he said:

"As my passing will be no less sudden than Arnoldo's, I am induced to declare at this very moment that I have not made nor shall I make a will of any kind, either spiritual, political or profane. It will be useless, therefore, to search for them."

Hitler's presidential salary of $24,000 is held by the national treasury. However, he accepts a president's "entertainment fund" amounting to exactly twice that sum. It is designed to cover expenses of receptions for foreign diplomats and other official functions.

Der Fuehrer has a large personal income, the amount of which never has been disclosed. He received it from his writings and also as a partner in the Nazi party's publishing concern, Voelkischer Beobachter. His book, "My Struggle," is a perennial "best seller" in Germany, and it has been estimated that over 1,500,000 copies of it have been sold. The state is one of the largest purchasers since it gives a copy to each newly wedded couple.

Hitler has three funds from which he can draw in times of emergency. Two of them, $75,000 and $1,500,000, respectively, were established when the late Paul Von Hinderburg was president and are used in case of disasters. The third is the "Adolf Hitler foundation for helping victims of occupational accidents." Gifts totaling almost $1,600.00 have been made from this fund which is kept up largely through contributions.

Stalin's salary is somewhat of a mystery, but is believed to be between 1,000 and 1,500 roubles a month, or about $3,000 a year. His salary is purely nominal, since he only needs cash for incidentals such as clothes for his children. The state furnishes Stalin's own semi-military uniform, food, staff physician, automobiles, town and country homes free.

Rydz-Smigley receives a salary as marshal of Poland of 6,000 zlotys a month, or about $14,000 a year. He holds no other offices and has no additional income.

Annual "salaries" of the dictators, schillings a month, or about $5,700 annually. He has no allowance for expenses, but presents expense accounts to the treasury which never has been known to turn one down.

Radio to Carry Pacific Eclipse Around World

Scientists Will Broadcast From Tiny Island on June 8.

From a tiny uninhabited island far out in the midst of the Pacific Ocean, the voice of a scientist next June 8 will travel around the world, describing by radio to millions of listeners the gorgeous spectacle of a total eclipse of the sun.

This dot of coral and sand, 5,000 miles southwest of San Francisco, will be the center of world attention for a few minutes at 2:15 p. m. Eastern standard time on that date, for it will be practically the only vantage point from which can be observed satisfactorily this important eclipse—the longest total eclipse of the sun in 1,290 years.

At the island, the National Broadcasting Company, co-operating with the National Geographic Society-U. S. Navy Eclipse Expedition, which is being sent there, will set up a radio transmitting station. Thence, by short-wave radio a description of the eclipse will be carried to the United States, sent over a coast-to-coast network, and rebroadcast to other parts of the world—probably the first world-wide radio broadcast ever sent from a "desert" island.

Thus, though only the expedition's scientists and a few U. S. Navy officers and sailors will see the eclipse from the island, millions of people will be enabled to travel in imagination to the mid-Pacific and "see" Nature's most spectacular show. Although the eclipse path will extend 8,800 miles across the mid-Pacific it will touch almost no other point of land at a time of day at which satisfactory observations can be made.

The island on which the "Robinson Crusoe" broadcasting station will be established will be either Canton or Enderbury, two small coral atolls 30 miles apart in the Phoenix Islands group, 1,800 miles southwest of Hawaii. After arriving in the vicinity, the expedition will choose whichever island seems best suited for carrying out its scientific program.

The radio transmitting equipment will be carried to the island on the converted Navy mine sweeper Avocet, which also with transport the personnel and equipment of the expedition.

From time to time during the three weeks before the eclipse, while the expedition's scientists are setting up instruments, making preliminary observations, and making ready for the event, radio broadcasts from the island will describe the preparations, the people on the expedition, and what life is like on an isolated island.

An engineer of the National Broadcasting Company will accompany the expedition, taking with him more than 3,000 pounds of transmitting and receiving apparatus. Probably the main transmitting equipment will be kept on board the Avocet, which will be anchored offshore.

The eclipse expedition will be under the leadership of Dr. S. A. Mitchell, director of Leander McCormick Observatory, University of Virginia. Other members will be Captain J. F. Hellweg, superintendent of the U. S. Naval Observatory, who will have charge of the Navy's participation; Dr. Paul A. McNally, director of Georgetown College Observatory; Dr. Heber D. Curtis, director of the University of Michigan Observatory; Dr. Floyd K. Richtmyer, of Cornell University; Dr. Irvine C. Gardner, National Bureau of Standards; Dr. Theodore Dunham, Mt. Wilson Observatory; Harold E. Sawyer, assistant director, McMath-Hulbert Observatory, affiliated with the University of Michigan; John W. Willis, U. S. Naval Observatory; Richard H. Stewart, of the staff of the National Geographic Society; and Philip I. Merryman, engineer of the National Broadcasting Company.

Nye Council House Plans Celebration

Celebration of the tenth anniversary of Juanita K. Nye Council House, 609 Sixth street southwest, starts today. For the entire week "Happy Birthday" is to be the pass word.

Ending the celebration, the board of governors will give a tea next Sunday for the members of the Council of Jewish Women under whose auspices it functions. Guests will be received by Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Kaufman, parents of Juanita Kaufman Nye, in whose memory the settlement house was dedicated. Throughout the week children and parents will participate in the program which celebates the anniversary. Each afternoon or evening the children will be hosts and hostesses to their parents and will demonstrate the work and playing of their organized leisure time activities.

Juanita K. Nye Council House is the only Jewish settlement house in the Community Chest. It was founded 10 years ago by a group of Jewish women who saw the need for this particular kind of an agency in the Southwest section. Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Kaufman, recognizing the value and the need of this work in Southwest, presented the organization with the house at 609 Sixth street, where it is now located.

Flu Epidemic Hits Iceland.

Reykjavik, Island, March 14 (AP).—An influenza epidemic gripped the capital of Iceland today, forcing 1,000 inhabitants to stay in bed. All schools were closed and all public meetings prohibited.

On the Air Today

If you are a collector, so to speak, of radio "firsts," you will not miss "Dinner at Nine," WMAL, tonight at that hour. It is to be a program, half hour in length, of after-dinner conversation direct from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goddard Leach in New York City.

The broadcast will immediately follow the conclusion of a typical social dinner party while the host and hostess and their guests still are seated at the table. Microphones will be tucked away in the floral decorations.

"Is Bridge Destroying Good Conversation?" will be the topic of the little group as it dallies over demi tasse or liqueur. At least one of the guests is qualified to speak from the bridge point of view, professionally—Sidney S. Lenz, expert and writer on the subject. Other guests are J. George Frederick, director of the Gourmet Society; Dorothy Thompson, journalist; Ford Madox Ford, British author, and Fannie Hurst, American novelist. Mr. Leach is publisher of Forum Magazine.

The National Broadcasting Co. plans to visit some person's home once a month in search of sparkling conversation on a variety of subjects.

• • • •

Other features today:

Senator Van Nuys—Provides summary of Senate Committee hearing on the judiciary reform proposed by the President, WRC, at 12:45.

Five-Star Revue—Features "Slumming on Park Avenue" and "Little Old Lady," with Meri Bell, WJSV, at 1.

Hans Kindler—And a representative group from the National Symphony, WJSV, at 7:30; Bizet's "Carmen" suite, Wagner's "Traume" and Tchaikowsky's "Danse Trepak."

Richard Crooks—Sings "Beloved, It Is Morn," by Aylward; "If I'm Dreaming," by Millocker; "Rose of Tralee, by Glover, and "Macushla," WRC, at 8:30.

Marlene Dietrich—And Herbert Marshall broadcast together for first time in "Radio Theater," WJSV, at 9. "Desire" is the play.

• • • •

Here and there: Production of a new picture, "The Angel," to star Dietrich and Marshall, was delayed a week in order that they might make the appearance in the "Radio Theater" tonight. Incidentally, Ernst Lubitsch will be interviewed tonight by Cecil De Mille. It was Lubitsch who directed the screen version of "Desire" when Marlene Dietrich was starred. . . . Jack Pearl will not be heard tonight as usual, inasmuch as the Baron's show will be heard beginning this week at a new hour, Fridays, at 10, WMAL. . . . "I Want You" will be sung in the "Myrt and Marge" serial this week by George Damerel, real life son of "Myrt" and an actor in the cast. Myrtle Vail wrote the tune 20 years ago for use by her husband in his vaudevill act., It was sung by him in 1918.

• • • •

More h. and t.: N. B. C. will take microphones Wednesday night to the New York Hippodrome to determine whether Clyde Beatty's lions will respond to their master's voice through loud speakers. Zoo directors in New York will consider the experiment of importance in the realm of animal psychology. Beatty will issue the usual commands from a Radio City studio. Judges at the steel arena will be Dr. Carol Stryker and Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars . . . Grace Moore says she positively will not sing "Frankie and Johnnie" for anybody—in pictures, on the air or any place else. She sings "Minnie, the Moocher," in the picture she just completed, and the suggestion already has been made that she include the Fankie song saga in her next picture. "Never," is the positive answer to the movie moguls.

Ted Kimball was handed his program copy for the National Symphony broadcast half a minute before air time last week. He gulped and his hand shook. The notes were entirely in German! Fortunately Kimball knows a few things about the German language and made the entire program without an embarrassing moment. It developed after the program was over and the facts ascertained that Hans Kindler was under the impression that he would have to announce the orchestra's numbers and had prepared his notes accordingly in German script. Kindler handed the notes willingly enough to the announcer—but overlooked the fact they all were in German.

Rainstorm, Tides Rake French Coast

Paris, March 14 (AP).—A violent rain and wind storm, accompanied by unusually high tides, struck the western coasts of France today, causing heavy damage from Brittany to Spain.

Ships were driven into port, lowlying sections of cities flooded, and it was feared there may have been losses of small fishing craft

A section of the fortifications at St. Brevin, at the mouth of the River Loire, was washed away, while the St. Nazaire-Nantes road was cut and some of the main streets of St. Nazaire inundated.

Financial, Business and Industrial News

New York, March 14.—The panorama uncovered by the week in finance was another of mounting prices for raw commodities, under the whip of speculative activity based on foreign military demands, and a sight of additional signal stations along the road to credit inflation.

Another series of price advances in metals, a slow rise in farm products, and finally the breaking out of retail price increases were the reaction of markets to the scramble of the world for supplies, probably not needed now but which may be difficult to obtain later if re-armament plans are carried out, and the reminder that ray materials and other costs of production can't go up indefinitely without the presentation of the bill to the ultimate consumer.

Under the commodity price rise influence, the stock market advanced briskly on rather large volume, but the pace began to tell toward the close of the week. The last two days were given to a setback, encouraged by the excuse of intervention in London on metal markets and perhaps the fear that a hand might be taken on this side to prevent speculation from getting out of control.

Nothing actually developed, although another sharp rise in brokers' loans took place and the heaviness in Government bonds pointed to the shift of interest from stability issues to more speculative sections. On the news side, in spite of a sharp rise in strikes, including a leading motor producer and threats against the oil and textile industries, the indices pointed toward expanding activity. Steel mills increased operating rate another notch or so to a new high level, around 87 per cent of capacity. Railroad traffic expanded and brisk retail trade was reported.

Living Costs Rise.

Some temporary halt to rising prices might be brought about, but ultimately the markets will follow the stream now setting in strongly toward an inflationary boom. First symptoms are seen in the climb of raw materials, and that rise is finding its way into retail markets. Living costs already have grown as a result of the jump in grain and meat, and higher prices for raw materials plus the all-round increases in wages are going to put them up a good deal higher. The public will then have a keen reminder, which it has lacked so far from the beginning of the recovery, of how higher costs must be met.

Higher costs as dictated by shorter hours, greater wages and more expensive raw materials in themselves generate higher costs, for the rise in living is met with the demand for still higher wages, and the merry round goes on. All that adds to the use of bank credit and currency, which in turn stimulates the rise in prices. Certain forces are pulling on the other side. No real dearth of such commodities as copper, lead, zinc, rubber, petroleum and tin exists. They are under control of cartels and price-fixing organizations, which are taking advantage of an excited war and speculative demand to force up prices.

Indication of Government intervention is now seen with the setback late this week in the London copper market and the price slump in tin which followed the decision of the tin cartel to increase the production quota. A tremendous addition to copper production could easily (and no doubt will) take place, here, in South America and in South Africa, and that eventually will bring down prices, unless indeed the accumulation for war purposes continues to rise.

Bonds Need Support.

Sidelights on the new economic management were given from two sides last week. First the Treasury, while escaping from any accusation of direct aid to France by way of opening the American capital market to French borrowing, contrary to the letter and spirit of the Johnson act, did come to the aid of francs. It now turns out that the dollar and sterling bonds are to be offered in the new French capital—as a sort of gold clause guarantee. That method of self help is a constructive one and probably will have good results.

At the same time the United States stabilization fund acquired another huge slice of gold (foreign capital) in exchange for its paper francs and sterling bought. This week's addition to our monetary gold stock, at a time when anxiety still is professed in official quarters over so-called hot money held here by foreigners, was notable. The gold promptly was put into the sterilization fund, but its acquisition indicates the efforts made at Washington to stimulate commodity markets.

Meanwhile the course of events points unmistakably toward higher money rates, what with rising wages, living costs, speculation and business activity. Treasury financing announced was as anticipated, merely a refunding issue to take care of maturities on March and April dates, but a bearish effect was created in the bond market. Government bonds have been going down for some time and this week the selling was so heavy that the Treasury was forced to come to the market's assistance and bought several millions as a support measure. The Treasury can continue to do that, but, as the London market recently showed, the point has been reached when heavy new expenditures, to be made up from bank credit, are bound to affect Government bond prices.

Wood Shipments Decrease in Week

The lumber industry during the week ended March 6 stood at 59 per cent of the 1929 weekly average of production and 74 per cent of 1939 shipments. Shipments, though somewhat below the preceding week, maintained nearly their high post-strike levels.

Production was slightly less than the preceding week but above other weeks of the year. New bookings were about the same as the previous week. They were slightly below the average of the weeks of 1937 to date and slightly below the corresponding week of last year.

National production reported during the week ended March 6 by 5 per cent fewer mills was 2 per cent below the output of the preceding week and shipments were 9 per cent below shipments of that week, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association from regional associations

Building Permits Jump in February

New York, March 14.—Building permit values spurted sharply upward during the short month of February, due largely to the tremendous expansion in the value of permits issued in New York City.

February permits for 215 cities of the United States totaled $85,981,696, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. This exceeded the January figure of $68,542,828 by 25.4 per cent, whereas the normal rise for the period is about 4 per cent. Compared with February, 1936, when permits amounted to $51,559,661, there was an increase of 66.8 per cent shown.

At the 214 cities outside of New York, building permits aggregated $55,375,186, a fractional loss from the $55,903,556 recorded in January, but an increase of 35.1 per cent when compared with February a year ago, when permits amounted to $40,975,847.

British Trade.

London, March 14 (AP).—Board of trade figures for the month of February follow: Total imports, £71,650,000; exports of British products, £38,570,000; re-exports, £6,920,000; total exports, £45,490,000; excess of imports, £26,160,000.

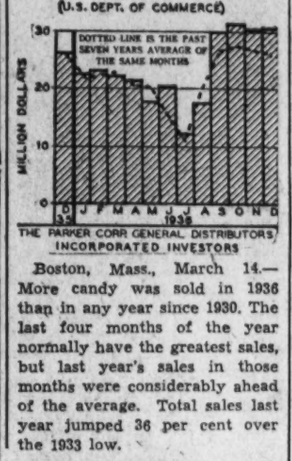
Candy Sales Mount To Highest in 6 Years



Boston, Mass., March 14.—More candy was sold in 1936 than in any year since 1930. The last four months of the year normally have the greatest sales, but last year's sales in those months were considerably ahead of the average. Total sales last year jumped 36 per cent over the 1933 low.

Demand Lifts Steel Activity To 87 Per Cent

Lake Iron Ore Is 45 Cents Above Price Which Held 8 Years.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 14.—Steadily increasing activity marks the steel industry as makers use every effort to increase output in response to mounting demand from consumers. Higher prices have no effect on demand and delivery is the only factor regarded as important by buyers, says Steel.

Little unsold tonnage is available for delivery before the first of May, and some deliveries are now offered as far away as September, though most capacity now available would bring June and July shipment.

Prices are rising steadily. Following the general advance in finished steel and pig iron, warehouses are marking up their quotations, cast-iron pipe is higher, and scrap is going beyond all expectations. Various adjustments are being made to bring specialties into line with the more standard products.

Wheeling at 96 Per Cent.

Steelmakers have been able to bring additional capacity into activity with the result that the percentage has been increased 1 point, to 87 per cent. Pittsburgh rose 1 point, to 89; Youngstown, 1 point, to 85; Cincinnati, 4 points, to 68; Chicago, 1½ points, to 82½, and Eastern Pennsylvania, ½ a point to 57½. Cleveland went down 1½ points, to 78, and Detroit lost 5 points, to 95. No changes were made at Buffalo, at 90 per cent; Birmingham, at 77; New England, at 97; Wheeling, at 96, and St. Louis at 82.

Lake Superior iron-ore prices have been established at 45 cents per ton above the figure that has been quoted unchanged for eight years. This will cover an increase of 10 cents per ton in the vessel-carrying rate and heavier taxes and labor costs of mining companies. Expectation is for movement of tonnage this year close to the best record of the past.

Steel Corporation's Business Exceeded a Billion Last Year

Sales and Revenue Increased 43.5 Per Cent; Property Investment 2.4 Billion; Average Working Force 222,372.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 14.—The vastly expanded demand for iron and steel products which accompanied the recovery upswing in 1936 was reflected today in the pamphlet annual report of United States Steel Corporation and subsidiaries which showed gross sales and revenue of $1,089,229,007, an increase of 43.5 per cent over the $758,893,126 received in 1935.

"This improved showing in 1936," in comparison with 1935," says Chairman Myron C. Taylor in the report, "arose primarily from an increase of substantially 47 per cent in the aggregate tonnage of rolled and finished products shipped and which permitted the better employment and functioning of the various associated productive facilities of the organization."

Total assets, the report showed, increased to $1,863,976,518 from $1,822,401,741, while current assets were $485,166,358, compared with $453,183,538 the preceding year. Current liabilities totaled $103,557,708, against $69,531,148 in 1935, with increases noted in current accounts payable, accrued taxes and preferred dividends payable.

$72,713,224 for Improvements.

Gross investment in property as of December 31 is put at $2,460,205,512, of which $72,713,224 represents net capital expenditures on property account during the year and $260,579,476 depicts "intangibles" carried in the report for the first time as a separate item. This item, a note explains, is the amount comprehended in the combined assets of the corporation and subsidiary companies "for the investment cost of the capital stocks of the subsidiary companies in excess of their own investments in tangible assets."

The average number of employes working during the year, the report noted, was 222,372 compared with 194,820 in 1935, while the total pay roll was $338,866,121 against $251,576,808. Average earnings of employes were 73.7 cents an hour and the average number of hours worked per month was 172.4. In 1935 the hourly wage averaged 71.1 cents while the number of hours worked per month averaged 147.20. Regarding production the report said:

"The production in 1936 of rolled and finished steel products for sale reached a total of 11,029,616 tons, this being an increase of 47.6 per cent, or 3,555,403 tons over the production shown for the previous year. Although the 1936 tonnage reflects activity greater than in any year since 1930, it still falls short by approximately 19 per cent of reaching the average annual volume attained in the five-year period 1926 to 1930.

"It is of interest to observe in commenting on the better tonnage volume of 1936 that the improvement has come about through a regularly advancing volume of orders, the expansion being identified more prominently and definitely than in recent years in those classes of steel products which commonly are referred to as durable or capital goods."

Reorganizations in the alignment of subsidiary companies were carried out during the year in order to more closely co-ordinate activities and effect administrative and operating economies, the most important being the merger into Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation of American Sheet & Tin Plate Co. The report continues:

"The corporation and its subsidiaries have been actively occupied during the year in further carrying out plans for plant rehabilitation and expansion of productive facilities with the aim of bringing the physical resources to a point of highest modern efficiency. In carrying out this plan a comprehensive program of replacing obsolete or worn-out units through the substitution of modernized equipment and facilities, has been consistently observed.

"The program now under way was in a large sense planned to more effectively and completely serve the ever-changing and exacting needs of customer and consumer requirements in many different lines of products, and to assure to the trade that by methods of production consistent with modern and efficient operating practices it may at all times rely on dependable service and products of highest quality."

As previously reported, net income for the year was $50,525,633, equal to $2.91 a share on the common stock, against $1,146,706, or 32 cents a share on the preferred in 1935.

Rep. O'Day Entertains In Mrs. Robbins' Honor

Notable Guests at Tea Party Include Mexican Envoy and Wife; Mrs. Copeland, Speaker of the House and Mrs. Bankhead and Others.

Representative Caroline O'Day entertained at tea yesterday in her home on Twenty-second street in honor of Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins. The house is attractively furnished with rare bits of art and rich hangings. The large, extremely high ceilinged drawing room in which the hostess and her guest received, is hung with dark maroon brocades and looks out on a walled garden.

The hostess was gowned in black crepe with cream lace fashioning the bodice and cuffs on the long, full sleeves. Mrs. Robbins had on a smart frock of black satin made on tailored lines, tastening down the front with square rhinestone buttons, and with which she wore a smoothly molded hat of black soleil.

The tea table in the dining room was centered with pastel shaded spring flowers, while on the occasional tables there, in the hall and salon, were vases of Easter lilies.

Among the early arrivals were the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Castillo Najera, she in black, with a chic little hat of black, shiny straw worn at a becoming angle; Mrs. Royal S. Copeland, whose black costume was brightened by touches of lacquer red here and there; Dr. and Senora de Viteri, she attired in black and white, her black crepe frock having short sleeves of white silk braid woven in a lace pattern, and her small turban of straw of the two contrasting shades.

Also there were the Speaker of the House and Mrs. William Bankhead; the Director of the Mint, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, in a black with a long string of turquoise beads and a small beret styled hat of velvet; Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, also in black, with necklace and earrings of jade, just matching the feathers on her black medium-brimmed hat; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, the latter in black, her frock having an unique little pocket which fastened in pocketbook fashion with a rhinestone clasp; Senator Arthur Capper, Representative and Mrs. Fred Biermann, she wearing a cheery printed frock with a small black hat; Mrs. Frank Bohn, in coronation blue with beret to match, trimmed with a silver bow; the Minister of Guatemala and Mme. Recinos, she wearing a handsome gown of pewter lame with black accessories; Dr. Leo S. Rowe, the director of the Pan-American Union; Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, she in black, her tall-crowned hat trimmed with coq feathers, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Vera Bloom, also in black, her cloth coat being one of the fitted models finished with narrow turnover collar of Persian lamb; Miss Eleanor Conley, in silver lame, and Mr. Mose Cohen, of New York and Des Moines, Iowa.

Netherlands' Counselor, Mme. Molekamp Honor Baron Douglas, Wife at Party

The Commercial Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Mme. Molekamp entertained at a small cocktail party yesterday afternoon in honor of the Counselor of the Legation and Baroness van Bruegel Douglas, who are sailing March 27 for Athens, where Baron Douglas has been appointed Minister.

The Netherlands Minister and Mme. van Haersma de With were present, the latter in a black crepe frock and a small off-the-face hat which had a brief nose veil. Baroness Douglas also chose black and wore a silver fox fur with her costume.

Many members of the Diplomatic Corps were there, including Mme. Peter, the wife of the Swiss Minister, in a beige silk frock and a small black hat; Mme. von Numers, Mr. Otakar Kabelac and Maj. and Mrs. Frank Heywood, of the British Embassy. Mr. Resid Anamur, of the Turkish Embassy, and the Counselor of the German Embassy and Frau Thomsen, the latter in black with a beige fox scarf, were also among the guests.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Detlow Martinson, she with a scarlet jacket over her black frock; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Exnicious; Mrs. Nicholson Crean, who took her turn at the tea table during the afternoon; Mrs. C. C. Calhoun and Commander and Mrs. Wallace Lind.

Gen. and Mrs. William N. Haskell, of New York City, have been in Washington for a few days and during their stay are at the Carlton Hotel.

Miss Sibilla Skidelsky, daughter of Mme. Bianchi, wife of the Minister of Portugal, has left for New York City, where she will remain for about a week.

The Emil Hurjas Plan to Keep In Close Touch With Washington.

Although Mr. Emil Hurja has announced his resignation as Postmaster General James A. Farley's "right-hand man," he and Mrs. Hurja will continue to keep in touch with Washington. Mrs. Hurja will remain in their home on Thirtieth street at least until June, when she probably will join her husband in New York.

The Hurjas hope to find a historic house somewhere in Maryland or Virginia within commuting distance of Washington, where they can live part of the year.

Friends in Florence, Italy, write of meeting Mrs. George Keppel, once the friend of the late King Edward VII of England. She is often called "Queen of Florence" by the people of the Italian city who adore her for her good works. Mrs. Keppel lives in a castle known as the Villa Ombilino, once the home of Galileo Galilei, and later of the poet, Ugo Fosloro. For 15 years she has called this place "home," and it is filled with curios, books and art from her London home.

It is good news for Washington that Prince and Princess Chichibu of Japan will visit the Capital this fall. The Princess is remembered here by many schoolmates and friends as Setsu Matsudaira, daughter of the then Ambassador of Japan to the United States.

The Prince and Princess are en route to England for the coronation of King George VI. The Prince will represent his government officially. They are traveling on a battle cruiser from Yokohama to Canada and will visit Washington, it is thought, on their return voyage from England.

The Princess, when in Washington, always wore Japanese costumes at her mother's teas, but wore the usual uniform at Friend's School.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, as the wife of the Secretary of Commerce, gave a luncheon in her honor and invited all the debutantes of the season. Both the Prince and Princess play tennis well, and he is a good swimmer and favors English books.

Gen. Azcarate will sail this week for his new post as Minister to Germany.

The arrival of a dignitary from another country always starts speculations as to the reason for his visit. But William Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, is in Washington "for peace and quiet," said a spokesman at the Canadian Legation here. There will be no entertaining in his honor and he has announced that he will decline all invitations.

Mr. King visited Washington a year ago last November and at that time there were several parties given in his honor. One was a dinner at which our Ambassador to Rome and Mrs. William Phillips entertained. Mr. Phillips was then Undersecretary of State.

News comes from New Hampshire that Constance Dudley, who was frequently a guest at the Embassy dances while she was here last year, recently ran for State Representative in Hanover, where she makes her home. With her brother, Herman Dudley, she spent a year in Washington, connected with one of the New Deal agencies.

A former Smith College student (when she was there she was the youngest and one of the best-looking in her class), Miss Dudley decided a few months ago to go into politics. Brushing up on her college economics, she enlisted as a candidate in the Farmer-Labor Party. So far this party has made little impress on Republican New Hampshire and Constance went down to defeat at the polls.

Mrs. Fleming Newbold and Mrs. Henry Spencer arrived at the Ritz-Carlton in New York yesterday for a stay of several days.

Mrs. Cabot Stevens has issued invitations to an "at home" on Thursday, April 8, from 5 until 7 o'clock, in honor of Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge 2d, Mrs. Harper Sibley and Miss Lydia Cabot Stevens.

Mrs. E. Fenniman Eddy has arrived from New York City for a visit of several days and during her stay is occupying a suite at the Wardman Park Hotel.

The Washington Alumnae Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma will be guests of the active chapter of George Washington University at a meeting this evening at 8 p. m. in the student clubrooms on G street.

Larrabees Have Guests.

Longs to Attend Miami Wedding Of Miss Drake

Marriage to Mr. Karrick to Be Solemnized This Afternoon.

The former American Ambassador to Italy and Mrs. Breckenridge Long are among the Washingtonians who have gone to Miami to attend the wedding of Miss Cornelia Harsell Drake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Drake, to Mr. James Lawson Karrick, jr., son of Mrs. James L. Karrick, of Washington, which will take place in Trinity Episcopal Church, Miami, this afternoon.

The ceremony will be performed at 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Hiller. The altar will be decorated with ferns, ivy, Easter lilies and white begonias.

The bride, who will be escorted and given in marriage by her father, has selected a gown of white chiffon made over satin and fashioned with long full sleeves. The flaring skirt and train are bordered by a wide ruffle. Her veil of tulle is arranged in simple cap effect and held in place by a band of braided tulle with clusters of lilies of the valley on each side. She will carry a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Kenneth Hoeffel, sister of the bride and wife of Commander Hoeffel, U. S. N., who is attached to the U. S. S. Lexington, will be the matron of honor. Miss Louisa Bryan Price will be the maid of honor. They will be gowned alike in frocks of deep yellow chiffon over moire and will wear natural leghorn hats trimmed with black velvet. They will carry bouquets of Token roses and gerbera.

The bridesmaids, Miss Virginia Koons, of New York City, and Miss Virginia Smathers, of Miami, will wear frocks of the same style of equamarine chiffon. They, too, will wear leghorn hats and carry roses and gerbera.

Mr. David Brewer Karrick will attend his brother as best man and the ushers will include Mr. Hopewell Hebb Darneille, Mr. Richard Griffin and Mr. Thomas Moorhead, all of Washington; Mr. Leonard Clark, of New York, and Mr. Gaines Wilson, of Miami.

Following the ceremony there is to be a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The bridal couple plan an extended trip through Europe, after which they will make their home in this city.

The bride was graduated from Bryn Mawr College with the class of 1933 and Mr. Karrick received his degree from George Washington University.

Misses Howry Entertain for Shawn Dancers

Honor Guests Arrive After Difficult Drive and Crash in Storm.

The Misses Mary and Elizabeth Howry entertained yesterday afternoon at their home in Georgetown at a cocktail party in honor of Ted Shawn and his men dancers, who are appearing this evening at Constitution Hall.

Mr. Shawn and the members of his company arrived just at the hour of the party after a difficult drive through the snow from Harrisburg, Pa., where they presented a program Saturday night. They encountered a mishap on the way when a car skidded into one of their machines, but no one was injured, and the delay did not even make them late in arriving.

One of the men in the group—Mr. Foster Fitz-Simon—is a cousin of Senator Hugo L. Black, of Alabama. The others include Mr. Frank Delmar and Mr. John Delmar, who are twins and the most recent additions to the company; Mr. Frank Overlees, Mr. Barton Mumaw, Mr. Wilbur McCormack, Mr. Dennis Landers, Mr. Fred Hearn, Mr. Horace Jones and Mr. Jess Meeker, noted composer and pianist.

Members of the invitation committee for tonight's concert, who assisted at the tea table were Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, Princess Boncompagni, Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, Mrs. Mark Bristol and Mrs. Sherman Miles. Mr. Harry Woodring and Miss Mary Montgomery, who were also to have assisted, were unable to come in from their homes in the country because of the snow.

Among the guests were Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy; Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, and Mr. Robert Kelly, of the State Department; Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Rush Holt and his sister, Miss Jane Holt; Mrs. Ralph Worthington, who has just returned from Florida and who was accompanied by Mrs. Edwin Guest Gibson, of Baltimore, who, with her daughter, will go to London for the coronation with Mrs. Worthington and Miss Ethel Worthington.

Mr. and Mrs. James Spittal Robb were also there, as were Mrs. Carroll Miller and Miss Pauletta Guffey, Mr. Lyle Brookover, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Senator Theodore F. Green, Representative and Mrs. Ralph Church, Capt. and Mrs. Enrique A. Prieto, Miss Anne Squire, Mrs. Hamilton Wright, Mrs. William Mann, Mr. Otakar Rabelac, of the Czechoslovakian Legation; Mrs. Charles Minor and Mr. and Mrs. John Gregg Paine who are here from Westport, Conn., for the program, accompanied by Mrs. A. L. Omohundro.

After the cocktail party the guests of honor and a small group of other friends were entertained by the Misses Howry at a baked-bean supper. Miss Mary Howry wore a frock of black taffeta with coral trimming at the neck and waist, and Miss Elizabeth Howry also wore black with a band of turquoise trimming the bottom of her swing skirt.

Navy Officers Entertained By Jenkinses

Notables Attend Dinner Given by War-Time Bureau Aide.

Gen. MacArthur and Col. Ridley Are Feted by Parkses.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wilber Jenkins yesterday entertained at the annual "Navy party" they give on the occasion of Mr. Jenkins' birthday. The Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William D. Leahy, Admiral Hugh Rodman, Rear Admiral Emory S. Land and other distinguished members of the Navy set were among the guests at the affair.

Mr Jenkins, who was special assistant to Ambassador Josephus Daniels when he was Secretary of the Navy during the war, has a rare collection of drawings by Joseph Pennell and Vernon Howe Bailey, sketches of war-time scenes many of which have been reproduced in books and magazines. These as well as a lovely pastel portrait of little Betty Jenkins, young daughter of the host and hostess, were the subject of comment from the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins received at the entrance of the living room of their apartment, Mrs. Jenkins wearing an afternoon gown of satin, a closely fitted bodice of American beauty shade and the long, flowing skirt of black.

Bouquets of snapdragons and daffodils decorated the front rooms and in the dining room, where Mrs. Herbert J. Drane presided at the tea table, there were daffodils and also a great bouquet of forsythia. Little Miss Betty, who wore a blue satin frock and her brown curls down her back, was doing her part in greeting friends, and Mrs. Jenkins' sister, Miss Helen van Luven, who is here from Canada spending the winter, and Mrs. Jack Sachse assisted the hostess.

Friends were congratulating Admiral Land on his appointment as a member of the Maritime Commission and Admiral Rodman on his being named to represent the United States at the coronation.

War Events Discussed.

Many interesting incidents of the war period were recalled as the naval officers who served together in important posts at that time assembled again in the Navy "reunion" at the Jenkins home.

Admiral and Mrs. Hillary P. Jones were there as were Rear Admiral George R. Clark, who was wartime Judge Advocate General of the Navy, and Mrs. Clark; Rear Admiral Mark Bristol, who was high commissioner to Constantinople during the war, and Mrs. Bristol, the Misses Ethel and Belle Begley, sisters of Mrs. Josephus Daniels; Gen. and Mrs. Albert Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hubbard, who came from Chesterton, despite the snow, to attend the party; Capt. A. H. Binyon, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Doughton and Miss Reba Doughton, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. W. Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Abell, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Albion.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Hugh Mathews were accompanied by Mrs Mathews' sister, Miss Joy Montgomery Higgins, of New York. They were in a group with Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Tribby and the theater was most naturally the subject of conversation. Mrs. Tribby is expecting her daughter, Mrs. John Halliday, wife of the noted star, to come from New York for a visit the second week in April, bringing her little son, John, jr. Mrs. Albert P. Niblack was also among the guests, having come with Admiral and Mrs. Leahy.

There was an "Army party," as well as one for the Navy group yesterday.

Parkes Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. Tilman B. Parks entertained informally in their home on Decatur street in honor of Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur and the Governor General of the Panama Canal Zone, Col. Clarence Ridley, both of whom are in Washington for short visits.

Among the guests were Senator and Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, she attired in black and beige; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frederick Boschen, Mrs. Boschen wearing a gown of black and silver lame with a silver fox scarf; the Surgean General and Mrs. Charles R. Reynolds, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Wallace DeWitt, Representative and Mrs. Herman Kopplemann, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Augustus W. Warfield, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. L. P. Bischoff, the latter wearing an ensemble of black with scarf and belt of Roman striped silk; Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Miles, the latter in Eleanor blue; Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Hayes, Mrs. Hayes wearing a frock of black printed with cream, purple and light blue, with a wide-brimmed hat of black straw.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

My—but wasn't the Mexican Embassy a gay place Saturday evening! The Ambassador and Mme. Castillo Najera were entertaining in celebration of their twentieth wedding anniversary and the seventeenth birthday anniversary of their pretty daughter, Erma.

One of the most colorful embassies in this city, one has to deal in superlatives in attempting to describe the decorations for the party. Great baskets of flowers—gifts to the popular diplomatic couple and the fetching young senorita—were everywhere, and it behooved one to take careful step lest he trip and fall into one of these miniature gardens.

Mme. Najera, who is one of the most delightful of Capital hostesses—was wearing a grown of bright blue starched lace. Erma was prettily garbed in misty white tulle, while her cousin, Lupe Davila, whose rapid recovery from her appendicitis is still marveled at, was in lemon crepe fashioned with an interesting strap arrangement on the shoulders.

The boys, Francisco and Luis, who get more grown-up each time we see them, were buzzing about with some of their own little clique. How these youngsters can dance! They keep going till you'd think their shoes would be worn out.

Little Memo, youngest member of the family who long ago abandoned the sitting-in-a-corner-with-eyes-wide-with-wonder (a habit with most tots) was up till very late and not one bit sleepy.

Whirlographs on the party would include . . . Gen. Azcarate, the retiring Military Attache, introducing his successor and Senora de Anecua . . . the recently arrived diplomat's wife is one of those lovely blonde Italians with golden hair and large, clear blue eyes . . . she met her dark, handsome husband while he was at his recent station in her homeland . . .

The Trucco girls, Rebeca, Marta and Chela, with their house guest, Olga Patterson; their escorts, and brother Manuel, having a busy evening with this as well as the German party to attend . . .

Mark Schapiro with Patsy Brewer, in white chiffon and rhinestones, sipping lemonade while inspecting the "village" of birds out in the patio where the beverages are served . . .

The Nikola Perazics arriving and she critically re-arranging her gown, which we learned had arrived at her home just 20 minutes before they started for the party . . . a heavenly creation straight from Paris and fashioned of gold metallic lace, serving as a background for those famously dainty French flowers . . .

The pleasure of seeing the Rafael Fuentes in our midst again—she wearing an entirely new coiffure and a gown of fuchsia chiffon and he looking surprisingly rested after such a busy trip . . .

Carlos Blanco and Adolfo Paez, each quietly saying good-by—Carlos to leave tomorrow for New York and thence for London, the coronation and his new post, and Adolfo departed today for the West Coast to be gone many months . . .

Dick Gatewood, young man of our Foreign Service, just back from Zurich, where he was Vice Consul and completely under the magic spell of the Alps country . . .

Petite Laura Recinos, in peacock blue satin, and towering Sebastian Valverde, finally sitting down on a bench so that they might converse more easily . . .

Lulu Quintanilla in a dainty figured frock, chatting with a young gentleman who bore a remarkable resemblance to her brother, the Counselor of the Embassy, and who turned out to be none other than Pedro Quintanilla, another brother, in town for a short visit . . .

Finally everyone reluctantly taking leave and turning homeward with memories of a feast fit for kings—rollicking laughter—irresistible music—a truly enjoyable evening.

Mr. Remey Offers Religious Music In Last of Series

Mr. Charles Mason Remey last night entertained at his home on Massachusetts avenue at the last of a series of Sunday evening musicales he has given during the Lenten season, followed by a buffet supper.

The program of religious music was presented by Mr. Walter Nash, at the organ, and a quartet including Mrs. Helen Stover, Mrs. Teresa Shrader, Mr. Henry Leef and Mr. John M. Waters. It was given in a setting of candlelight with the artistic little chapel at the front of the music room revealed as the curtains were drawn aside when the guests were seated.

After the program supper was served downstairs in the library, which had been converted into a dining room for the occasion.

Easter Outfit, So Important to Fashionable Women, Requires Deep Planning

Post's Expert Begins Series On Style Marts

Suit Offers Opportunity for Individuality in Spring Ensemble.

By Ethel Ehlen,
The Post Fashion Editor.

Your Easter outfit may make or break you. So give serious thought to its selection. To be smart these days requires brains—and plenty of long-distance planning.

The Post's Fashion Editor who recently attended fashion openings in New York and visited the merchandise markets with Washington buyers is presenting practical advice about clothes buying in a series of articles. Today she discusses the suit.

IF YOU SELECT a suit for your Easter costume, you will not only be fashion-correct, but if you choose with discrimination, you can be individual in your ensemble. Never before has the suit been as popular as it is this spring. However, the traditional suit has changed its personality. Because of the diversity in styling and materials, you now speak of your suits instead of your suit.

The unprecedented popularity of the suit has completely revolutionized the wardrobe, and many fastidious women are following the advice of a famous French designer and wearing suits exclusively for daytime. Consequently they must have suits appropriate for varied daytime occasions.

While there are numerous styles in suits from which to make a choice this spring, the first consideration is to select a creation which is becoming to your particular type of figure. Bold plaids and belted jackets are for the tall and slim and not for the short and plump. A short jacket is more flattering to the person of small stature than a suit with coat of three-quarter length. Styling determines this to a certain degree, however—for instance, if the coat is loose and boxy, it may be worn by almost anyone, but if it is fitted, the tall person wears it best. Generally speaking, jackets and skirts of contrasting colors and materials were not designed for the short person, whether slim or plump.

Following the unanimous trend for femininity and youthfulness, the soft suit has taken precedence over the mannish tailored types. The newest tailored suits are feminized by softly draped revers, sleeve detail in some instances, collarless versions to accommodate scarfs, rounded closings instead of the more severe lines, and feminine accessories. This should prove a boon to the woman who heretofore has thought that she could not wear a tailored suit well. The new suit woolens, too, are soft in texture and feminine in color tones; gone are the nubs and slubs, feathers and bristling hairs, which identified the woolens of other seasons.

Colors Combined.

Two, three and four colors are combined and contrasted—all of them gay and lively. Besides the conventional black, navy and ultra-smart beige, aquamarine, clear and dusty pinks, bright and soft greens, demure grays, are also part of the springtime suit color palette. Black merges with beige or gray; navy and poudre blue combine ideally; patterns and solid colors in one suit are smart for spectator sports wear. For the casual type of suit, it is fun to plan various ensembles and thus make one basic suit serve as many costumes by additional jackets, skirts, sweaters and blouses. The same is true of the simple, tailored suit—with varied accessories, it may be changed to meet almost any occasion.

The suit vogue has become so far-reaching that dresses have gone suit-conscious, and scarcely one of them appears without its accompanying jacket. These suit-dresses have Eton, bolero, redingote or basque-like jackets of self-material or striking contrasts. The 1937 redingotes are the epitome of youthful smartness; you can effectively ensemble your own combining print or solid-colored silk crepe frocks with redingote coats of sheer wool. Three-piece suits, consisting of a softly tailored suit and fur-collared topcoat, are as practical as they are chic. The coat may be worn with other suits or with frocks, and the suit topped with different coats or capes. These may be monotone or planned in two-color themes; both are smart and sponsored by fashion authorities.

If you are tall and willowy, the three-piece suit in contrasting skirt blouse and jacket (left) would do a lot for you in the way of chic. It should not be worn by the short, plump woman. The three-piece suit (below) of soft tweed, is versatile enough to become any figure—short, tall, slim or stout. For the not-so-slim who want to give the illusion of slenderness, the redingote-effect suit (right), with knee length wool jacket, is both smart and flattering, and can be worn late into the summer.

All of these suits not only are appropriate for Easter but fit in with the fashion picture for later in the season. The coats of all three can be worn with other dresses or can be discarded entirely. Both of the three-piece suits may be varied with accessories.

Rose beige antique pastel tweed, in a double-breasted, 12-button, three-piece suit. The coat fits snugly at shoulders and then flows out to great fullness. A wine ascot gives a dash of color.

Country Clothes Grip Spring Style Spotlight

Paris (AP).—Country clothes and gardening trousers are edging into the style spotlight with the approach of spring.

The latter come in fuzzy wools which are striped or plaid and have slide fasteners at the sides. Each leg is neatly creased and has a cuff at the bottom. Topped with sweaters or suede jackets, such trousers will do many smart turns in numerous gardens during the coming season.

Even raincoats for country wear are so attractive it is a pleasure to wear them. One of them, a three-quarter-length coat of shiny, black material, has three big black plastic buttons cut in cooky size and shape.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Beginning mothers and fathers are to be pitied because they suffer so much unnecessary agony. The baby seems to them an infinitestimally small, delicate, highly destructible object, and every once in a while it does something which appears to one with its interests at heart as if it had deliberately attempted to suspend the process of life.

One of these things is breath holding. It looks, indeed, terrifying, but, as a matter of fact, it never did any harm. No human being on earth can voluntarily hold his breath to the point of suffocation, because, even if it goes so far that he loses consciousness, as soon as this occurs, the automatic processes of life take over and start the regular function of respiration.

The children who are subject to breath-holding spells usually are nervous and easily affected by sudden shock or fright, or by a fall or hurt. These children rapidly learn to prolong the agony when they find that it brings them extra favors or attention. They quickly learn to hold their breath at will and the condition gradually increases, especially if they find that they can get their own way by doing so. If the spells are not from habit, dashing cold water in the face helps the child regain its breath. When the spells are from habit, the best treatment is to leave the room and let the child enjoy its special performance without an audience. If this is done, the little one will soon cease putting on a show.

Similar to breath holding is crying. My friend, Dr. M. C. Overton, of Lubbock, Tex., in an excellent little book for mothers, called "Your Baby and Child," says: "The rather usual remark that I make in my office is that a crying baby hurts the mother worse than it hurts the baby. Particularly is this true of a mother with her first child, because the young mother is greatly disturbed if her baby cries very much."

The commonest cause of excessive crying in the first few months of a baby's life is hunger. Sometimes an overfed baby will cry from distress and gas. Crying is the only voice a little baby has, and it is good for it to develop normal use of its voice. Good lung expansion follows crying and it exercises the muscles. Dr. Overton also says that it is especially desirable that an infant be awakened from 15 to 30 minutes before each feeding and cry. It develops a good appetite for its coming meal. Of course, we assume that nobody has coupled a safety pin into the baby's skin. Short of these things, the best thing to do is to let the baby cry it out.

Editor's Note.—Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

Easter Prologue.

"I'm simply not going to show my face outside this house Easter."

"What's the matter?"

"I haven't anything to wear.'

"What's the matter with the dress you got on?"

"That's just like a man; I wasn't talking about a dress. I was talking about a hat. I positively know I'm the only woman in town who hasn't got a new hat."

"But you just got a new hat."

"Silly! That hat's old as the hills. I wouldn't be caught out——"

"But it was on the February bill."

"Just the same I've been wearing it since December. Tell me one thing—do you think I could wear a hat Easter I've been wearing since December?"

"But it's a spring hat — it's straw——"

"Of course! Do you suppose I could have gone out Christmas without a new straw hat? I'd been the laughing stock of the town. Now I suppose you want me to disgrace you by wearing my old winter hat for Easter."

"But you just said it was a spring hat——"

"Of course it's a spring hat. But it's a winter-spring hat."

"But Easter's spring!"

"That's just like a man! You ought to know nobody wears spring hats for Easter. Say. I'd be ashamed to be caught on the streets this late with a spring hat."

"Well, but——"

"Of course if you want to make all the men at your office laugh at you because your wife's still wearing her old spring hat——"

"Well, get a summer hat then."

"There's no such thing as a summer hat. If you mean a spring-summer hat, or a summer-spring hat, or even a summer-summer hat——"

"It's all too deep for me."

"It's the simplest thing in the world. You just don't want to understand. You just want me to wear my old spring-winter hat——"

"I thought you said it was a winter-spring hat."

"Well, anyway, it's a last season hat. If I wear it Easter I can just hear everybody saying, 'There goes Mrs. Gink in her OLD spring-winter hat!'"

"Why don't you get a spring-spring hat, then?"

"That's just like a man! You want me to get a spring-spring hat when you know nobody'll be wearing spring-spring hats after March. I know what you think—you think they'll be cheaper because their season's over——"

"I don't know anything about it. For heaven's sakes, what kind of a hat do you want?"

"Well, I might get a spring-summer hat . . . still it's a little late for that . . . a summer-spring hat might be better—I'm sick and tired of always being a million miles behind the times . . . I've always been such a slow type anyway——"

"Say, I've got an idea! Why don't you do this if you really want to be ahead of everybody for Easter—why don't you get yourself a nice fall hat?"

"If that isn't just like a man! If I did that, what on earth would I get for the Fourth of July?"

Smartness Chief Woman's Asset, Stylist Declares

New York (AP).—"There is nothing that can defeat a smart woman. A successful career, personal happiness and the route to a man's heart are all open to her," says Alma Archer, New York style expert.

"I divide smartness into three classifications," she said this week.

"First is appearance under which come apparel, grooming and posture; second, personality, made up of character, conversation, voice and brains; and third, etiquette."

Conversational ability is seven times as important as "brains" in social life, said Miss Archer, and lack of it can defeat smart appearance.

"What good is the right hat," she asked, "if when you open your mouth you can't talk?"

Patent Leather Popular

Hollywood—Shoes, belts and bags of patent leather climb on the band wagon again after a season or two of being ignored. In black and browns they are much in evidence, and Jeanne Madden even wears patent-leather-covered buttons of dubonnet to excellent advantage on a powder blue top coat.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, March. 14.

WELL, this is the day we working girls, like our laboring brothers, have to lay it smartly on the line for our beloved and paternal Government.

ALICE HUGHES.

Marie Dressler, rest her soul, used to sing that Heaven would protect us, and so, I foundly trust, it does—but not from good old Form A-23456, Schedule B; Marie didn't realize that one day hundreds and thousands of working women in New York, and every other town, would face the horrid prospect of trying to figure it all out, and then forking over, along with the men.

I know at least a dozen feminine hot-shots here who take in between $15,000 and $50,000 a year, and their struggles are terrific and woeful at tax time. Men have always accused our sex of being a bit devious and oblique in such matters as petty cash, taxes and minor smuggling. I wonder. At any rate, let our consciences, if any, be our guides!

* * * *

Again our governor, Mr. Lehman, is trying to whip various social justice bills through his balky Legislature at Albany, containing, as it does, assorted elements from all over this big State.

As usual, many of them pertain to working women. He has a bill to insure an 8-hour day and 48-hour week for all women and minors employed in hotels and restaurants. Another would prevent girls under 21 from working in such establishments at night.

A social-minded governor, Mr. Lehman, and whether everyone agrees with such regulatory legislation or not, he'll never be ruled off for not trying, according to his lights!

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN.—Memories of over a decade ago return as I hear that Clare Sheridan, sculptor and author, is still prostrated by the untimely death of her young son, Dick Sheridan, in Algeria! Remember how famed Clare was as a diarist—how she went to Russia to "sculp" Lenin and Trotsky, and then wrote "Mayfair to Moscow?" Now comes this new sad word of a talented and witty woman who has had more than her share of this world's woe . . . .

The latest WPA project to open its doors here is one to teach girls and women how to prepare beauty aids.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

'Probably Old Stuff to You but New and Bitter to Me,' Says Woman Who Loves a Married Man.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My story is probably old stuff to you but it's new and very bitter to me. For over a year now I have been in love with my employer and he with me. I am over 30 years old and this is my first, and probably my last, love affair and somehow, everything has gone wrong. The man is married to an incurable invalid. When we found we were in love with each other he felt sure she would give him a divorce.

* * * *

I felt very sorry for her but much sorrier for him tied for 15 years to a woman he did not love and who had been sick most of their married life. There are no children. He is about 48 years old and anxious to have a real home and children, and I think he has a right to them. He is very social and likes to go places and dance and have a drink now and then, but his wife is too ill to dance or go out much and besides, she is very strait-laced.

* * * *

Well, a little more than a year ago he asked her to divorce him. She didn't refuse exactly, but kept stalling him off and playing a waiting game. We were pretty careless about letting people see us together and suspect things. He took me out to dinner and lunch and we stayed late at the office almost every night, supposedly working. Gossip started around the office and his superior got wind of it. My employer denied everything and said it was just ugly gossip started by his enemies. Anyway, we decided we would have to lie low for a while until the gossip blew over. Meanwhile, he said he would persuade his wife to give him the divorce.

* * * *

That was a year ago. We are still lying low. He claims he still loves me and acts as if he did sometimes when we are alone, but when he is with his wife in public he tries to show people how devoted he is to her. I think he is still trying to prove that there wasn't any truth in the gossip, although, of course, there was. I have come to feel that he cares more about proving that than he does about me. The point is, if he did get a divorce and marry me, everybody would remember the gossip and know it was true, and I am coming to think he would rather go on as he is than give his enemies a chance to say "I told you so."

* * * *

I suppose I sound pretty callous about it all, but I do love him, and I know it is our last chance to have a home and children, and I think she is very selfish to hold on to him. She had him for 15 years and didn't make him happy.

* * * *

How can we get around his wife's selfishness and how can I make him feel that love and happiness with me are worth more to him than the petty satisfaction he is getting out of proving that his enemies lied about him? I hope you can tell me what to do. UNHAPPY.

The Pot and the Kettle.

DEAR UNHAPPY: Call her selfish if you will, but the man's wife is entirely within her rights in using every wile and subterfuge to hold him. Ask yourself honestly: Is she any more selfish at heart than you, who would take her husband if you could? You may say, "But I love him and he loves me." But she can no doubt say the same and mean it. Man and wife cannot live together in comparative peace and harmony for 15 years without an almost unbreakably strong bond of affectionate habit growing up between them. And during the past year, since the wife has known she was in danger of losing her husband, she has, no doubt, exerted herself to be as charming and winning as she was in their courtship days.

* * * *

While I sympathize deeply with your predicament and can understand how you might have been drawn, almost against your will, into this heart-breaking triangle, nevertheless I say: More power to the wife who can hold her husband against the other woman. You have been a formidable rival, you know. You had youth and health and the witchery of newness, not to mention the enormous advantage of professional propinquity. You also had daring, as is evidenced by the fact that you went ahead with an affair. The wife was older, ailing, more or less uninteresting because of long accustomedness. But she proved her cleverness and intelligence in "playing the waiting game," in refusing to meet the issue head-on, in giving the affair time to wear itself out. For that is what is happening.

* * * *

The man is that type of moral and social coward who can never care for anyone quite as much as he cares for himself, and for that reason, he will probably never leave his wife. If it was a simple choice between you and her, he might take you; but the choice entails much more than that, to him. He is afraid it might cost him his job, his social standing, his professional rating, the respect and esteem of his friends and acquaintances. If he were not afraid, he would go ahead regardless of the cost and make a new place for himself.

* * * *

There is but one thing for you to do, and that is to break off with him and find another job elsewhere. Find another man to love and marry. This is not your last chance. Since it is your first love affair, it may be the inception of a new and deeper understanding of life, a richer maturity of mind and emotion, which will make you a more attractive and more lovable woman than you have been before. M. H.

Labor to Back Court Plan as DebateReopens

Senate Hearings to Be Resumed Tomorrow; Vote in July Sought.

egree of progress I am satisfied."

Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), Nebraska, a leader in the opposition to the court reorganization, said he had not been advised what witnesses will be called by advocates of the plan this week. The opponents will start presenting witnesses next week. Senator Burton K. Wheeler, an opponent who was scheduled to open for the opposition today, will be unable to appear, and by agreement appearance of opposition witnessses was delayed for a week.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is expected to be a witness this week. He, personally, has indorsed the court change and the executive council of the federation has taken similar action.

Whether John L. Lewis, head of the rival labor group, the Committee for Industrial Organization, will be a witness was not known last night. However, he is scheduled to deliver a Nation-wide broadcast address in favor of the plan, under auspices of Labor's Nonpartisan League.

In his letter to the Massachusetts Senators, Mr. Conant said:

"I am not one who believes the recent decisions of the Supreme Court confront the country with no serious problems. I believe they do.

Calls Change Necessary.

"Personally I should wish to live under the present Constitution as written, but not as interpreted by the minority of the present court. Some measures should be devised to alter the existing situation. Even the proposal now before the Senate, if cast as a constitutional amendment (thereby fixing the size of the court), might be defensible."

"My opposition to the President's proposal," he explained, "is based primarily on one point. The Administration intends to bring about what seems to most laymen a constitutional change without a special appeal to the country—an appeal which might have been submitted to the voters a few months ago.

"Lawyers apparently agree that the measure is constitutional, but to a vast majority of those not versed in the subleties of the law the procedure seems but a method of circumventing the traditional American principle of an independent court."

Arguments that an "emergency" exists "must be examined under the greatest care," Dr. Conant said. "Unless this is done, the country may proceed under the banner of emergency legislation down a road which leads to the abolition of democratic government.

"I have heard no evidence presented which indicates it is necessary to settle this question of the Supreme Court before the time required for submission of an amendment to the country."

Court Meets Today.

Menawhile the Supreme Court itself is to meet at noon today and might announce decisions on a number of important cases. Following today's session the justices recess until March 29.

Pending are five cases attacking the Wagner labor relations act, with eight new appeals awaiting decision by the court whether they will be reviewed.

Awaiting decision also is an attack on the Washington State law establishing minimum wages for women. A similar law in New York State was declared unconstitutional last June.

Before the court is an appeal for reconsideration of the four-to-four decision upholding the New York unemployment insurance act, and a petition by Norman C. Norman, of New York, attacking the old-age benefit sections of the national social security act.

3-Day Suitor Buys License (in Vain), Says Mrs. Johnson

Chicago, March 14 (U.P.).—Arthur Walker, middle-aged Chicago artist, obtained a license yesterday to marry Mrs. Osa Johnson, widow of the explorer, Martin Johnson, who was killed in an airliner's crash in California three months ago—but the prospective bride indicated it would not be used.

"It's perfectly ridiculous," she laughed. "I'm not going to marry anybody.

"He's just an admirer—I've only known the man for three days."

Walker went to the license bureau this morning and obtained the license after being assured Mrs. Johnson's personal appearance was unnecessary. He explained she was "confined to a wheel chair."

Bar Opposes Court Change In Every State

D. C. Lawyers, However, Among Minor Foes, Analysis Shows.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 14.—The American Bar Association, analyzing the 16,132-to-2,563 vote of its members against "an increase in the number of justices of the Supreme Court," reported today the plan was disapproved in every State, the District of Columbia and the Territories.

Justice Edward T. Fairchild of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, chairman of the association's board of election, said the ballots were mailed to 29,000 members of the association, and 19,136 returned them "properly authenticated and prior to the closing of the polls." An additional 540 ballots were not authenticated or arrived late.

126,000 to Be Polled.

The association announced at the same time it was conducting a poll among 126,000 lawyers who are not members of the national organization to determine their views on President Roosevelt's recommendations for reorganization of the Federal judiciary.

The highest ratio of votes adverse to the plan as it applied to the Supreme Court was in Nebraska, where association members opposed it, 235 to 15. The lowest ratio was in Florida, where members voted 262 to 92 against. The average of all votes was about 6 to 1 against.

D. C. Among Least Opposed.

The association's members in Maine, Vermont and South Dakota joined Nebraskans in voting most heavily against the Supreme Court proposal, while those in Mississippi, the District of Columbia and the Territories were with Florida as the least opposed.

The adverse ratio in the former group was more than 14 to 1, while that in the latter group was about 4 to 1.

Justice Fairchild said the vote "decides the policy (of the association), and we shall ac. accordingly."

Heart Disease Causes Death Of McCormick

National Theater Employe Dies at 56; Burial to Be in Arlington.

James Collier ("Jack") McCormick, long a popular figure in Washington theatrical circles, died of a heart attack yesterday while cleaning snow from his automobile in front of his home, the Decatur Apartments, 2122 Decatur place northwest. He was 56.

He had been associated with the National Theater for 15 years, first as advertising agent and then as doorman.

Born in Philadelphia on February 14, 1881, McCormick ran away from home at the age of 13 to join the Ringling Brothers Circus. After tourning the country for two years, he joined a theatrical advertising firm in New York. There followed many years as advance agent for shows. He went "ahead" of such stars as Lillian Russell, George Cohan and the Barrymores.

When the United States entered the World War, McCormick enlisted with the 113th infantry and went to France with the Twenty-ninth Division. After the war, he came here as advance agent for "Way Down East." Thereafter he was advance agent for Anne Nichols' spectacular success, "Abie's Irish Rose." Leaving that show in Pittsburgh, he came back to Washington and "settled down."

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Margaret Bryan, of Brooklyn.

Funeral services have been tentatively set for 2 p. m. tomorrow at Hysong's funeral chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Girl Dies, Pilot Hurt in Borrowed Plane

Danbury, Conn., March 14 (AP).—A 19-year-old girl was killed and the pilot severely injured today when a borrowed plane crashed immediately after taking off from the Danbury Airport.

Miss Helen Zack, of Danbury, died on the way to Danbury Hospital. The pilot, Francis B. Fox, 26, of East Norwalk, was taken to the hospital.

Clifford Sadler, manager of the airport and owner of the plane, said Fox held a transport pilot's license.

Hush-Hush or Health?

Ignorance, High Fees Delayed Early Curb of Social Disease

Expansion of Clinic Facilities and Free Anti-luetic Drugs Needed to Cut Syphilis-Gonorrhea Toll in D. C., Physician Says.

(This article is the eighth of a series to acquaint citizens with the tragic neglect of the venereal disease problem in the District of Columbia.)

By Gerald G. Gross.

"Venereal disease must be put under control if we are to survive," says a prominent Washington physician who treats many cases of syphilis. "It can be put under control, as those best acquainted with the situation well know, and as has been demonstrated in sveral other countries.

"It will be put under control in this country, because the public is rapidly becoming sufficiently enlightened to demand energetically that it be done. The medical profession could have put venereal disease under control years ago if it had not been for two factors.

"First, because the public was not sufficiently informed, and, second, because the medical profession and also many hospitals charged outrageously for treatment of such cases. Of course, in cases that have no means the profession freely rendered valuable service.

"The control of communicable diseases in this country is a legitimate function of the State, and if venereal disease had been in the same class as other communicable diseases they would have, no doubt, been put under control long ago."

Free Drugs Necessary.

The District would make swift progress in cutting its syphilis-gonorrhea toll, he believes, if clinic facilities for indigent sufferers were expanded and antiluetic drugs were furnished free to all physicians and dispensaries treating persons able to pay little or nothing.

Maryland and Massachusetts furnish arsenicals and the so-called "heavy metals"—bismuth and mercury—without cost to clinics and doctors.

In connection with the desired expansion of the city's clinics and improvement of their services, the doctor quoted above points out that far too few spinal punctures are performed here on patients under treatment. This practice is a precaution against develpoment of neurological complications and is recommended strongly by spyhilologists.

Capt. Rhoda J. Milliken, head of the Women's Bureau, is brought face to face daily with the practical aspects of our venereal disease problem. She thinks that strict enforcement of the public-health laws, with particular reference to compulsory examination and treatment of sex offenders, and licensing of rooming house operated by absentee landlords would go far toward a solution.

Early Diagnosis.

Dr. R. A. Vonderlehr, assistant surgeon general of the Public Health Service in charge of venereal disease control, places emphasis upon early diagnosis, increased facilities for treatment and education of the public to the facts of the problem.

With physicians here and throughout the country sharply divided on the question of free drugs, Dr. Vonderlehr is on the "pro" side and believes the majority would welcome adoption of this mode of attack. He is a defender of routine blood tests for all hospital patients, whether they have been admitted for a tonsillectomy, appendicitis or anything else, and would like to see more physicians install dark-field microscopes for use in early diagnosis of syphilis.

The 1936 report of the sub-committee on venereal disease, District Medical Society, recommended:

Prophylactic advice by physicians in their private and clinic practice "in so far as their experience therein has been profitable."

An educational program among laymen.

Establishment of diagnostic centers.

Employment of a full-time venereal disease director and a full-time epidemiologist by the Health Department.

Free distribution of anti-syphilitic drugs in return for which the physician and the clinic will furnish the Health Department with the names and addresses of all cases under treatment with especial reference to all new cases.

Hospitalization of acute cases. "No hospital shall receive subsidy which refuses to accept cases of gonorrhea and syphilis to its beds.'"

Q. Do all doctors give the Wassermann test?

A. No, though one will be made if the patient requests it. Many Washington physicians, especially obstetricians, make blood tests routinely on prospective mothers.

Q. Is there any clinic which gives the test for a nominal fee?

A. The Central Admitting Bureau reports that no clinics charge for this service. To the patient of a private physician the fee is $5 or less.

Q. What is the usual charge for treatments?

A. In syphilis cases, the fee per visit may be from $2 to $5. Most of the hospital clinics ask $1 per treatment.

Q. Is gonorrhea curable?

A. According to one specialist, this disease can be cured in three months if the patient follows the doctor's orders rigidly.

Man, Asking Hand Of Girl, 9, Killed By Angered Father

Chicago, March 14 (AP).—Assistant State's Attorney Sam Papanek, investigating the death of Edward Kraftheffer, said today that Andrew Hoagland, 35, had confessed striking Kraftheffer, also 35, because the latter had professed love for Hoagland's 9-year-old daughter, Caroline.

The prosecutor said Hoagland told him he and Kraftheffer, who roomed at the Hoagland home, had quarreled last night because Kraftheffer said he "wanted to marry Caroline." Hoagland said he struck Kraftheffer with his fist. The blow knocked him unconscious. A physician was called, but Kraftheffer was dead when he arrived.

Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937

By Bob Burns.

There's no gettin' away from it. We're a pretty self-centered lot. we don't worry a whole lot about anything that doesn't affect us. We'll sit down at breakfast and skim over the headlines of the morning paper telling about thousands starvin' to death in the foreign countries and maybe we'll give a little weak sigh, but we'll get up from the table in a rage and storm out of the house and sulk all day if the bacon ain't crisp or the eggs ain't done jest right.

I went into a Chinese laundry the other day and I happened to overhear a man talkin' to the proprietor. The man was sayin' "Now, I don't want'ta be mean about this, but there's one thing I can't stand for and that's carelessness."

He says, "What in the world is gettin' the matter with you fellas? First you lose Manchuria and then you lose two of my best handkerchiefs."

The radio insiders around town are congratulating the Government—something seldom done—on its acquiring of Shannon Allen as assistant director of WPA's Educational Radio Project . . . They are recalling how Allen used to encourage the beginners in radio work; are pinning on his coat lapel more tributes than Allen, a modest man, probably wants . . . That kindly-faced man you have seen sitting and puffing heavy black cigars, in the Cosmos Club is Dr. Raphael Zon, briefly in Washington from his post as head of the Lake States' Forest Experiment Station . . . His interest in the human side of everything is as big as the big outdoors he has done so much for.

Social Security Board Union people point out grade three clerks at grade two pay; clerical staff doing the work of professionals; high grade work at low-grade pay—"these abuses are a tradition in the Government service . . . In 1923 Government employes unions forced the classification act through a reluctant Congress, to achieve 'equal pay for equal work,' and now finds this act all too often inoperative. . . . And especially is the act violated among lower paid employes. . . . Higher powered executives and experts have a bargaining power that can compel adequate salaries. . . . The low-paid employe has no such individual bargaining power. . . . He must bargain collectively or be futile and ineffective." . . . All of which was pointed out in announcing that the grievance committee of the union is preparing a program for reclassification throughout the board, in addition to taking up individual grievances.

Relief Plea Voiced From 375 Pulpits

Community Welfare Called Dependent on Drive.

Active Support Urged for 3,000 Unable to Get Work.

From 375 pulpits, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergymen yesterday pleaded for active support of the drive of the Council of Social Agencies for adequate relief funds to care for 3,000 employables who cannot get work or relief.

The council is appealing for a relief appropriation of $2,465,000 in the District appropriations bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1 to extend aid to unemployed men and women who are unable to find jobs.

The Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, pastor of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church and president of the Council of Social Agencies, in his sermon yesterday said:

"The people of Washington must insist that the Commissioners commend this project to the budget committee with conviction and then all citizens must make known to members of Congress that they will stand back of the Commissioners. This effort to help the unemployed "employables" will do much to sustain the health, moral and general welfare of this community."

"Challenge to Humanity."

The Rev. F. W. Perkins, pastor of the National Memorial Universalist Church, said:

"I want to call your attention to a situation in Washington that is a challenge to every instinct of our common humanity. At least 3,000 people, able and willing to work, or 10,000 people including their dependents, can obtain neither work nor relief, public or private.

"WPA jobs which are supposed to provide for the unemployed people are not enough to go around and are likely to be diminished in number. The relief funds of the board of public welfare are for unemployable people only. Private agencies have more than they can care for now. Only public appropriation for relief to the board of public welfare, large enough to care for the employable people who have not been absorbed into private industry, can meet the need.

"It is nothing short of a national disgrace that under the shadow of the Capitol and the White House, helpless men, women and children are slowly facing starvation, evictions, disease-breedin and crime-breeding conditions. Every public-spirited citizen, every lover of the good name of Washington should unite in demanding of the Appropriation Committees of the House and Senate that money be provided to end this tragic situation."

Rabbi Sees Urgent Need.

"Private agencies can no longer cope with this situation," Rabbi Simon told the Washington Hebrew Congregation. "We are compelled to seek help from Congress."

Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld at the Friday evening services at the temple pointed out that economic insecurity basically affects the adjustment of every human being.

The Rev. O. J. Hart, of St. John's Episcopal Church, urged his congregation to support the drive for a larger relief appropriation.

The Rev. W. S. Abernethy, of Calvary Baptist Church, said:

"Recently the daily press reported a statement said to have come from the Budget Bureau that responsibility for caring for Washington's employables was up to the churches of this city.

A large number of clergymen also indorsed the drive of the United Government Employes Organization for a minimum annual salary of $1,500.

Government Costs Assailed by League

The National Economy League said yesterday that an "alarming increase" in governmental costs "may throw our whole economic system out of adjustment."

The warning was sounded by John C. Gebhart, league director, in a study in the March issue of the Watch Dog, publication of the league. He said that taxes collected in 1913 by Federal, State and local governments totaled $2,211,000,000, or $22.66 per capita. If the Federal budget is balanced at the present expenditure level, he added, tax collections will aggregate $14,000,000,000, or $109 per capita. Added to this, within the next ten years, would be $2,000,000,000 collected in social security taxes.

The relation of governmental costs to national income shows the same upward trend, according to Gebhart. In 1913 all governmental outlays represented 8.8 per cent of the national income. From 1923 to 1928 the proportion ranged from 13 to 14 per cent, but mounting governmental costs and falling income brought the ratio to practically 30 per cent in 1934. Rising income in the past two years has reduced the ratio slightly, he said.

Rector Assails Greed, Gaming And Dishonesty

Rev. William R. Moody, in Pulpit, Attacks Sharp Practices Here.

Lashing out at greed as the basis of many of the Nation's ills, the Rev. William R. Moody asserted in a sermon yesterday in St. Mark's Episcopal Church, that "our world is rotten with greediness."

"You can not have efficient law enforcement, nor civic peace, nor justice, nor safety in person and property in a community possessed by greed," the rector declared to the congregation in the church on Capitol Hill. "Greedy business men, greedy politicians, greedy labor leaders and greedy citizens will turn our Nation's life into a jungle," he said, "unless America's conscience can be touched, and we, as a Nation, make a return to the moral teachings of Jesus Christ."

Referring to the gambling situation in Washington as an indication of the greed for easy money which has seized the Nation, Dr. Moody said: "Greed is at the bottom of the mania for gambling, which has turned this city into what almost amounts to one huge gambling den—in which storekeepers in their stores, children in the schools and even policemen on the beat play the "numbers" game. Too many people today want something for nothing—something that they have not fairly worked for—and too many are willing to go to any length to get it. This gambling craze is merely an indication of a state of mind. It reveals the greed in the minds of a multitude of people—greed which far too often begins to show itself in dishonesty in business, in politics and in every other department of life. That nation is sick which has been seized upon by men greedy for wealth, or power, and many nations have died of that disease."

Holds Guarantees Needed

Any government which destroys time honored guarantees of individual personal liberties in order to bend minorities to the will of the majority, will have departed from Christian principles, the Rev. Cornelius S. Abbott yesterday told the congregation of the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd.

"The teachings of both the Old and New Testaments are that God takes the world as He finds it, and lays down principles which if accepted lead toward personal perfection," the rector said. "He does not compel acceptance, for the Christian ideal lies in voluntary acceptance, in people who must have freedom of will to achieve happiness and perfection because they want these.

"God is no dictator. He offers freedom and only guidance to achieve salvation. We, who are so afraid of each other, so sentimental that we imagine national salvation can be thrust upon people, are destroying our freedom throughout the world by trends toward dictatorships.

"A regimented heaven would be a regimented hell, and similarly God does not want a regimented world. He wants free people, not slaves."

School Secretaries Demand Inclusion in Retirement Law

Nearly 200 Conclude Eastern Regional Conference Here With Militant Plea for More Prestige and Higher Wages.

School bosses who flatter their secretaries with words about their efficiency aren't doing enough to please the young women who take dictation and ward off insistant callers.

Nearly 200 of the secretaries, members of the National Association of School Secretaries, served warning about this yesterday, as they concluded a two-day Eastern regional conference in the Mayflower Hotel.

During the program, of a noon luncheon the delegates applauded the laudatory remarks of several school administrators, including Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Washington Board of Education.

But they approved even more vociferously the statement of their national president, Miss Louise H. Henderson, of Philadelphia, when she said: "If we (the secretaries) are as good as you say we are, how about recognizing us?"

Militant Talk Given.

Miss Henderson, in a militant talk preceding the principal speeches of such guests as Sir Willmott Lewis and Senator Josh Lee, did not mince words when she spoke about "recognition."

"We want more money—a salary schedule and inclusion with the teachers in the tenure and retirement laws," she declared.

"Most of all we want prestige. We are no mere clerks."

Miss Henderson said one school superintendent was on record as stating that he'd rather do without his best teacher than his secretary.

"That's how important we are. And we are demanding the status that goes along with our duties."

The national president pointed out that not the least of a secretary's responsibilities was disposing of irate parents, "and that takes tact," she said. "In many cases these parents, and other visitors get their principal impression of the school system from the treatment given them by the school secretary. It's important to the school that this impression be a good one."

Unifying Is Urged.

Miss Henderson called on her fellow secretaries, and the more than 800 other members of the assotciation throughout the country to strengthen their local organizations so that their demands for improved status might be effectively pressed.

Sir Willmott Lewis, the American correspondent for the London Times, commended the secretaries on their organization efforts.

"The movement toward group action is one of the most important trends of modern times," he said. "A striving for securtiy, among nations as well as smaller groups, has the entire world occupied. It is commonly felt that without security there cannot be any freedom."

Senator Lee gave the secretaries an inspirational address in which he advised them to "work for their program" if they hoped to get it.

Miss Grace E. Robinson, president of the Washington branch of the association, was chairman of the program. Olive H. Robb, led group singing, and Mrs. Evelina Evans Clinchy, soprano and Janet Coon, whistling soloist, gave other musical selections.

Catholics 'Dared' To Boycott Goods Made in Mexico

The Rev. Louis C. Vaeth, in a sermon at the Church of the Sacred Heart yesterday, "dared" American Catholics to boycott the products of Mexico, where Catholic churches have been closed and priests exiled.

Father Vaeth told how American Jews, by boycotting German-made goods, had seriously cut down German exports to this country. If American Catholics, he said, are to discourage persecution of the church in Mexico, they must act together.

"I dare you," he said, "to attempt a boycott of your own, one much closer home. American Jews have won praise and support from all denominations for their anti-Nazi drive. Catholics themselves have supported it. Boycott Mexican goods and see what happens."

Mrs. Fannie Stolar Funeral Is Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Fannie Stolar, 102, who died Saturday, will be held at 10:30 a. m. today in her late home, 734 Third street southwest. Burial will be in the cemetery of the Har-Zion Congregation.

A native of Poland, Mrs. Stolar came to this country 13 years ago with her husband, the late Max Stolar, to be with her three sons and two daughters then living in Detroit.

Mr. Stolar died in 1927 and in 1931 Mrs. Stolar came to Washington to be with her two daughters who had moved here.

Until her late illness despite her age, she could see to read and sew without glasses.

Surviving her are three daughters, Mrs. Edna Bindes and Mrs. Anna Goldman, of Washington; Mrs. Tillie Sugarman, of Detroit; three sons, Abraham and Joseph Stolar, both of Detroit, and Benjamin Stolar, of Poland.

Twenty-five grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren also survive.

Civil War Veteran, 102, Will Be Banquet Guest

Norfolk, Va., March 14 (U.P.).—E. W. Wilcox, 102, who served in the Confederate army in the Battle of Gettysburg and was with Gen. Robert E. Lee at Appomattox, left here tonight en route to Washington, where he will be honor guest at a banquet staged by the alumni of Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt. He is Middlebury's oldest living alumnus.

Rev. DeVries, D. C. Canon, Dead at 71

Cathedral Associate for 25 Years Dies at Home.

Rites Set Tomorrow; Bishop Freeman to Officiate.

The Rev. William Levering DeVries, Ph. D. D. D., canon and precentor of Washington Cathedral, who had been associated with the cathedral enterprise for more than 25 years, died yesterday at his home, 3515 Woodley road northwest, after being ill for several months. He was in his seventy-second year.

The funeral service will be held in the great choir of the cathedral tomorrow at 10 a. m. with the Right Rev. James E. Freeman officiating, assisted by the cathedral clergy. The cathedral choir of men and boys will sing.

Canon DeVries was born in Baltimore on November 8, 1865, the son of William Rogers and Mary Clement Crane DeVries. After graduating from St. Paul's School in Concord, N. H., in 1882, he received his A. B. degree from Johns Hopkins, later being appointed a fellow of that university and taking his doctor of philosophy degree in 1892. He was graduated from the General Theological Seminary in New York City in 1894 and was honored in 1931 with the degree of doctor of sacred theology from that institution. St. John's College in Maryland and George Washington University each conferred the degree of doctor of divinity on Canon DeVries some years ago.

Ordained in 1894.

He was ordained in the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1894, first serving as a missionary in Howard County, Maryland. From 1896 to 1908, he was private chaplain to the first Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. Henry Yates Satterlee, and served as rector of St. Mark's Church, then the Pro-Cathedral, at Third and A streets southeast. Upon nomination of Bishop Satterlee, Dr. DeVries was elected canon and chancellor of Washington Cathedral in 1911 and had served as canon and precentor of the cathedral since 1929.

Up to a few weeks ago, he had continued his work as secretary of the Cathedral Chapter, chairman of the committee on monuments and memorials. He had profound knowledge of the liturgy of the church and had prepared for many years the special orders of service for notable occasions in the cathedral or the cathedral amphitheater.

Apart from his duties at Mount Saint Alban, he found time to serve as president of the diocesan board of examining chaplains and as vice president of the commission on the ministry in the Episcopal Church.

A Youth Adviser.

Many young men prepared for holy orders with his advice and counsel. As national secretary of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, he had come to know hundreds of men during their college and university courses—friendships which he cultivated all through his life. His home opposite the cathedral grounds was often the scene of reunion with his fraternity brothers and the clergy.

Canon DeVries was the author of "The Foundation Stone Book" of Washington Cathedral, "The University Ode," for Johns Hopkins University, and "The Pilgrim Song of Alpha Delta Phi."

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Frank Frick, and his brother-in-law, who made their home with him; two nieces, Mrs. George C. Armstrong, of Toronto, Canada, and Mrs. Morris T. Raymond, of Buffalo; also by two cousins, Mrs. Charles E. Rieman and W. DeVries Goodwin, of Baltimore.

Colored Police-Firemen Testimonial Tuesday

The second annual testimonial and banquet for colored policemen and firemen will be tendered by a citizens' committee Thursday night at the Columbia Lodge Llks' home, 30 Rhode Island avenue northwest, at 8:30 o'clock.

Special guests will include Maj. E. W. Brown, Superintendent of Police; Senator W. H. King, Arthur Clarendon Smith, Ralph W. Scott and Dr. W. H. Jernagin. T. DuPort Georges is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Fund Workers For Symphony Report Today

Leaders Hope Half-Way Mark Will Be Reached; $110,000 Sought.

After a week-end spent in perfecting their campaign organization, workers who are out to raise $110,000 for the National Symphony Orchestra's sustaining fund will meet for their second report session this noon in the Hamilton Hotel.

Confident that the drive has gained momentum since the first report meeting Friday, when contributions totaled $22,873, leaders were hopeful the halfway mark will be reached today.

"The immediate response to appeals for orchestra support on the campaign's opening day was truly impressive," Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, general campaign chairman, said yesterday, "and the early reports, more than anything else, gave impetus to our campaign."

Division chairmen assured Mrs. Howe, after the initial luncheon, that while the reports of early drive efforts were encouraging, the units still are effecting their organization preparatory to giving a full show of strength this week. The campaign period continues through Thursday.

Committee to Report.

The large and tightly organized Government committee, which did not report Friday, will be ready to announce the results of its activities at today's meeting, according to Richardson Saunders, of the Department of Labor, cochairman of the unit.

A newly formed group of service club leaders, organized under Corcoran Thom, president of the National Symphony Orchestra Association, will also be in hand today to report its plans to support the Capital's Symphony.

This group, which held its first meeting with Thom over the week-end, includes: Frank B. Leetch, J. B. Scott, H. F. Knapp, Dwight N. Farnham, Joshua Evans, jr., J. W. Roberts, Bruce N. Branson, C. W. Pimper, James W. Burch, Ralph W. Lee, jr., George Quirk, George Plitt, jr., Bernard M. Buckley, A. Chester Flather, A. F. E. Horn, G. Thomas Dunlop, James C. Parker, jr., Walter K. Handy, Everett J. Boothby and L. T. Breuninger.

Personnel Announced.

Another committee, known as the Congressional Government Unit, completed its organization over the week-end, and Mrs. Richardson Saunders, its sub-chairman, will report on its campaign activities today.

Members of the committee include Nicholas Allen, Mrs. Arthur Altmeyer, Mrs. Turner W. Battle, Mrs. Walter Burr, Bill Casky, Mrs. P. W. Chappell, Mrs. Max Egloff, Mrs. Davis Elkins, Mrs. Thomas Elliot, John F. Foy, Mrs. R. E. Freer, Mrs. Parke Galleher, Mrs. Henry Hazard, Mrs. O. D. Hollenbeck, Mrs. Lucy Howerth, Mrs. Ruth Kalthoff, Mrs. Bessie K. Mangum, Miss Ruby Massey, Mrs. Robert McKellar, Mrs. Lucille McMurry, Miss Margaret Olney, Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson, Mrs. Barrett Prettyman, Mrs. James Sawyer, Mrs. Dean Snyder and Dr. William H. Stead.

Reich Policy Is Debated at Town Hall

French Journalist Assails Refusal to Support Peace Moves.

Policies of Adolf Hitler were denounced as a menace to the peace of the world and defended as the salvation of the German nation in a debate between Count de Roussy de Sales, French journalist, and Dr. Helgo W. Culemann, German professor, before the Town Hall of Washington at the Shoreham Hotel last night.

Dr. Culemann contended that the fears of the French are groundless and that the national Socialist program of the German people in no way threatens the peace of the world.

Hitler's program, Dr. Culemann declared, was undertaken to meet a grave economic emergency in Germany. "As soon as economic conditions improve," he asserted, "the German people will have just as much freedom as you have in the United States."

Count de Sales attacked Germany for its refusal to participate in peace plans offered by France and Great Britain. The latter countries, he said, are prepared to make generous concession to insure an indivisible peace program in Europe, but are thwarted by Hitler.

French Accusation.

"Germany, by keeping alive the threat of war," Count de Sales said, "is endangering the security of the world."

Dr. Culemann countered with the declaration that Germany cannot concur in any peace program which would maintain that status quo because "the time will come when the geographic situation on Germany's east will have to be revised." He referred to the Polish corridor as a constant source of trouble.

Count de Sales deplored Fascist policies contending that they are destroying spiritual communion in the white race. He said fascism is a greater menace than communism.

"Parlor White Now."

"Ten years ago you had the parlor pinks and now you have the parlor whites," Count de Sales declared.

Dr. Culemann said the acceptance of the National Socialist program by the German people can be understood only as a specific expression of the German character.

"The German people love liberty," he said. "They would rather live in a country where they could debate freely, but they have been willing to give up their liberties for a time because they want to live as a nation—as a powerful nation."

Frank B. Whitaker To Be Buried Today

Funeral services for Frank B. Whitaker, 63, who died Saturday of a heart attack, will be at 2 p. m. today at his home, 2326 Twentieth street northwest. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Whitaker, a well-known civilian naval architect employed by the Bureau of Construction and Repair of the Navy Department for more than 40 years, had aided in making plans for all types of naval vessels.

Though the great part of his time had been spent at the Navy Department in discussing building plans, he also had supervised construction work.

At the time of his death he was a senior engineer naval architect, one of the highest positions held by a civilian employe of the Navy.

Mr. Whitaker was a native of Washington and was educated in schools here. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary W. Whitaker; a daughter, Miss Mary Geraldine Whitaker, and a sister, Miss Pauline L. Whitaker, all of Washington.

London Runs Out On Bout With Ingram Tonight; Ban Is Seen

Linke Gets Last Chance, Must Make Good or Go This Year

Pilot Anxious That Hurler Show Worth

The 'Fat Boy' of Mound Staff to Be Allowed to Remain Obese.

Pitcher's Hitting, Other Talents, Making Pilot Bear With Him.

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., March 14.—Rotund Ed Linke, the fat boy of the Washington pitching staff—of it, but not yet on it—will win a place on the team this season, or find himself the property of another club.

Linke is getting his last fling with the Washington organization. Under the rules of organized baseball, the Nats must relinquish title to him if they do not retain the chubby 200-pounder who already has been sent back to the minors twice.

Thus it is that Manager Bucky Harris this season will give Linke a thorough trial. To that end, he is catering to Linke's demands that he be allowed to pitch at a weight to his own liking. Attempts to make the natural 200-pounder weigh in at 185 pounds last season were disastrous. Linke made the weight, but he lost his fast ball.

Rid of the mysterious malady that left the fingers of his pitching hand pulseless, Linke has discarded the chemical heating pad which caused a furore in the league last year and, on the protests of the Detroit Tigers, was ruled a violation of the pitching rules. Since the end of last season, his pulse has magically re-appeared and is registering at normal.

Other Talents Good.

With Chattanooga and Washington last season, Linke had a pitching record of nine wins and eight losses, but it was his performance with the Nats in the waning weeks after he was recalled that caused Manager Bucky Harris to regard the lad's future with optimism.

"He showed me a fast ball in those last few weeks that I had heard he had, but never saw it before. He can get by with that kind of a pitch," said Harris.

The Nats' manager is bearing with Linke, too, because of the fellow's other talents. "He's a ball player," said Harris. "I mean he can do everything. He's like a cat around the infield, he's one of the best fielders of bunts I ever saw. He is handy at covering first base and is a big help to himself out there. He can hit, too."

Can Play in Outfield.

That Linke can hit is no myth. The fat boy still holds the record for the longest home run ever whacked at the White Sox park—a line-drive homer that cleared the fence in deepest center.

"Any time Linke wants to take a fling at an outfield job, I'll give it to him," declared Harris. And you draw the conclusion that he likes the fellow.

Another of the Hogan-Chapman games will be perpetrated tomorrow at Tinker Field. The Hogans, who beat the Chapmans 6 to 1 in the intrasquad opener the other day, are the favorites to win again what with Buck Newsom and Ken Chase scheduled to pitch for 'em.

The game is listed for seven innings. Joe Cascarella and Ed Linke are to go to the mound for the Chapmans. Manager Shanty Hogan in another surprise move, has transerred himsel from centerfield to the catching job. Cliff Bolton will catch for the Chapmans.

Buddy Myer, recently recovered from a painful stiff neck, was rounding into playing form until he was forced to duck a bad hop in the infield practice and wrenched his neck again. He also suffered a badly mangled hand last night—in a bridge game in which he was set four tricks after a holding that merited a grand slam.

Eastern Is School Tourney Favorite

A red-hot scramble for the schoolboy and schoolgirl basketball championships of the Washington area commence tonight at Tech High School when St. John's Prep meets Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Eastern High collides with Sherwood High. The latter game opens the program at 8 p. m. with Eastern favored to win, despite Sherwood's impressive Montgomery County record.

An hour later the crack St. John's five swings into action only a slight choice to trip Bethesda. In fact, Maryland supporters are heavily backing the Bethesdans in view of a 28-20 victory they scored over St. John's earlier in the season.

Boy Workers Tourney Will Open Tomorrow

Hhe Boys Club Workers' Association third annual elimination court tournament starts tomorrow at the Boys Clubs. Georgetown, Northeast, Merrick and Washington Boys Clubs will enter a total of 25 teams in the five weight classes.

Individual awards to members of the winning teams and a team trophy on the basis of 10 points for winning a championship and 5 points for runner-up will be presented.

D. C. Women Get Bids For Southern Title Golf

A special invitation to Washington's women golfers has been issued by Mrs. O. B. Keeler, in relation to the twenty-sixth annual Women's Southern Championship at the East Lake Club, Atlanta, Ga., May 17-22.

The East Lake course was formerly Bobby Jones' home course and was also made famous by Alexa Sterling, the first native woman golf expert. Mrs. Keeler, wife of the famous sponsor of Bobby Jones, expects a large representation from this section.

Coast Fight Thought Aim; His Conqueror Signed as Substitute

DaFoe, Who Beat Vanished Fighter, or Borree, Is Named for Tonight's Bout; D. C. Ring Heads Hope to Thwart Any California Match.

By Bill McCormick.

A check-up in New York yesterday disclosed that the conqueror of Johnny Pena had left by plane for California last Friday afternoon. He had been scheduled to leave New York for Washington yesterday morning.

Johnny DeFoe, another New York featherweight who has three times defeated London, will substitute against Ingram tonight.

Immediate steps will be taken by the District Boxing Commission to have London suspended not only in States affiliated with the National Boxing Association, but in California as well.

Contracts Signed.

London was booked into Washington through Irving Cohen, a licensed manager in New York. Contracts for the bout were signed "Danny London."

After London had applied the finishing touches to his training grind in a New York gymnasium Friday, he was instructed to meet Cohen yesterday morning to make the trip to the Capital.

When London failed to meet Cohen, an investigation was started. London's parents said they had not seen him since Friday. Friends said the same thing. Finally it was discovered that he had flown to California.

Matchmaker Anearn advances the theory that London had been sought by a California manager, who sought to cash in on the fact that Danny had knocked out Johnny Pena. Pena is highly regarded on the Coast, and it is the fact that London had knocked him out that made it possible to book him here. Pena became a prime favorite with District fans when he soundly trounced Washington's Lou Gevinson.

The Boxing Commission is expected to move with rapidity to prevent London from making even one fight in California. London will, of course, be automatically suspended in Washington for failing to appear for the Ingram bout.

The local suspension will become effective in practically every State but New York, Pennsylvania and California as scon as it is recognized by the N. B. A. California usually co-operates with the N. B. A. in such cases and London possibly will be banned in that State.

In six-round preliminaries, Bob Turner, of Norfolk, will oppose Jimmy Jones, a Baltimore middleweight, and Tiger Red Lewis, a Richmond heavyweight, will face Buddy MacDonald, of Los Angeles.

30 Horses In Classic At Aintree

Grand National Lures 6 American-Owned Steeplechasers.

By the Associated Press.

Liverpool, England, March 14.—About 30 enduring and experienced steeplechase horses and riders will start out Friday afternoon for the 4½-mile test of luck, strength and skill known as the Grand National Steeplechase.

Aproximately 100,000 people will gather at the Aintree course to watch the running of what is considered the world's most difficult jumping race, while the rest of the world will stay up late or rise early to hear the result which will mean riches for a few.

As a race, the Grand National is one of the oddest and most exciting of all. Over a course laid out apparently without rhyme or reason, including some tremendous jumps that never fail to take their toll, and tricky corners, it's an event in which any horse able to keep his feet may win. Sharing interest with the race itself are the huge sums given out in the sweepstakes, tickets for which find their way over the entire world.

The favorite likely will be Dorothy Paget's 10-year-old gelding, Golden Miller, making his fifth attempt to win the steeplechase classic. The Miller, which has performed brilliantly in trials, won in 1934, but refused once, fell once and lost his jockey once in other prevoius starts.

Until recently Lloyd Thomas' Royal Mail was rated favorite, but was ousted by Golden Miller after several poor trials. Vivian Smith's Ready Cash, another well-liked horse, suffered a training injury.

Six American-owned horses named in the final acceptances last week were J. B. Snow's 12-year-old Delaneige, veteran of the Aintree course, and Delachance; Robert Lehman's Didoric, Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Flying Minutes, Jesse Metcalf's Kiltol and Frank M. Gould's What Have You.

New Yorkers Win In U.S. Cage Play

By the Associated Press.

Denver, March 14.—A field goal in the final 30 seconds of an overtime period gave the Mohawks, of Amsterdam, N. Y., a 34-33 victory over a scrappy quintet from Cowley, Wyo., and provided a thrilling opening for the men's national A. A. U. basketball tournament here today.

Some great headwork won for the New Yorkers. They trailed at the half, 25 to 15, tied it up at 32 all with five minutes to play, and held the deadlock through the regular playing time.

Entries Open for D. C. A. A. U. Ring Tourney

A trip to Boston to compete in the Amateur Athletic Union's National Amateur Tournament awaits the standout performers in the District of Columbia A. A. U. championships, which begin Saturday night at Joe Turner's Arena.

The tournament will draw more than 60 local amateurs.

The semifinals will be staged Wednesday night, March 24, and the finals Saturday night, March 31.

Entry blanks for the tournament may be obtained at the Washington Boys Club, Third and G streets northwest.

Giants Down Cards, 5 to 4, In 10 Innings

Havana, March 14.—New York's National League champion Giants nosed out the St. Louis Cardinals, 5 to 4, in ten innings today before 16,000 spectators, the largest baseball crowd in Cuba's history.

The victory gave the Giants an even break in the two-game series. Thevenow's long fly to center off Andrews, with the bases loaded in the tenth, brought the Giants' winninng run home.

All of St. Louis' runs were made off Freddie Fitzsimmons in the third, fourth and fifth innings. Carl Hubbell held the Gashouse Gang scoreless in the first three frames. An error by Cuccinello in the first enabled the Giants to make their only run off Paul Dean in three innings.

Yankees Beat Bees, 8 to 11.

St. Petersburg, Fla. (U.P.).—The world champion New York Yankees made it two straight over the Boston Bees, clubbing out an 8-to-1 victory today.

Indians Down New Orleans.

New Orleans (AP).—Bob Feller, the Cleveland Indians' prize rookie pitcher, worked for one inning today as the Indians defeated the New Orleans Pelicans, 11 to 0. Feller pitched the first inning and retired three men in order, striking out the last one.

How to Gratify That Urge to Punch a Nose Is Explained by Peaceful Boxing Scribe

Pete Reilly Recommends Hat-Tipping and Trombone Playing; Shadow Boxing Urged by Leonard to Develop Essential Grace and Rhythm.

(This is the first of a series of articles on "How to Box," written by a peace-loving soul who admits he couldn't beat a sick egg. He has turned to the masters of the game to describe their favorite blows or specialties.)

By Bill McCormick.

Probably every man alive has at one time or another hopped from under his shower, flexed a peanut-sized bicep before a flattering mirror and thought, "What a wonderful fighter I would make—if I had a mind to."

Boxing scribes, even anemic ones like the writer, are constantly being backed into confidential corners and asked, sotto voce, "Is there any place in town where I can take a few boxing lessons? I don't want to be a fighter, you understand, but I would like to feel I knew what to do in case of trouble."

It is to people such as these that this series is directed. There is no desire to develop finished pugs, but if an amateur boxer or even an occasional professional can get a few fine points from these articles, so much the better.

For our first, and most elemental, lesson we will deal with the proper fighting stance, rhythm and balance. Pete Reilly, one of the best managers and developers of new talent, will describe the stance. Benny Leonard, perhaps the clverest lightweight of all time, will tell us how to develop rhythm and grace.

Hands Unclenched.

The chin is kept tucked slightly behind the left shoulder—in a position to be completely submerged when danger threatenes. To aid in relaxation, without which one cannot become a good boxer, the hands should remain clenched until a split second before a blow is delivered. This also tends to put more snap in punches.

The left arm is held high and almost straight out, but relaxed. The right should be held high, with elbow close to the body, as protection against left hooks.

The trombone motion produces jabs. The hat-tipping business gives good protection against one of the most dangerous punches known, the left hook.

That is the perfectly orthodox fighting stance. Some people are natural bobbers and weavers. Those people must modify the pose to suit their needs, but the fundamentals should remain the same.

Good Fighter—Good Dancer.

"Rhythm and grace are everything in boxing," says Leonard. "You show me a good fighter and I'll show you an excellent dancer. Without rhythm and grace, one cannot be a good fighter. No matter what your style, you need it. I had it and a man of widely divergent type, Jack Dempsey, had it, too. It is the underlying principle of all boxing."

Leonard advocates nothing but shadow boxing to develop these essentials.

"When I was a kid, just starting out they used to call me the Powder Puff Kid because I was always shadow boxing and even when I got into the ring I did nothing but punch lightly, trying to develop rhythm and grace. The punch can come later."

Shadow boxing not only will develop rhythm and ease, but, for the man unaccustomed to boxing, it is the first step in attaining fighting form. If you do not think boxing requires a specific kind of endurance, try shadow boxing for one three-minute round. There isn't one man in every 1,000, regardless of his ability in other branches of athletics, who can do it without becoming winded and arm weary.

Consider that a professional fighter boxes 10 or 15 rounds against an opponent who is anything but a shadow, and comes out practically fresh. That is how far the average man is from fighting form, and one of the many reasons why no ordinary individual has a chance in any kind of a tussle with a trained boxer.

Don't Stand Still.

Shadow boxing before a full-length mirror is particularly helpful as it enables one to quickly spot faults in form. In trying to whip your shadow, pretend it can hit back and duck punches as well as throwing them.

Remember to move around, don't just stand still and flail the arms. In boxing, all moving should be done on the ball of the foot. Only on rare occasions does a good boxer stand flat-footed, unless old age has caught up with him, or he's exhausted.

In maneuvering about, some shuffle and others skip lightly about. Colored boxers usually shuffle and white boxers prefer the skip, for some reason. Dempsey used a combination of both, which carried him about the ring with great speed.

To develop your shadow boxing, watch good boxers at every available opportunity. The pugs under observation don't always have to be good ones either. In time, you will learn to spot defects in the form of stumble bums and learn what not to do from them.

Try shadow boxing every day, increasing the time dedicated to it as your endurance builds up. Even if you are never called upon to deliver a sock on the nostrils to some burly brute, it is good exercise and develops rhythm and grace, which are essential to poise.

Tigers' Hopes For Pennant Hang on 3 'Ifs'

Lakeland, Fla., March 14.—Question marks and "ifs" stud the hopes of the Detroit Tigers for a pennant come-back in the American League this year. To wit:

1. Can Hank Greenberg be counted on for a season's work at first base?

2. How many games can Mickey Cochrane catch?

3. Who is going to help Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges with the pitching?

Add to these the question of whether those two veteran fly chasers—Leon (Goose) Goslin and Al Simmons—can stand up under another season of major league campaigning and you have a fair idea of what Manager Cochrane is thinking about these blazing Florida days.

"I'm not worried about Greenberg nor myself," said Cochrane today. "Give us some pitching and I believe we'll be up there battling for the pennant."

Greenberg seems to have answered question No. 1 for himself. He is rattling the railings off the Lakeland fences with all his old-time gusto.

Elden Auker, who teamed with Rowe and Bridges to twirl the Detroiters to their two pennants, holds the key to the somewhat dubious situation.

If Auker comes back and has a good year after a decidely off-color performance in 1936, when he turned in only 13 wins against 16 losses, Cochrane thinks maybe he can round out an effective staff from last year's holdovers augmented by one or two new men.

Big Ten Track Again Shown To Be Supreme in College Field

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 14.—The annual check-up on the ever-increasing number of winter track meets once more finds the Western Conference supreme in the college field.

The results of these meets, the Central Intercollegiate at South Bend, Ind., the new Midwest Intercollegiates at Napersville, Ill., yesterday and the Southern Conference and Big Six meets earlier in the season again give the Big Ten stars the honors they take nearly every year.

Out of 11 events in which comparisons can be drawn, the Big Ten performances were tops in five and produced a tie in another. The Eastern meet produced two leading feats, the Big Six and Central one each, plus a couple of ties for the latter, while the Southern Conference got only one small slice of the honors.

No fewer than five runners in three different meets equaled the listed world indoor record of 6.2 seconds for 60 yards, twice beaten this year. Bob Grieve of Illinois in the Big Ten and Billy Hopkins of Virginia in the Southern Conference meet won their titles in that time, while Al Tolmich of Wayne University, the eventual Central winner, and Robinson of Drake and Bryant of Western State (Mich.) made that time in heats.

Tolmich, perhaps the outstanding individual performer of Saturday's various meets, and Jack Donovan of Dartmouth both were clocked in meet-record times of 7.5 seconds in the 60-yard high hurdles. In addition Tolmich ran the 65-yard low hurdles in seven seconds at South Bend to better the American indoor standard.

Rinaldi Faces G-Men, Frosh Meet WPA in Cage Tourney Tonight

Sleuths Seen Victors Over Tailor Five

Rinaldi Tailors, Federal Bureau of Investigation and WPA, George Washington Freshmen, four of the outstanding court teams in this city, meet tonight in the semi-final round of The Post's A. A. U. tourney in the Heurich gymnasium.

The Freshmen, defending champions in the unlimited class, will meet Commissioner George Allen's five at 8 p. m., with the Tailors-F. B. I. clash scheduled at 9:30.

The collegiate star-studded five of J. Edgar Hoover, popular choices to win the trophy, is favored on the basis of recent performances, but it will meet a vastly improved Rinaldi quintet. The Shore-coached lads were impressive in a decisive victory over Rockville Saturday night, and with Folliard, Curtin, Smith, Viana and Sullivan throwing them up, they cannot be taken lightly.

F. B. I. has romped through three opponents without being extended. Flying Eagles, their last opponent, never had a chance as the Thompson brothers of Duke fame, McCartee, Bethel and Colley led the scoring brigade.

Coach Davie Keppel's WPA five, blostered by last year's championship Eastern High team, will be at least even money against the G. W. frosh. The latter team was forced to come from behind to win in their last two contests, D. & H. and Sterling, and will be meeting a far stronger team in the District combination.

The winners will meet Thursday night in the final round, following the 145-pound final between the Department of Agriculture five and Senate Beer.

Tonight's battles find four pre-tourney favorites surviving the elimination rounds without upset. Neighborhood, scholastic and collegiate rivalries will be renewed in the double bill, second to none offered here this winter. The Heurich gym is at Twenty-sixth and D streets southwest. Admission, 40 cents.

Armstrong In 2d Fight Within Week

Conqueror of Belloise Meets Spoldi on Friday Night.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 14.—Henry Armstrong, claimant of the feather-weight title, makes his second start within a week at Madison Square Garden Friday night, in what shapes up as the leading bout on this week's boxing program.

The San Francisco Negro, whose Eastern debut was marked by an impressive four-round knockout of Mike Belloise last week, takes on Aldo Spoldi, Italian lightweight, in a ten rounder.

The program:

Monday—At. Philadelphia, John Henry Lewis, Phoenix, Ariz., vs. Hans Birkie, Berkeley, Calif., light-heavyweight, 10, non-title. At Richmond, Nick Camarata, New Orleans, vs. Jimmie Tramberia, Baltimore, lightweight, 12. At Newark, N. J., Fred Apostoli, San Francisco, vs. Joe (Butch) Lynch, Plainfield, N. J., middleweights, 10; Tony Morgano, Philadelphia, vs. William Henry Cheatum, lightweights, 8. At New York, Bobby Pacho, Los Angeles, vs. Andre Jessurun, New York, welterweights, 8; Indian Quintana, Panama, vs. Henry Hook, Indianapolis, Ind., bantamweights, 8. At Buffalo, N. Y., Boz Bog Bracey, Buffalo, vs. Natie Brown, Washington, heavyweights, 10.

Tuesday—At Camden, N. J., John Henry Johnson, Atlantic City, N. J., vs. Ralph Chong, New Orleans, middleweights, 10. At West Palm Beach, Fla., Melio Bettina, Beacon, N. Y., vs. Joe Lipps, Ty Ty, Ga., heavyweights, 10. At Los Angeles, Lee Ramage, San Diego, vs. Bob Nestell, Los Angeles, heavyweights, 10. At Detroit, Al Manfredo, San Francisco, vs. Chuck Woods, Detroit, welterweights, 10.

Wednesday—At St. Paul, Eddie Wenstob, Edmonton, Alta., vs. John Erjavec, Duluth, Minn., heavyweights, 10.

Friday—At Hollywood, Carmen Barth, Cleveland, vs. Ray Actis, middleweights, 10. At New York, Henry Armstrong, Los Angeles, vs. Aldo Spoldi, Italy, lightweights, 10, non-title. At Philadelphia, Billy Ketchell, Millville, N. J., vs. Buddy Ryan, Newark, N. J., lightweights, 10.

Carolina Dog Wins U. S. Quail Laurels

Petersburg, Va., March 14 (AP).—Sport's Peerless Pride, setter dog owned and handled by Louis M. Bobbitt, of Winston-Salem, N. C., captured the quail championship of the amateur field trial clubs of America today at Camp Lee, near here.

Pride ran a brilliant two-hour heat, scoring five finds, to top a record-breaking field of 49 dogs.

The runner-up was General Jackson, jr., another setter, the property of Louis N. Newkirk, jr., of New York City, who blew the whistle over him. General had four coveys and a single.

Ida Simmons Bowls 835 for World Record

Hartford, Conn., March 14 (AP).—Ida Simmons of Norfolk, Va., scored 835 tonight to shatter the world's six-game record in the Yankee duckpins bowling sweepstakes here.

National Bowling Congress Event to Open Next Week at Norfolk.

The tenth annual National Duckpin Bowling Congress tournament at Norfolk, Va., will be a record-breaker for team entries, George L. Isemann, secretary of the little pin classic, announced last night at his home in College Park, Md., where he has been confined for six weeks with a case of "flu."

Over 250 teams and a wealth of doubles and singles will start shooting for the national championships on March 26 and continue for three weeks to April 11 at the Health Center alleys.

Two States, Vermont and Florida, are sending teams for the first time. The Burlington Knights of Columbus and a team from Springfield will be heading south about the same time the Brunswick Seminoles and the Brunswick girls' team will be making the jaunt from Miami.

The tournament city of Norfolk has promised over 50 teams, while the other Southern duckpin centers will supply the major portion of the entire entry list. Atlanta, Charlotte, Greensboro, Roanoke, Richmond, Winchester, Martinsburg and the surrounding territory of Washington will add many teams to the record field.

2 Western Shore Title Games Today

Frederick, Md., March 14.—The girls' basketball team of Frederick High School will meet Central High School of Lonaconing, champion of Allegany County, in the semi-final of the Western Shore title tournament tomorrow afternoon in Hancock. The local sextet has won seven straight games, while Central went through its league schedule unbeaten.

Allegany High and Mount Rainier High School, champion of Prince Georges County, will also meet for the championship of the Western Shore. Winner will meet the Eastern Shore representative for the State title in Johns Hopkins gymnasium, at Baltimore Thursday.

Gevinson Sparring Act Heads Hine Carnival

A sparring match featuring Lou Gevinson will headline a "Sports Carnival" at the Hine Junior High School Friday. Steve Mamakos and Ray Crombie contribute another topnotch bout on the card. The Southeast Boys Club Community Center will benefit from the show.

Other events will include a wrestling match, a tumbling team act by Hine Junior High and several boxing bouts between youngsters of the neighborhood. Seats are on sale at Spaldings.

Tome Swimmers Beat Staunton Academy

Port Deposit, Md., March 13.—The Tome School swimmers closed their dual meet season here today by defeating the Staunton Military Academy, 42 to 26.

Cold Prevents Browns' Game.

San Antonio, Tex, (AP).—The St. Louis Browns-Minneapolis Millers exhibition game scheduled for this afternoon was called off as the result of a "northerner" which hit the city early today and sent the mercury slipping to 40 degrees.

Tiger Rookies Lose.

Lakeland, Fla. (U.P.). — Mickey Cochrane's recruits were defeated, 6 to 1, by Coach Cy Perkins' veterans today as the Detroit Tigers went through their longest practice of the season. The "vets" belted Tommy Bridges for four runs on five one-base singles and a base on balls in the fifth inning.

All players except Goslin and Gehringer were in uniform today—training camp deadline.

Brooklyn Player Injured.

Waner Still Pirate Holdout.

San Bernardino, Calif., March 14 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates' second squad will arrive in this camp tomorrow, ready for a week of intensive training before next Sunday's first game between the regulars and the rookies.

Unless Paul Waner, the National League's 1936 ranking batter, appears unexpectedly tomorrow, he will be the Pirates' only holdout. Waner and the club officials were reported still far apart on contract terms.

Syracuse Pin Aces Leading In U. S. Play

Salt City Boys Set Pace in Singles, Doubles and All-Events.

By the United Press.

New York, March 14.—Fred Polson and Michael Rayo, of Syracuse, rolled 1,221 to take the two-man lead today in the annual American Bowling Congress tournament.

Carl Heater and Merrill Hollenback, of Elmira, scored 1,198 to take fourth place in the doubles. The 620 of Bob Adsit, of Bethlehem, Pa., edged him into the fifth singles place.

Jim Reinsmith, of Syracuse, led the singles competition with a 690, while John Trzeciak, Syracuse, headed the all-events standings with 1,867.

Among the better two-men totals hung up today were 1,191 by R. Rabenhold and P. Mahoney, of Bethlehem, Pa.; 1,184 by V. Wheeler and A. Zirbel, of Algoma, Wis.; 1,184 by H. Young and E. Buhn, of Rochester, N. Y., and 1,163 each by R. Meyer and H. Rohlbeck, of Algoma, and L. Becskwith and M. Paltistis, of Groton, N. Y.

Other leading singles scorers were L. Mahool, of Groton, 615; W. Walsh, Rochester, 608; F. Ardins, Buffalo, 682, and H. Schabel, Buffalo, 602.

Handley High's Crack Tracksters Open Drills

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., March 14.—The Handley High School track squad, interscholastic champions of Virginia and of the Cumberland Valley Athletic Association, has responded for its first practice with many veterans on hand. Coach Otis (Snag) Sargent has hopes of another record season.

Dear Al, Selections at Tropical Park.

Please don't read this aloud, but I believe I'm on the trail of the missing Clocker Mike. A friend of mine stopped in a Greek lunchroom on the way down and he swears he saw Mike wiping dishes. Knowing Mike's failing for food, I would say that he might have taken the kitchen job. I had thought he was on relief somewhere and really I hate to disturb him if he is eating regularly. However, with Maryland coming on, I could use Mike's timing. My friend has promised to stop on the way back North and find out if the dishwasher really is Mike. I wouldn't want him to know it, but I hope we find him. This track, despite changing weather conditions, treated the Benningites well during the first week. We managed to sneak home 16 winners, which included two daily doubles. Yesterday's paid a $95 mutuel. The more I see of the big numbers on the horses' sadlecloths here the more I would like the Maryland tracks to follow suit. I have heard hundreds of favorable comments on the large black numbers against the white which allows bettors to easily distinguish their horses. Bill.

First race—Harp o' Gold scored in convincing fashion last out and needs only to run back to that effort to take the main portion of this purse. Ravenna might need a longer route but has been improving. Story Time for the show end.

Second race—Shyno has the speed of this party, I believe. Fine early speed should help this one on the sharp turns. My Kin is dropping down and is a possible surprise. Narise and Real Jam are due some consideration.

Third race—Maetake has been awaiting a spot and seems to have found it in this field. Has had none the best of racing luck in her short career. Bestest probably is better than that last. Miss Collins for the minor award.

Fourth race—Marinella appears on the way to a set of brackets. Quit under hustling tactics last out after setting a brisk pace. With more intelligent handling, I expect this one to score. Hornet, recent upset winner, is dangerous. Day Dawn for the show.

Fifth race—Stubbs gets my call in this vest pocket field. He never was more fit than now and needs only the right ride. The Denemark entry of Higher Cloud and Grand Duke should press the first-named. Finisher for the third money.

Sixth race—Bain Marie is a standout in this company. She figures to win, but so have a number of others in recent days. Sunhamptom appears to be a threat. Hasty Wire should find a place in the pay-off.

Seventh race—Drusus is rather inconsistent, but meets his kind here and deserves the call despite top weight. Pre War and My Peter to battle it out for the place.

Roving Traffic Officer to Ride Streets in City's Safety Drive

to awaken the driving public to necessities of law observance and co-operation in the battle against a rising death and accident toll.

"We are glad to join any move which will tend to show motorists an pedestrians their responsibilities in traffic," said Maj. Brown. "We are now doing everything in our power to enforce regulations and bring safety to motoring. We can do no more until the public realizes its part of the problem."

Final instructions to the "safety officer" will be given in Maj. Brown's office this morning. Methods of operation will be discussed at a conference of city traffic authorities.

The movement was lauded yesterday by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

"The more publicity given to our current traffic problem, the more likely we are to succeed in reducing accidents," Van Duzer declared. "People don't like to read about the wrongs they do and this cruising 'safety officer' plan, in my opinion, will do much toward the promotion of safe driving."

Authority on Traffic.

And as the cruising drive gets under way, Maj. Brown is mapping plans for increased efficiency in traffic control. The police chief is a recognized authority on traffic enforcement and regulation. For many years he was head of the local police Traffic Bureau.

During that time, he bent every effort toward highway safety and is credited with inaugurating numerous methods of reducing accidents. During his reign as traffic head, the city saw marked reductions in the death rate and his advice on traffic matters was sought by authorities of other cities.

Last year, when Washington won honorable mention in a country-wide survey by the National Safety Council, Maj. Brown was instrumental in improving conditions with his knowledge of traffic matters.

In spite of his duties as Superintendent of Police, Maj. Brown has continued to take an active part in the regulation of District motoring.

Will Analyze Problems.

And as the city's toll begins to mount anew, the police head plans again to take the reins and attempt to bring about improvements. He has called for meetings of his traffic supervisors—Inspector B. A. Lamb, Capt. Milton D. Smith and others. Together, they will analyze the problem and apply efficiency measures.

Yesterday's driving snow and slushy streets brought an increase in the number of accidents. No deaths within the city limits were reported, however. In view of weather conditions, authorities issued appeals for safeguarding those on the street. Motorists were urged to:

Equip their cars with chains. Refrain from excessive speeds. Drive with caution, keep windshield wipers constantly in operation. Watch for "the other fellow." Give pedestrians a "break." Observe stop signs and traffic signals.

MobAssaults Home Of Cairo Patriarch

Cairo, Egypt, March 14 (AP).—A mob of 500 persons led by the son of an excommunicated Coptic priest named Sergius attempted tonight to force an entrance into the Coptic patriarch Yohannes' home. They broke down doors and smashed windows before police dispersed them.

The demonstration followed an announcement by the patriarch that he had not accepted the resignation of Father Sidarus, abbot of the desert monastery of Deir-el-Moharak, near Assiut, scene of a 40-day "stay-in" strike of Coptic monks. The demonstrators supported the disgruntled monks.

The resignation, tendered four days ago, presumably had settled the strike. Instead, the patriarch appointed a committee to investigate both the monks' and the abbot's complaint.

Dr. Meggers to Speak And Show Travel Films

Dr. William F. Meggers, chief of the spectroscopy division, Bureau of Standards, will talk and show colored travel slides at a joint meeting of Girl Scout Troops 21 and 50 Thursday at 3:30 p. m. at Ben Murch School. The films will show points of interest visited by Dr. and Mrs. Meggers during their recent trip through Holland, France, England, Germany, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

Astri Erica Larssen, a member of the Norwegian Girl Scouts, who is visiting relatives in this city, will be present in native costume and will tell of her scouting exepriences in Norway.

Will Hold Style Show.

Girl Scouts of District 3 are sponsoring a style show at the Leland Junior High School Friday at 7:30 p. m. New spring styles for girls from 10 to 18 years will be featured under direction of Woodward & Lothrop. Girls selected from the various troops will act as models.

Suter First to Propose Red Rider, Blanton Says

In a radio talk yesterday over Station WOL, former Representative Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, reiterated his statement that Jesse C. Suter first proposed the "red rider" to the Federation of Citizens Association and that the federation urged Congress to pass such a measure.

Blanton claimed that the people of the District gave "due notice" of the proposal through the action of the federation as reported in newspapers of March 17, 1935.

Official Notices

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, March 8, 1937. A public hearing having been held by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia on December 14, 1936, in the matter of closing certain streets and alleys, and the said Commissioners being satisfied as to the equity, justice and advisability of said closings, and that the same are in the public interests and not detrimental to the interests of abutting property owners, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the said Commissioners have approved the following order: "ORDERED, That pursuant to the provisions of Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, TODD PLACE and U STREET, between 2nd and 3rd Streets N.E., and PUBLIC ALLEYS in Square 3565, are hereby ordered CLOSED, same to take effect on and after March 30, 1937, all as shown on Map Numbered 2004 in the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, the title to the land comprised in the area so closed to revert to the abutting property owners, as shown on said map." Any and all parties interested must file objections to said closings in writing before the effective date of above order; otherwise said order shall become effective on March 30, 1937, as aforesaid, and said streets and alleys shall on and after said date become closed in accordance with the provisions of said act. MELVIN C. HAZEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, DAN I. SULTAN, Commissioners, D. C.

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY

Experiment

By Frank V. Martinek
Lieut. Comdr., U. S. N. R.

NOW, JACKIE, HOOK THE AIRSHIP ON TO THIS CORD HANGING FROM THE CEILING AND WIND UP THE MOTOR--
AYE, AYE, SIR
103A.
RIGHT IN HERE, JOE-- THERE'S NOTHING TO BE AFRAID OF-- (Copyright, 1937, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.) Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Office)
AS THE LITTLE CAPTIVE DIRIGIBLE HUMS THROUGH THE AIR THE OLD MAN STARES IN GROWING EXCITEMENT --- WHAT MEMORY STIRS THAT POOR, CONFUSED BRAIN?

NED BRANT—A Story of College Athletics

By Bob Zuppke
Famous Football Coach.

FORGET WHAT I SAID ABOUT DOUBLE-CROSSING ME OUT OF THE CAPTAIN'S JOB, NED
OKAY, BUD- IT'S FORGOTTEN
I'M LUCKY TO BE IN SCHOOL AFTER SOME OF THE THINGS I'VE DONE BUT I DID WANT THE CAPTAINCY
LIBRAR
IT WOULD HAVE BEEN OKAY WITH ME, HAD THE PLAYERS ELECTED YOU
OF COURSE YOU COULD RESIGN-I GOT THE NEXT HIGHEST NUMBER OF VOTES
I COULDN'T DO THAT, BUD- NOT WITHOUT SOME REASON
I GUESS YOU WANTED IT PLENTY BAD - YOU PROBABLY SNEAKED AROUND AND ASKED A LOT OF GUYS TO VOTE FOR YOU LISTEN, BUD-IF YOU SAY ONE MORE WORD-JUST ONE-ABOUT THAT CAPTAINCY, I'LL BLACK BOTH YOUR EYES!

Changing Places

By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

THEY'D ALREADY SEEN THEM ON ME!
THEY WANT TO LOOK AT BOTH GIRLS-
HA- THAT'S AN IDEA!
I GET IT- IRENE, YOU AND I ARE GOING TO CHANGE PLACES-
IT'S JUST FOR AN HOUR-

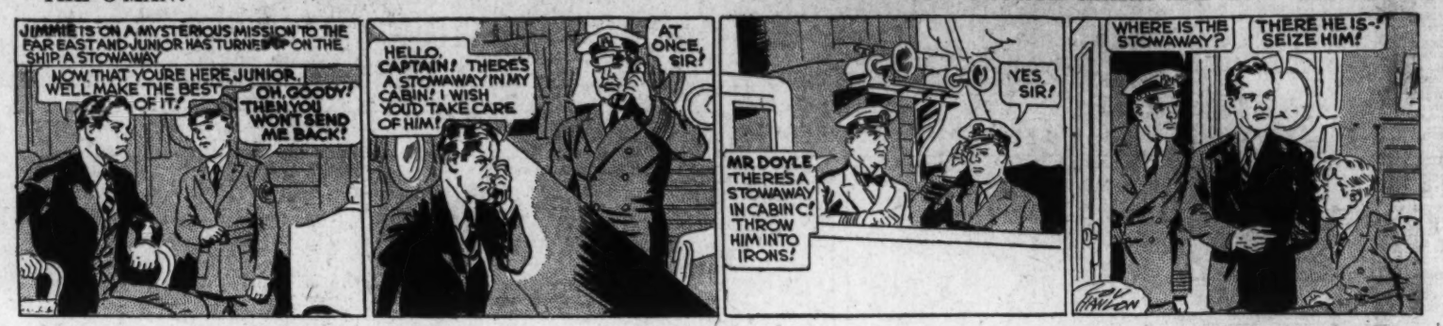
THE G-MAN!

BY GEORGE CLARK AND LOU HANLON



JIMMIE IS ON A MYSTERIOUS MISSION TO THE FAR EAST AND JUNIOR HAS TURNED UP ON THE SHIP, A STOWAWAY
NOW THAT YOU'RE HERE, JUNIOR, WE'LL MAKE THE BEST OF IT!
OH, GOODY! THEN YOU WON'T SEND ME BACK!
HELLO, CAPTAIN! THERE'S A STOWAWAY IN MY CABIN! I WISH YOU'D TAKE CARE OF HIM!
AT ONCE, SIR!
YES, SIR!
WHERE IS THE STOWAWAY?
THERE HE IS-! SEIZE HIM!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO

By Saunders and Woggon

NO SIR! YOU CAN'T COME IN HERE! WE'RE NOT HAVING ANY FANCY DRESS BALL HERE TONIGHT!
WAHOO NOT DRESSED FANCY! WEAR THESE CLOTHES EVERY DAY!
THERE'S NO SUCH PERSON HERE - ONLY PRINCESS MINNIE-HA-CHA, A REAL BEAUTY!
ME WAIT FOR HER
YOU DON'T INTEND TO LEAVE THAT HORSE OUT THERE IN FRONT?
NOPE-
WHEE-AY!
BRINGUM HAM SANDWICH AN' BALE O'HAY!

MICKEY FINN

By Lank Leonard

-BUT UNCLE PHIL INTENDS REMAINING BEHIND TO MAKE A FORTUNE IN OIL!
TIME YO' ALL WAS GETTIN' UP FELLAS! WE GOTTA PACK!
GEE, TOM-I COULDN'T SLEEP THINKIN' ABOUT UNCLE PHIL AND THAT OIL MAN, "CYCLONE" SELLERS!
LISSEN, PARDNER- PA'S GONNA TALK TO HIM TODAY- HE'LL CONVINCE HIM THAT "CYCLONE" IS A SCREWBALL!
GOSH-I HOPE SO. -HE'S GOT TO GO HOME WITH US!
DON'T WORRY, MICKEY! -AFTER THE WAY WE KIDDED HIM LAST NIGHT HE MUST REALIZE THE OLD GUY JUST HOOKED HIM FOR TEN BUCKS!
SURE! G'WAN IN AND WAKE HIM UP!
TOM! HE AIN'T HERE!!

We Can Make Your Basement a Popular Room

We're not magicians but we can work miracles when it comes to making a paradise out of a basement. In hundreds of Washington homes you'll find recreation rooms, dens and playrooms instead of basement rooms that are hardly, if ever, used, simply because these alert home-owners called the General Contracting Co. and had us modernize their basements into attractive usable rooms.

If you are cramped for space or if you would like to get more use out of your basement, let us submit a plan for modernizing YOUR basement. As little as $5 a month pays the cost.

Look Pretty, Please!

take the situation in hand with Picnit and Suede fabric

GLOVES

by Van Raàlte

Gloves couldn't be prettier for spring! And for their tricks, they use not only leather but smart Picnit and soft, velvety suede fabrics! Scores and scores of enchantingly feminine styles—and with such novel trimmings! Patent leather scallops! A cuff of wooden beads! Tiny flowers appliqued with colorful centers! Gloves in two colors worked in interesting patterns All of these glove fashions are distinguished by their prettiness—and they all have the good simplicity that smart gloves must have. The prices are so modest that you can choose a pair to say "look pretty, please" with every individual costume.
